"We must have no carelessness in our dealings with public property or the expenditure of public money. Such a condition is characteristic either of an undeveloped people, or of a decadent civilization. America is neither." —PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE, addressing the seventh semi-annual meeting of the business organization of the Govemment. Washington, D. C., June 30, 1924.

Heads With Heads Off
The Bonus, At Last?
No Shooting At Italy
A Little on Account

When the revolution started in France, as some think it is starting here now, and Louis the Sixteenth's head was in danger, although he didn't know it, his Swiss guards were faithful. Napoleon said later that the Swiss guards could have protected the king and checked the revolution "if they had had a commander." The bravest can do little, with no leader.

Republicans should think about that and select a leader soon, if they intend to do anything. This writer has talked recently to a number of Republican leaders, and, long ago, he has seen hens flopping after their heads had been cut off. The difference between those chickens and the Republican leaders as regards any apparent fixed purpose is slight.

Washington reports "payment of the three thousand million dollar soldiers' bonus before the end of the next session is virtually assured." Good news for soldiers.

Do you suppose the government will print more of its "inflation bonds," and insist on paying interest on its own money, instead of printing new money for the bonds, or do you believe there must be SOME limits to stupidity?

Here is war news:

England's soft-voiced Foreign Secretary Hoare begs, implores, beseeches Italy to make peace with Ethiopia, while there is still time. "Sanctions" have not yet been applied. England and other countries are selling goods to Italy. "While the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return."

Ethiopia's Emperor has not gone to the front yet "to shed my blood and if necessary die with you on the battlefield," according to his promise. He may start any day. Fortunately, he did not go yesterday, for, according to Universal Service, "hundreds of Ethiopian tribesmen were killed and wounded in a wild charge against Italian machine gun nests."

Our native machine gunners of the "rackets" could have warned them against that folly.

Important is Sir Samuel Hoare's statement: "No military sanctions against Italy have been considered," as that "did not form part of Britain's policy."

This means no shooting at Italy or Italian ships to provoke an attack on London by Italian airplanes.

The plan is to starve Italy, a country not easily starved.

Reuters News Agency says more than 250 Italians died of thirst and fever in the far eastern corner of Ethiopia after Danakil tribesman had "salted all the water holes."

That makes it difficult for Mussolini to negotiate any peace until Danakil tribesmen have been attended to.

The League of Nations wants us to "clarify our position." It would be made clear if the President would write to the League of Nations: "Our position is this: We are attending to OUR business, and advise you to do the same. Also, what about a little cash on account of ten thousand million dollars you owe us on the last war?"

Lidj Yassou, Emperor of Ethiopia from 1910 to 1916, dethroned by his aunt, the Empress "Judith," whom Haile Selassie succeeded, wishes Mussolini had stayed away. Lidj Yassou, rightful occupant of the Ethiopian throne, has been kept a prisoner, treated kindly, allowed to eat as much as he wanted.

Nairobi, British Kenya, reports that Lidj Yassou is now an uncomfortable prisoner in a remote corner of the empire and chained to a priest, who guards him. Ethiopia fears Italy may capture him and establish him as "rightful ruler," after the fashion of Henry Pu-Yi, put on the throne in Manchuria by the Japanese.

Queer things happen in Ethiopia. The Daily Express says former War Minister Fitowrary Berru, in disgrace with the Emperor because he spent too much money, walked, as a penitent, into the presence of the Emperor, carrying on his back a heavy grindstone, and kneeling down in sign of submission. The Emperor rolled the stone off his back, meaning forgiveness, and Fitowrary Berru is off spending money again. Some of our baked potato and "little pig" ministers might try that.

Hugh Christopher Holme, describing the new Aduwa, where Italy was defeated in a great slaughter more than forty years ago, tells of natives, quite contented, industriously practicing the Fascist salute to please Italian soldiers. Ethiopians, amazed, watch Italian "pick-and-shovel-troops" build miles of solid roads with incredible speed.

W. R. HEARST WILL SPEND LESS TIME IN WEST

By Universal Service

Hollywood, Oct. 23—The Variety Daily, a motion picture and theatrical trade publication, in today's issue will publish the following letter received from William Randolph Hearst:

October 16, 1935.

Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Sir:

I read your article of September 30 stating that I am leaving California.

I hope still to be able to spend some time in California, but I am compelled to close my places and live almost entirely in New York.

Heaven knows I do not want to leave California. No one does, least of all a native son whose father was a pioneer. But it is utterly impossible for me to remain here and to occupy a place like San Simeon, on account of the federal and state tax laws.

The California Income tax law goes to 15 per cent. Add this to the federal income taxes, and the New York taxes, plus many other taxes, and I find that over 80 per cent of my income will go in taxes—in fact, it may be nearer 90 per cent.

Under these circumstances it

Woman Plunges to Death

New York, Oct. 23—Miss Annie M. Lincoln, 75, member of a wealthy Providence, R. I., and Worcester, Mass., family, plunged to death today from a 14-story apartment house in Park avenue.

The body, which was found in the concrete courtyard, was identified as that of his aunt by Marsden J. Perry, who said he was the son of the late Marsden J. Perry, Providence banker and art patron.

Miss Lincoln, who formerly lived on Oak street, Worcester, was the granddaughter of one-time Governor Levi Lincoln of Massachusetts, and a daughter of the late John Waldo Lincoln, who was graduated in 1839 from Harvard.

John Waldo changed his name to Edward Winslow Lincoln, and it was under that name that he was made postmaster of Worcester, and later achieved considerable note as an attorney.

As park commissioner, Miss Lincoln's father founded the Elm Park, one of the first municipal reservations in the country.

The Perry family into which her sister, Marion Lincoln, married, was the victim of a robbery at their Newport, R. I., residence in 1924, which netted the burglars $60,000 in gems and laces.

NEW HAVEN FILES PLEA SEEKING TO REORGANIZE

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 23—The New Haven Railroad announced today that it filed a petition for reorganization under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act in the U. S. District Court of Connecticut.

Howard S. Palmer, president, in a statement issued at the close of a directors meeting, said the road had reluctantly taken this step only after exhausting every possible means available to the company for meeting its obligations as they mature.

Palmer explained that continued low gross revenues which dropped from 142 million dollars in 1929 to approximately 70 million in 1935, the exhaustion of its collateral through loans granted by the government last year, and inability to obtain new funds at the present time, together with the uncertain outlook for meeting cash requirements in 1936 made the step inevitable.

BUSSES CUT REVENUE

This step is expected to place under federal trusteeship one of the once richest railroads in the United States, operating more than 2,000 miles of lines in southern

MUSSOLINI WITHDRAWS 12,000 MEN FROM LIBYA

War Today

Ethiopia massing 228,000 soldiers to meet Italian advance. "Last stand" battle that may decide fate of Selassie's empire is near.

Police today guard Italian consulate here against attack by Communists.

While the world awaited reaction to Britain's new peace plea, Prime Minister Baldwin told Commons that peace must be "fair alike" to Italy, Ethiopia and the League. Reiterating that Britain intends no isolated action, Baldwin urged strengthening of Britain's defenses.

Paris, Oct. 23 (INS)—Premier Benito Mussolini, meeting British demands, has agreed to withdraw 10,000 Italian troops which he had sent as reinforcements to Libya, Premier Pierre Laval told the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies today.

By International News Service

London, Oct. 23—Italy's big offensive is expected to begin on the northern front within a week, according to Addis Ababa dispatches to the News Chronicle and Exchange Telegraph.

Four simultaneous attacks along a 160-mile line are awaited by Ethiopian armies totaling 350,000 men, the dispatches said.

Italian forces entrenched before Aduwa are expected to start the drive, pushing towards the southeast, coinciding with an attack southwards from Adigrat, on the eastern Italian flank.

'STRENGTHEN OUR DEFENSE, AID PEACE'—BALDWIN

BRITAIN'S PREMIER URGES 'FAIR' PACT TO END WAR

By International News Service

London, Oct. 23—Any settlement reached between Italy and Ethiopia must be "fair alike" to three parties—Italy, Ethiopia, and the League of Nations—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons today.

Resuming the debate on the international situation opened by Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare yesterday, Baldwin affirmed the British government's sincere hopes for peace as expressed by Sir Samuel.

However, the Prime Minister's insistence that the three parties concerned must be satisfied served to illustrate Britain was not yet prepared to consider any settlement which disregards the League.

SPURNS LOOPHOLES

"Critics of the Government may feel there is a loophole for going behind the back of the League," Baldwin said.

"Nothing like that is intended. The settlement must be a tripartite arrangement.

"If any settlement can be reached to shorten the time of war and remove the possibility of the war spreading, it will be worth any endeavor, provided these principles are maintained."

Any peace must be made within the framework of the League and through its machinery, Baldwin declared.

Baldwin announced formally that the parliamentary election would be held November 14, and that the new Parliament thereby elected would meet November 26, and that the formal, state opening would be on December 3.

CABINET BACKS EDEN

Baldwin declared the cabinet unanimously endorses the activities of youthful Captain Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs, at Geneva. Continuing, he said:

"No isolated action on our part is contemplated. We have never had war in our minds . . . but in the interests of world peace it is essential that our defensive services should be stronger than they are today.

"I will not pursue a policy or be responsible for the government of this country if I am not given power to remedy those deficiencies that have occurred in our defensive services since the World War."

Regarding the necessity for the increase in defence forces Baldwin said:

"The government is all in favor of collective security as far as the league can carry it out, but I warn the country that there are risks for peace. I say this deliberately."

3-WAY PARLEY DENIED

The British foreign office today formally denied reports that a conference between Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare, Premier Laval of France and Premier Benito Mussolini is anticipated with the object of reaching a settlement of the African crisis.

The foreign office pointed out such a conference would be outside the framework of the League, which Britain has pledged herself to uphold firmly.

The conversations between Sir Eric Drummond and Fulvio Suvich, Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, going on in Rome were said to be for the purpose of further clearing the air.

Duce Asked For Terms

By Associated Press

Paris, Oct. 23—Premier Pierre Laval, seeking peace at home and abroad, told his Cabinet today of his plans to draw from Premier Mussolini Italy's minimum terms to end its Ethiopian war.

Authoritative sources said Premier Laval would call for clarification of Il Duce's views of settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict before submitting them to Great Britain.

He had already told the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies his peace-making efforts "will succeed" because "the present situation cannot help but improve."

Italy Loses Fear Of European War

By Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 23 — Sir Samuel Hoare's statement of British foreign policy, excluding military sanctions from Britain's efforts to halt the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, virtually banished from Italy today the dread of a European war.

Informed Italian circles believed the British foreign secretary's address to Parliament lessened still further the Anglo-Italian tension—already eased by mutual assurances of non-aggressive intentions.

Government spokesmen politely declined to commit themselves until the so-called "behind the scenes" peace talks among Italy, Britain and France had achieved something "more specific."

In pursuance of these negotiations, Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Italy, conferred again yesterday with Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs Fulvio Suvich. They were closeted for more than an hour.

Unofficial sources said peace parleys also were proceeding at London and Paris.

U. S. Air Plans Kept Secret

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 23—For purposes of bargaining with other air powers, the United States has flung a cloak of secrecy around the progress of its extensive naval aviation program.

Navy officials said today the move was made at the urging of the naval intelligence office, which has met some difficulty in obtaining data of the composition of foreign sky fleets.

By withholding information which hitherto has been available to the public, they said, the navy is in a position to use it for trading facts and figures with other governments.

ITALIAN CONSUL HERE GUARDED

To prevent any violence that might result from a picket demonstration by Communists, Italian Vice-Consul Silvio Vitale today requested and received a police guard at the consulate in the Park Square Building.

Detectives William Goldston and Benjamin Goodman of the "red squad" were assigned.

Peaceful picketing on St. James avenue, nine stories below the consulate, will be permitted, police said. They expressed fear, however, that Italian sympathizers might attempt to interrupt the demonstration.

There was no immediate attempt to enact the picketing resolution forced through the "peace conference" in Trinity Church last night by 200 Communists who took over control of a meeting there.

Beacon Hill Man Found Beaten

Believed to be the victim of an assault by thugs, Blake Tyler, 32, of Pinckney street, was found unconscious on the sidewalk in Boylston street today.

He was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital after a policeman had found cards partially identifying him. At the hospital he was treated for lacerations of the scalp, numerous cuts and bruises.

NOTIZIE ODIERNE DELLA GUERRA

By FORMER LIEUTENANT GIOVANNI NANIA

AMMASSAMENTO DI TRUPPE ABISSINE

Secondo un dispaccio da Addis Abeba, un corpo di oltre 200,000 abissini al comando di Ras Desta Demtu, genero dell' Imperatore Haile' Selassie', sono in marcia lungo la vallata del fiume Webbe Shibeli, pronti ad entrare in azione contro le truppe italiane comandate dal generale Rodolfo Graziani.

Lo stesso dispaccio informa che Ras Mulugheta, Ministro della Guerra, il quale ha lasciato ieri la capitale etiopica alla testa di una colonna di 8000 uomini, si avvia a passo accelerato verso Dessye, quartiere generale abissino.

"Sul fronte settentrionale non vi sono stati segni di ostilita'. Il lavoro di consolidamento e di rinforzamento procede con molta attivita'. La resa di bande armate etiopiche provenienti da zone non ancora occupate, continua incessantemente."

ADUA ATTIVA

In due settimane di occupazione Italiana, la citta' di Adua e' stata trasformata da una landa selvaggia in un centro di intensa attivita'. Autocarri italiani vi riversano continuamente, giorno e notte, carichi di benzina, vettovaglie e materiale da guerra.

Fra breve una stazione radiotelegrafica sara' in grado di transmettere direttamente i dispacci dei corrispondenti di guerra, dispacci fino adesso affidati a messaggieri indigeni o conducenti di autocarri diretti ad Asmara.

Gli schiavi della provincia del Tigre', gia' liberi in seguito al proclama emesso dal generale Emilio De Bono, sono stati avvertiti che, se lo desiderano, possono continuare il servizio presso i loro vecchi padroni, i quali pero' sono obbligati a corrispondere loro un adequato salario. Quelli che non desiderano rimanere al servizio dei vecchi signori, saranno impiegati dal governo italiano ed adibiti a lavori stradali, debitamente rimunerati.

Dopo il discorso di Sir Samuel Moare, tenuto icci alla House of Commons, l'Inghilterra e' oggi in attesa di conoscere la portata della reazione creata mel mondo dall' reazione creata nel mondo dall' Esteri per il pronto raggiungimento di una pace onorevole fra l'Italia e l'Etiopia.

Il primo dispaccio giunto da Roma, indica che il discorso di Sir Samuel Hoare e' stato accolto con molta soddisfazione nei circoli nonufficiali, specie per quanto riguarda la dichiarazione di ripressa attivita' Britannica nel confronti dell'Italia.

Le conferenze attualmente in corso in Roma tra Sir Eric Drummond, ambasciatore inglese a Roma, e Fulvio Suvich, sottosegretario italiano agli esteri, vengono riportate come molto cordiali e tenderanno indubbiamente a stabilire una maggiora comprensione fra i due paesi.

Contenti di aver fatto cosa grata, cogliamo l'occasione per riconfermare la nostra incondizionata simpatia verso la causa italiana e verso gl'italiani tutti, ai quali auguriamo di cuore un successo sempre maggiore ed un futuro glorioso.

has ordered them to hold the lines to the last man.

This order was taken to mean that the Abyssinians have changed their previous plans to meet the Italians in the mountains about 40 miles from Aduwa, and are now resolved to stem any further Italian progress.

228,000 Ethiopians Move on Duce Army

Addis Ababa, Oct. 23—Ethiopia stepped up its defense against the Italian invasion to fever pitch today, with 20,000 more warriors girding themselves for an immediate departure to the northern front.

The Minister of War, Ras Mulugheta, at the head of another powerful force of 8000, was reported well on his way to Dessye, the site selected for Ethiopia's last stand.

A third great body of braves, 200,000 strong, surged down the valley of the Webbe Shibeli River under the command of Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie, to meet the southern Italian army under General Rudolfo Graziani.

SELASSIE GOING SOON

The capital buzzed with martial activity, even as dawn tinged the nearby summit of Mount Entoto, and a feeling prevailed that Ethiopia was becoming more and more invulnerable.

With Ras Mulugheta hastening northeast to the troop concentration center of Dessye, the emperor advanced his own plans to proceed there next week.

Many of the warriors now quartered at Dessye were expected to move north after the king of kings takes over personal command of his forces.

Italy's Army Prepares For Northern Advance

By Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 23—A new Italian advance on the northern front into Ethiopia seemed near today when General Emilio de Bono, commander-in-chief of the Fascist forces in East Africa, reported that preparations were "advanced."

Momentarily, however, all was quiet on both the northern and southern fronts.

General De Bono reported to Rome that his air forces flew far over the River Takkaze, surveying the Danakil zone and the Amba Alagi sector, south of the next objective of Makale, about 60 miles southeast of the present front lines at Aduwa.

GEN. BONO REPORTS

An official communique said the populations of both the Ethiopian plateau and the plains below in the western zone continued to make acts of submission.

Behind the lines, life was reported completely normal.

The communique said:

"General De Bono telegraphed that there is nothing new to report on the two fronts except submission of populations on the plateau and plains of the western zone not yet occupied.

"Aviation is reconnoitering along the Takkaze River over the Amba Alagi and Danakil zones.

"Among the populations of the occupied territory, life resumed its completely normal aspects.

Floyd Gibbons' Radio Talk From Front Heard in U. S.

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 23—FFloyd Gibbons, world-famous reporter for International News Service, now with the Italian army on the northern Ethiopian front, brought a word picture of the front direct to American listeners in a brief radio talk today.

"This country is very wild, infested with animals and snakes," he said. "It looks like the coal fields of Pennsylvania and progress across the terrain is most difficult.

"The Italians are greatly astonished at the attitude England is displaying inasmuch as England, they say, has done the very same thing in all her conquests. What the Italians have done is not unlike what the United States did in taking the land from the Indians, they claim."

Gibbons' talk, scheduled for 1 o'clock, was suddenly brought in at 12:15, shortwaved from the Italian front line via Station 2RO in Rome and rebroadcast in the United States through NBC. He had been on the air from Rome for about five minutes before NBC was able to cut in on his address, and a good deal of his talk was lost in this way and through heavy static.

What I do, however, is of little consequence; but I fear that a great number of people with considerable incomes are planning to reside elsewhere, and that a great many who had in mind to come to California, and to remain here for at least half of their time, are realizing the utter impossibility of doing so.

The California law contains the peculiar provision that if anyone, even though a citizen of another state, remains in California six months of any year, he thereby becomes for that year a citizen of California, and is subject to California income taxes in addition to the taxes he has to pay in the state where he has his actual and legal residence.

This, of course, will prevent many well-to-do people from being even part-time residents of the state.

It would seem also that a number of moving picture people who earn considerable salaries are unwilling to pay the high income taxation of California, and are accepting engagements in the East or abroad.

I am inclined to think that if some alert moving picture company should establish studios in Florida or Delaware or New York City, or some suitable eastern place, they could get many of the most valuable stars away from California.

This would be better for the nation than allowing them and many leading directors to go abroad, to build up English pictures, and foreign pictures generally.

The California income tax was an unhappy move—very unhappy for us who are compelled to leave the state, but also somewhat unfortunate for the state, which may lose some useful people and enterprises.

However, the state is so great and so rich that it will easily sustain the loss. The great misfortune falls upon those who have to leave it.

Sincerely,
W. R. HEARST.

Ely Fears Exodus Here by High Taxes

Commenting today on William Randolph Hearst's expressed consideration of removal from California, former Governor Joseph B. Ely said today:

"The reported removal of Mr. Hearst from California to New York and the consequent loss of revenue to California, draws attention to the possibility which exists here to loss of revenue due to removal of well-to-do residents in the event present tax rates are boosted.

"We are protected to some extent in regard to income tax assessments by our state constitution. But in the general application it still remains that taxes are too high."

L. B. Mayer Sees Tax Fight Crisis

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 23—Louis B. Mayer commenting on an announcement by William Randolph Hearst that the publisher would leave California because of excessive taxation, said he believed it "inevitable that others will be obliged to follow."

Mayer, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, and a leader in the fight last spring against the proposed state income tax, said in part:

"It is regrettable that the seriousness of this situation has not been realized by the majority of the people. Too many sit back and take too lightly such things until there is a crisis.

"Mr. Hearst's leaving evidences the fear in all our minds of the disastrous consequences of reckless and discriminatory tax legislation. It seems inevitable that others will be obliged to follow, regardless of their great love for this state."

ETHIOPIANS HOLD AMERICANS

By FLOYD GIBBONS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 22 (2:20 P. M.) (Via Rome, Delayed)—Information officially received from Gambela today has it that the Ethiopians are detaining many foreigners.

Among these are said to be a caravan with a noted American named West, and several American women.

West is reported to have appealed to the American legation at Addis Ababa for protection.

A German woman, Elizabeth Klein, is said to have been refused permission to leave Ethiopia and her baggage has been confiscated.

SLAVES ALREADY FREED

Meanwhile, as the Italian army is consolidating its position in the North for further advances, a high official told me today that the government is studying the best and quickest means to superimpose the European social and economic system on the age-old feudal system with its slavery.

The slaves of Tigre province, already freed, have been told that they may stay with their former masters if they wish, but the masters have also been told that they must pay wages to such slaves.

The slaves who do not wish to remain under their old bonds will be employed by the government on public works such as roads, buildings, etc.

MOVIES FOR NATIVES

A movie has now been used in the occupied areas to sell to the natives the idea of the value to them of civilization.

The exhibition in Aduwa was crowded with semi-savage Ethiopians, exclaiming and marvelling at the sight of schools, churches, public buildings and street scenes in Italian cities.

These pictures are shown without comment, but their effect as an indication of the benefits of civilization the natives may expect by coming under Italian rule is most powerful.

U. S. ASKS EARLY AAA DECISION

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 23—Solicitor-General Stanley Reed today filed a motion in Supreme Court, that the Hoosac Mills case, involving constitutionality of the AAA, be set for argument on or near November 20.

The case recently upset the processing tax by decision in the first circuit court at Boston.

Edward R. Hale had Dennett Sanderson of Boston, and Edmund M. Toland of Washington, counsel for receivers of the mills, said the date requested by the government did not allow sufficient time for preparation of briefs.

They opposed a hearing earlier than December 9.

MRS. SCHUELER CONFESSES

By International News Service

Bridgeport, Ct., Oct. 23—Opposing alienists hovered in the background today as Mrs. Mildred A. M. Schueler implored a jury of Connecticut Yankees to believe she never meant to murder her 8-year-old stepdaughter, Marilyn Schueler.

Half led, half carried, she faltered back to the witness stand hoping to talk her way out of a possible life term.

"I had never intended to kill the child—I had no control of myself. I don't remember. I can't remember what I did."

The 12 in the jury box stared sternly. All but two have children of their own. All have heard her confession. They have listened to the story of Little Marilyn being tied hand and foot, beaten and crushed to death by the stepmother.

The former Skidmore College girl calls it an act of temporary insanity. The state calls it malicious fury.

Dr. Daniel P. Griffin, alienist of the Vanderbilt Clinic, New York, sat waiting to testify on behalf of the accused.

The prosecution will confer with Dr. R. L. Leak, director of Connecticut State Hospital, who gave the defendant a mental examination in Fairfield County Jail where she has been held since the day of the crime, September 6.

Case Nears Jury

The case may go to the jury late today unless the battle of mind experts develops into a protracted struggle.

Oscar J. Schueler, husband of the defendant and father of Marilyn, half, hid behind a pillar in the courtroom as Mrs. Scheuler wept through her low-voiced testimony yesterday.

Absent from the courtroom was Mrs. Anna Urwin Schueler, first wife of the Stamford bottler, and the mother of the little girl. She and Schueler were divorced about four years ago.

Drops Dead During Cigarette Raid

During a city-wide series of raids by federal tax agents, Joseph Slemey, owner of a tobacco factory in Broadway, South Boston, dropped dead of heart attack today.

Of 30 persons arrested two were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney, charged with unlawful possession of 4900 cigarettes on which internal revenue had not been paid.

They were recorded as Haygaz Berderian and Arshat Berderian, both of Brighton avenue, Brighton.

Several factories, valued at $10,000 each, were seized in the drive, most of them operated in the vicinity of Harrison avenue and Kneeland street, and in Allston and the West End.

Acting under Special Agent John Glutsch of the Internal Revenue Department, 25 operatives engaged in the drive, organized by Collector of Internal Revenue William E. Welsh

$37.50 SOCIETY DOGBITE

Mrs. Belknap Wins 3-Year Suit

Salem, Oct. 23—After spending hundreds of dollars in court proceedings, Mrs. Florence K. Belknap, 58, of Gregory street, Marblehead, today won her society dog bite suit against Paul D. Rust, Jr.

But the jury awarded her only $37.50 after an hour's deliberation.

The legal tiff has been pending in Superior Court since the summer of 1932.

Both defendant and plaintiff are prominent in Marblehead and Boston society, Rust being a personal friend of President Roosevelt.

For three years Marblehead police and neighbors of the contestants have been in the center of a storm concerning the activities of Rust's Chows ad Great Danes.

Port Closed in Strike

Lake Charles, La., Oct. 23 (INS)—Governor O. K. Allen today ordered the port of Lake Charles closed to shipping for three days in an effort to bring about a settlement of the turbulent strike of longshoremen which has resulted in the death of two men and the wounding of several others.

GIRL VANISHES AGAIN

Lenetta Jones Scales Wall, Flees

Lenetta Jones of Braintree has run away again, but this time she took another girl with her.

She and her companion—they're both 16—scaled the seven-foot wall surrounding the home of the Children's Aid Society, Mt. Vernon street, and vanished, it was learned today.

Authorities don't know what to do about Lenetta.

She has run away time after time and has caused police all kinds of trouble.

Finally she appeared in court as a stubborn child and was turned over to the Children's Aid Society under instructions to mother her, pet her, build her up, but not to make her do any work.

Lenetta had told the court that her mother made her do all the house work.

She took her brother, Neal, 12, on a trip last month and turned up in Bergen, N. J.

The Traveller's Aid Society put the children on a bus to their Braintree home, but they slipped away from the driver in Bridgeport, Ct., and finally turned up in Baltimore.

There they were found at the home of an aunt, Mrs. Novel Herbert.

It is estimtaed that 75 weekly benao and bingo parties will be affected by the ban

Somerville House Swept By Flames

Firemen wearing gas masks fought their way through dense smoke today to battle a $2500 fire on the top floor of a two-and-a half-story dwelling in Sargent street, Somerville.

The house was unoccupied, but was located in such a congested district that firemen were forced to employ water curtains to prevent a spread of the flames.

CAN LOVE and Study MIX?

MAN SAYS 'NO,' WOMAN 'YES'

Do marriage and studies mix in college?

"No," avers Professor Walter Beck of the psychology department at the Boston University School of Religious and Social Work.

"Yes," says Miss Helen Magoun Dame, secretary to Dean Albert C. Knudson of the B. U. School of Theology, where most of the students are married.

Explains Professor Beck:

"The success of matrimony depends upon a matching of personalities.

"No character is the same after the effects of four years of maturing in college. Therefore, how can you satisfactorily match two personalities with one or both not yet formed?

"There is a way of making a go of it. Success might be achieved if two personalties were formed similarly and at the same time, but this is a hard thing to guarantee."

Says Miss Dame:

"I don't believe it matters much, scholastically, whether the students are married or not. As long as they have enough money to prevent worrying over financial matters, studying doesn't seem to be affected.

Lexington Folks Ask Truck Ban

Residents of Hancock and Adams streets, Lexington, asked the Public Utility Commission today to bar heavy trucking from these two thoroughfares.

The historic Hancock home, built in 1736, where Paul Revere awakened John Hancock prior to the Battle of Lexington, is located on Hancock street.

Mecca of tourists, it was stressed, it is not unusual for many sightseeing buses to be parked on the street.

The commission was told noise of trucks makes it impossible to rest.

Phillip Park, 41 Hancock street, and C. E. Glynn, 56 Hancock street, testified to these conditions. Also Eugene Kratezer, Hancock street, and N. B. Bizwell, 25 Adams street.

Superintendent of Buildings Robert B. Trask said the trucks carried sand from pits in Burlington and use the two streets in going to Waltham and Concord.

TELLS BOSTON OF ROMANCE

By ANN MARSTERS

"Fifteen minutes after I met John Barrymore—he kissed me."

Thus began the romance between Elaine Barrie and "the great lover" of the screen; the romance that has flamed across many a headline; that has sent Elaine scurrying across the country in pursuit of her retreating dear one; and that has finally landed her in Boston to begin her stage career at the Copley Theater.

"Of Course," she said, while she nibbled at a stuffed lobster, "I realize that this opportunity came to me because of all the publicity attached to my romance with John. But I never wanted that publicity. It was just something that John and I had to endure.

"Now that I'm actually in Boston and ready to begin rehearsals for 'Katy Did—So What?'—I can't help but feel tremendously thrilled and even glad of that publicity.

"Yet all this doesn't compare with the thrill of that first kiss.

"I shall always remember every second of our first meeting, and all my confusion and amazement."

She reviewed the scene of their meeting. Barrymore's room in the New York Hospital where he was recovering from influenza. Elaine Barrie standing wide-eyed before him—a little girl from Hunter College there to interview him for her school paper.

Barrymore Asks Elaine Questions

But it was Barrymore who did the interviewing, and Elaine answered the questions—stuttering and breathless.

Barrymore lit a cigarette. Elaine reached for an ash tray to take to his die. But she stumbled on her way and almost fell.

"My dear child," said Barrymore. "What are you trying to do?"

"I'm just—just trying to bring you an ashtray."

"But how adorably sweet of you!"

Elaine Recognized Tie Between Them

"I could hardly believe it," she said today, stabbing at another piece of lobster. "There I was with the man of my dreams, and he was actually finding me attractive.

"And yet, in a way, I wasn't so terribly surprised. I believe—I have always believed—that we were fated to meet.

"When I used to see him on the screen I felt, somehow, very close to him—as though we had known each other for a long time. And I'm sure, that the first instant we met, there was some tie between us that both recognized."

After that, they saw each other every day, and John proclaimed his love and Elaine admitted hers.

But there were forces working against them, and Elaine knows just what those forces are.

Elaine Barrie has a clever, active brain, and she also has a complexion of gardenia whiteness and a full, mobile mouth. When she talks she seems much older than her 20 years.

All she knows is that he is somewhere on his yacht sailing the high seas.

"I know," she said, "that he has been told some terribly untrue things about me. Even acquaintances of mine have been induced to swear to the most dreadful, false statements. That's just a part of the scheme to keep him away from me.

"If he should believe them, it would break my heart. But he won't. I know he won't.

"In his heart he knows that we can't live without each other and we'll be married as soon as his divorce becomes absolute. That won't be for another year—but I don't mind waiting."

(More of the interview with Elaine Barrie by Miss Marsters will be printed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Kermit Roosevelt Case Postponed

Worcester, Oct. 23—The case of Kermit Roosevelt, Jr., Harvard student, scheduled in district court this morning, was postponed until late today when the grandson of the late "T. R." charged with speeding, September 29, sent word he was "too busy" to appear.

Young Roosevelt, arrested by State Trooper James R. Cronin after a mile-and-a-half chase on the southwest-cutoff in Auburn, was charged with speeding between 70 and 75 miles an hour. He requested the delay on the plea that classes at Harvard made it difficult for him to attend the court hearing.

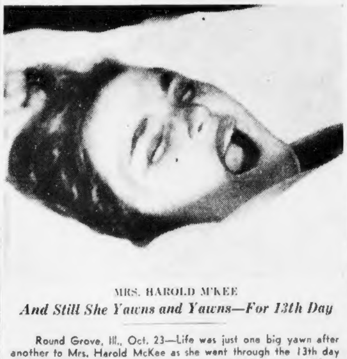
Life's a Big 13-Day Yawn To Young Illinois Woman



MRS. HAROLD M'KEE
And Still She Yawns and Yawns—For 13th Day

Round Grove, Ill., Oct. 23—Life was just one big yawn after another to Mrs. Harold McKee as she went through the 13th day of the strange malady that has been torturing her today without noticeable signs of relief.

Mrs. McKee is forced to yawn at frequent intervals.

Dr. H. L. Pettit, her physician, believes the attack was induced by constant worry over the care of an invalid husband and diabetic son.

It is not the first time Mrs. McKee has spent her days and nights yawning. She was afflicted similarly last year when she gaped for nine days on end but finally was cured.

PICKED As Abductor BY GIRLS

SUSPECT FROM SOMERVILLE

"That's the man who gave us the apples."

Two little Cambridge girls, pointing their fingers at a 54-year-old Somerville auto salesman in a police lineup, with this phrase today identified him as the man who yesterday lured them away in his car, causing a kidnap scare.

In the car of the man, held as a suspect until police decide what charges are to be placed against him, was found a bag of apples following his arrest early today, authorities declared.

Later, Mrs. Jessie Carvele, 25, of Windsor street, Cambridge, identified the man as the driver of a car she noticed on Windsor street, Cambridge, at 1 o'clock yesterday.

Near the spot she saw Dolores Neal, five; Robert Neal, four,and Shirley Ackerly, five, all of Brooks street, later enticed into the machine by an offer of a pies, driven to a lonely spot and an hour and a half later turned out of the car near their home, apparently unharmed.

Police considered the case against the suspect stronger when Robert Beechan, 73, of School street, Cambridge, first to sound the alarm yesterday, identified the Somerville man as the one he saw give the children apples and drive away with them.

Denying the children had been with him, the Somerville man, himself the father of three children, said he had been drinking and driving around yesterday and that in the evening he was in the company of a woman he would not name.

Cambridge police, who arrested him after neighbors had given information about him, were undecided what charges to place against him.

Chinese Boy, 13, Now Saugus Pupil

Lee Wah Hong, 13, son of Lee Chong, Boston laundryman, started school in the fourth grade at Cliftondale School, Saugus, today. He lives with an uncle, Lee Wuen, a Saugus laundryman.

A much traveled youngster, who arrived in Boston October 7 after a 4,000 mile trip from Canton, China, Wah Hong knows only the alphabet in English.

Because of his age and size, Mrs. Myra Peckham, principal of the school, believed he would get along better in an advanced grade.

He was tagged by his mother, who remained behind in China, at the outset of his trip to Boston and aided by the alphabet—arrived safely in Boston.

Shepard Host To Store Aides

Providence, Oct. 23—John Shepard, Jr., of the Shepard stores, was host last evening to his executives and department managers from his Boston and Providence stores at a banquet given in the New Crown Hotel in Providence.

John Shepard, Jr.

The banquet was in the form of a business and social gathering and also a farewell to Shepard, who is returning to his Palm Beach home to spend the winter.

Shepard spoke optimistically about the future of business.

PRESIDENT PUTS $2,610,497,629 IN WPA JOBS

By International News Service

Washington, Oct 23—President Roosevelt has thrown $2,610,497,629 of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund into the Works Progress Administration program, International News Service learned today.

Curtailment of every other activity launched under the program designed to end direct relief by putting 3,500,000 employable heads of families from the relief rolls to work by Nov. 15, has begun.

Comptroller General McCarl, blamed in WPA circles for delay in getting the program into full swing, has approved projects with a total value of $1,301,986,303. While he has drawn actual treasury warrants releasing only $982,663,849 to the states, McCarl's staff is turning out approvals and warrants at the rate of more than $100,000,000 a day.

Slashing of funds allocated to other governmental divisions for the work relief program began with a reduction of $16,000,000 in the $147,800,000 river and harbor allotment.

The $10,000,000 allotment for the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal power development in Maine was cut in half, to $5,000,000.

Army Engineer Corps applications for funds for stream clearances in New York and Pennsylvania, as a flood control measure, have been turned down.

Funds already allocated for grade crossing eliminations, but not yet obligated, are due for cuts, a reliable informant said.

"Every agency which has received allocations, but which has not yet launched their projects, or obligated the funds, faces reductions in allotments," the informant said.

Patriotic Women

"MINUTE Women of 1936."

A stirring name under which a numerous and representative group of women of the state of New Jersey, under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret S. Sayre, have formed an organization to defend their liberties and rights as American citizens.

The New Jersey group, which is already being copied in many states, proposes a national convention, within two months, of similar state organizations, and the formation of a national body under the name "Minute Women of '36 of America."

Its announced purposes are "To preserve the principles of the Declaration of Independence; the return to Congress of all powers surrendered to the President, with laws being made only by direct representation of the people in Congress; to establish economy in national government, with immediate reduction of government expenditures, and a balanced budget annually for sound national credit."

• • •

AT a meeting held in West Orange, N. J., on October 18, representatives were present from the populous counties of Bergen, Atlantic, Essex and Middlesex.

Typical of the attendance were Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, the widow of the great inventor, and many other distinguished women prominently identified with the civic and charitable activities of the state of New Jersey.

There is not a thoughtful and patriotic person in the country who can regard this movement except with a thrill and a feeling of intense interest.

Since the days of the Minute Men of Concord and Lexington the name "Minute Men" has been a synonym for the alert and watchful guardianship of liberty.

• • •

THERE is fine precedent also for the women of America to organize as the "Minute Women of America."

The names of the Concord matrons who shared the dangers and the fate of their fathers, their husbands, brothers and sons—Mrs. James Barrett, Mrs. Amos Wood, the Widow Brown and Hannah Burns, to mention only some—are held in grateful recollection by Americans of today, along with the names of Isaac Davis, who, just prior to the Concord fight, said: "I haven't a man that's afraid"; and Major John Buttrick, and Prescott, and Pickering, and Parson Emerson, rushing with musket in hand to the scene of the fight.

These were the men who declared: "No danger shall affright, no difficulties intimidate us, in support of the laws and liberties of our country."

No soil is richer in historic associations than that of New Jersey, nor could any state in the Union be more appropriate as the birthplace of a patriotic organization, with a name so hallowed as "THE MINUTE WOMEN OF AMERICA."

REVERE MODEL RETIRES AFTER 50 YEARS

After 50 years, the clay model for the statue of Paul Revere, commissioned by the city, has been completed by Cyrus E. Dallin in his Arlington Heights studio.

Of heroic size, the statue was commissioned after two competitions, both of which Dallin, then a youth of 22, won.

Since that time, the money has never been forthcoming but Dallin decided to do the statue anyway.

RELIEF WASTE RAMPANT IN BAY STATE

By JOHN H. NOONAN and ALAN C. FRAZER

(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American).

Receipt of $20,000,000 of WPA funds in Massachusetts would be heartening, if it were not for the waste that clings to expenditure of Federal relief funds.

Officially, the only announcement that has been made as to the use of this allotment is that $4,296,000 is for sidewalks and $7,500,000 for farm-to-market roads.

We have personally examined country sections where farm-to-market roads are planned, and are convinced that this project will, in large part, run "boondoggling" a close second for sheer waste.

CAN'T FIND 12 MILES

For example, Martha's Vineyard, according to an official statement from Washington, has been allotted $50,207 for farm-to-market roads.

The ERA chief in one large Boston suburb has been ordered to prepare plans for 12 miles of farm-to-market roads, but by the greatest flight of which his imagination is capable, he has been unable to project more than three miles.

Bristol County has been allotted by Washington officials no less than $750,000 for farm-to-market roads. With Community Service allotments in that section added, there is a total of $1,500,000 or more for purposes which in large degree appear to be in the "boondoggling" class.

SIDEWALK LEFT OVER

As for sidewalks, besides large allotments for suburban localities where abutters have in the past always split the cost among themselves and the municipal treasury, with no great burden to anybody, there are also miles of sidewalks contemplated for both sides of highways through country sections.

We found cases where there is going to be considerable sidewalk left over, after both sides of the highways are equipped.

In addition to waste on actual projects, there are executive and other overhead expenses to be met, both here and in Washington, where the Federal relief bureaus have overflowed from the many new government structures into palatial private residences, which have been made over into office-quarters.

BECOMING REALITY

State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch states that early next week he expects to receive another $22,000,000 of Massachusetts allotments. If this is so, then the speed which we have been urging is becoming a reality.

Under relief regulations, last May's welfare lists are to be the basis for finding workers for these projects. In some respects, this is unfortunate, for those persons who were able to keep off welfare until more recently, are not qualified under this rule, unless some way is found to make exceptions—a rare thing under the usually hard-and-fast sociological setup of the relief organization.

Fingerprint Drive Planned in State

Massachusetts communities are planning to seek WPA funds for a fingerprinting project.

The money would employ salesmen to make the public "fingerprint conscious," selling the idea that all men, women and children should record their prints with the police.

Colonel Paul G. Kirk, public safety commissioner; Police Chief Archie F. Bullock and others back the plan.

Gen. Greely Given Military Funeral

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 23—Brigadier General Adolphus Washington Greely, 91, was at rest today among the nation's heroes in Arlington National Cemetery.

At the full military funeral yesterday honorary pallbearers included Brigadier General David L. Brainard (retired) 79, only survivor of Greely's 1881 expedition to the Arctic.

SOCIETY LINES UP

'Dream' to Aid Concert

One of the most outstanding motion picture premieres in Boston's history takes place at the Majestic Theater on November 8 with the opening of the Shakespeare film, "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The entire seating capacity of the theater has been purchased by a committee of society women to aid the Boston Esplanade Concert Fund.

The committe is composed of Mrs. Morton Seabury, Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. John T. Bottomly, Mrs. George L. Foote, Mrs. Samuel P. Sears, and Miss Josephine Griffith.

Warner Brothers Pictures and the M. and P. Theaters, producers and exhibitors of the picture claim "A Midsummer Night's Dream" to be real evidence of the fact that the "movies" have grown up.

"The fact that the Esplanade group has chosen to sponsor the Boston premiere," said Sidney C. Davidson, of Warner Brothers, "is another great tribute to Max Reinhardt and his production of Shakespeare's comedy.

"It is, of course, also a tribute to the musical part of the production and the music of Mendelssohn, played throughout the picture by one of the largest symphony orchestras ever assembled for a motion picture.

"It proves, I think, that the screen has come of age, very definitely and successfully. It is a sign that the screen may take its place now as the art form of mass and class alike."

QUODDY TIDAL WORK GOES ON

By Associated Press

Eastport, Me., Oct. 23—Construction of the Passamaquoddy Bay project went on at unslacked pace today despite a federal order halving the first year allotment of $10,000,000.

The general impression here was that under existing conditions army engineers building the vast tidal power plant probably would not spend more than $5,000,000 the first year, anyway.

Captain Samuel D. Sturgis, an aide to Lieutenant Colonel Philip B. Fleming, engineer in charge, said the reduction would eliminate a possible waste of funds.

2 'GUSTIN GANG' DEFENDANTS REST CASE

Two of four alleged members of the old Gustin gang, on trial in connection with the beating of Patrolman Daniel J. MacDonald, in 1933, today rested their cases without testimony after completion of the goverment's casee.

They are Thomas Dineen and Anthony Dembrowski.

The defense opened for Steve Wallace, alias Gustin, and Francis P. Sullivan. All four are on trial before a locked-up jury in Suffok superior court on charges of conspiring to murder, conspiring to commit assault with intent to kill, and conspiring to commit assault.

How a policeman was "planted" in a cell seeking evidence against two of the defendants was told at the trial.

The policeman was Sergeant George F. Smith who testified he occupied a cell adjoining those in which Dineen and Dembrowski were being held.

CELL TALK REVEALED

McDonald testified yesterday that the four on trial, together with Thomas "Red" Curran, later slain and dumped in a Quincy quarry hole, were present in a house on Vinton street, South Boston, the night he was attacked.

Sergeant Smith testified he overheard the following conversation between Dineen and Dembrowski in their cells:

Dineen: "What are you here for?"

Dembrowski—S. P. (Suspicious Person): "I haven't done any talking. I kept quiet."

Dineen: "I came in town Sunday night and was arrested for drunk."

Dembrowski: "Be careful. There's someone in the other cell."

Sergeant Smith said Dineen then rapped on the partition between cells and asked for matches and newspapers. The policeman passed the latter out of his cell door after three requests.

Dembrowski: "We better be careful."

N. Y. DETECTIVE TESTIFIES

Sergeant James V. Crowley testified that after he arrested Dembrowski the following conversation took place between them.

Crowley said: "Are you going to take it yourself?"

Dembrowski: "I'm not."

Crowley: "You know these fellows won't stand behind you. McDonald may die. You don't want to take a murder rap."

Dembrowski: "I'll take it and be a chump."

Other government testimony was that Sullivan was living at a hotel in Orlando, Fla., under the name of Frank Garrett when arrested.

ATTORNEY IN TILT

Assistant District Attorney William Sullivan and Daniel J. Gallagher of defense counsel twice engaged in lively tilts that ended with Judge Harold P. Williams dismissing the jury while legal points were ironed out.

Recalled to the stand, Sergeant Crowley was asked where he last saw "Red" Curran. A 45-minute lobby conference on defense objection resulted in Crowley leaving the stand without answering the question. The government then rested its case.

Outlining his defense, Gallagher said his clients, Wallace and Sullivan, contend they were once before tried on the conspiracy charge and acquitted. The prosecutor leaped to his feet shouting objection and Judge Williams said:

"That is extremely improper. My recollection is that these men have never been tried for conspiracy."

Wife Held in Axe Death

Chestertown, Md., Oct. 23 (AP)—The Kent County Grand Jury today returned an indictment charging Mrs. Thelma Buxton, 28, with the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Effie Buxton, 69.

The elder Mrs. Buxton was hacked to death in her apartment here. She was buried in Worcester, Mass.

"Ten Ton Truck" Bride, Pal

FLORA TURGEON MUSGRAVE HELEN TERRY

ELOPE IN 10-TON TRUCK

Lynn Girl, 16, Reveals Romance

Lacking a more romantic conveyance, Russell Musgrave, 21, Lynn Lochinvar, eloped last March with his schoolgirl sweetheart in a 10-ton truck to Seabrook, N. H., it was revealed today.

Flora Irene Turgeon, 15, at the time and an eighth grader who graduated in June, played hookey from school to become the bride of Musgrave.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Turgeon, Essex street, Lynn.

At the Saugus home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gifford, Flora Irene told the story of her truck elopement. Her parents and those of young Musgrave, hitherto unknown to each other, were present.

On a March day, when extreme cold cut classroom attendance, Flora and Musgrave, then a truck driver, now a salesman, decided to elope. They went to Seabrook where a justice of the peace performed the ceremony.

Flora returned to her family and to school.

Mrs. Musgrave, now 16, couldn't keep her elopement secret any longer.

She started wearing a gold band beneath her glove and it was noted by a sharp-eyed girl chum still in school.

So Flora peeled off the glove and announced she was Mrs. Musgrave and—so what?

They have started housekeeping at 40 Ireson street, Lynn.

JOCKEY TO GIVE UP; BOY FACES DEATH QUIZ

By International News Service

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 23—Louisville police today said they had requested Baltimore police to arrest Walter Schaffer, exercise boy in the stable of Hal Price Headley, as the second person to be questioned in the murder of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski. Schaffer was reported working at the Pimlico track.

It is thought that the name was sent to police from Willie "Smoky" Saunders, who was at Lexington this morning.

Saunders was reported by his attorney to be headed for Louisville, and his appearance at police headquarters was expected momentarily.

The jockey, who rode Omaha to victory at the last Kentucky Derby, was wanted for questioning in the "dancing party murder" of Mrs. Sliwinski, found dead early Sunday on a road near Louisville.

Attorney Wallace Muir of Lexington said Saunders had spent some time with him this morning and left alone for Louisville.

By International News Service

Baltimore, Oct. 23—Whitey Danenhauer, business agent for Willie (Smoky) Saunders, jockey sought for questioning in Louisville concerning the death of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski, has left Baltimore, police announced today.

Danenhauer was questioned by police late yesterday and then released.

Police also announced that Saunders' automobile, discovered in a garage yesterday, has been photographed for fingerprints at the request of Louisville authorities.

Detectives said the car apparently had been washed after being left in the garage.

Railroad experts state that this carrier, owing to the proximity of the large cities such as New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Providence and Boston, has probably met sterner competition from bus and truck traffic than any other major carrier.

This road has played a conspicuous part in Wall Street history. Dominated for years in the pre-World War period by the late J. Pierpont Morgan, it expanded rapidly, buying up steamship lines, street railways and other properties avidly.

Its expansion was over rapidly, however, and it went through a previous financial crisis before the war, losing millions to investors.

President Palmer said the road had borrowed $20,175,000 during the depression to cover costs, deficit in income, equipment trust installments, additions and betterments to the property.

It also obtained $5,250,000 in connection with the government's unemployment program for repairs to equipment and for new rails, most of them still unlaid.

"Total funded and unfunded debt, excluding all bank and government loans, etc., at the present time is about $283,094,000, compared with $282,270,000 on January 1, 1929, and $317,450,000 on January 1, 1923.

"Fixed charges and guarantees in 1935 totalled $19,600,000 (approximately the same as in 1929, i. e., $19,250,000). Notwithstanding the gross revenue will be $70,000,000, which is less than half of gross revenues of 1929.

"In 1935, it was expected that 74 per cent of fixed charges, including guarantees, will be earned, as compared with 66 per cent earned in 1934.

"Practically all the company's available collateral was taken by the government in 1934 as security for loans obtained at that time.

"The upturn in business in the late spring of this year seemed to justify the hope that the company might be able to recover as it did after 1923.

"The uncertain factors which will have an important influence in the year 1936 have a very vital bearing on the New Haven problem.

"It is faced with a possible substantial reduction in passenger fares; a large increase in pension payments; increased taxes due to the Social Security Act; substantial increase in coal bill, due to the Guffey act.

"It must spend a very substantial amount of money in changing some 7000 freight cars from arch bar trucks to cast steel side frames in order to keep them in interchange service and to meet the Association of American Railroads order which becomes effective January 1, 1938.

FAITH IN FUTURE

"While the management believes there should be a substantial increase in gross revenues during 1936, forecasts from different quarters are so varied that there is no assurance that the upturn will be sufficient to take care of all the company's requirements.

"The New Haven management has every confidence in the fundamental soundness of the southern New England territory through which the New Haven operates.

"It is convinced that with a reasonable return of general business activity, New England will benefit materially and the New Haven will obtain its full share of traffic resulting from increased business.

"Further, the New Haven management is convinced that in a very large measure improved earnings which will accrue to the New Haven with increased general business activity, can in time be translated to improved net income.

"A study of problem in the light of the experience of other railroads, with even less complicated financial structures than the New Haven, has convinced the management that such an adjustment could not be accomplished and that the diverse interests of numerous and widely scattered holders will be best served under a section 77 proceedings.

"No effort will be spared to consummate fair and equitable reorganization, just to all interests, as quickly as may be consistent with the best interests of all concerned."

Voke Wins by Big Chelsea Vote

Making his first political campaign, Edward J. Voke, an attorney, was nominated for mayor of Chelsea, with Representative William H. Melley runner-up. Candidates in the primary polled the largest number of votes in Chelsea's history. Voke was given nearly a two-to-one lead over Melley.

In Woburn Mayor Edward W. Kenney was renominated by Democratic voters. He will be opposed in the November election by Sherwood H. Van Tassel, winner in the Republican primary.

PWA Rejects Million Loan to New Haven

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 23—The Public Works Administration today announced rejection of an application by the New Haven railroad for a million dollar loan.

Officials said the application, designed to provide funds to lay $1,300,000 of new rails bought with an earlier PWA loan, was rejected because of lack of adequate security.

The announcement followed rejection yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a five million dollar application by the line for a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan.

PWA already had loaned the railroad $7,027,000, including $1,300,000 for rails, $2,227,000 for 50 passenger coaches and a streamlined train, and $3,500,000 for equipment repairs.

New Haven Owes $4,244,000 in Taxes

New Haven, Oct. 23—The New Haven Railroad is faced with the problem of paying the State of Connecticut $448,465.20 in taxes by November 15.

Also due in two weeks are taxes of $1,277,000 payable to the City of New York.

Other items falling due between November 1 and January 1 are taxes to the City of Boston amounting to $1,500,000.

Some $60,000 is due to the City of Springfield, Mass., for taxes, while $100,000 is owed the State of Massachusetts as a franchise tax. In December, the road must pay $109,000 in taxes to the government for an assessment on its leased lines.

New Haven road officials said the aggregate amount of taxes due was $4,244,000.

New Haven Deficit In 9 Months $3,461,451

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 23—The New Haven Railroad today reported a deficit for the first nine months of 1935 of $3,461,451. Substantially less than the $4,573,359 deficit for the same months of 1934.

These deficits are after all charges and guarantees on separately operated properties.

New Haven Trustee To Be Named Nov. 6

By Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 23—The New Haven Railroad, on filing petition for permission to reorganize under section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, was granted a temporary injunction by Judge Carroll C. Hincks.

This injunction restrains any party from interfering with the business of the railroad.

Judge Hincks set noon, November 6, for a hearing on the injunctive proceedings and for the appointment of a trustee.

"Prisoner of The OGPU"

By GEORGE KITCHEN

CHAPTER 31

MRS. KITCHIN

Snickering and rubbing his hands, he looked at the doctor and then at me. His manner of thinking and his cynicism were exactly the same as that of all his counterparts in the OGPU.

He meaningly pulled in his lips, got up and walked out of the room with an unsteady gait. The doctor remained quiet for a while, thinking and holding his head in his hands.

"No, I shall not be a party to such baseness," he said at last.

"What a scoundrel! You don't know this man. Have you ever heard the story of the prisoner Tretiskova? I am now giving her treatment in Kotlas. It is such a pity. She is quite young and an irresponsible sort. She told me all about it and he probably suspects it.

"Well, there was a certain engineer N. at the Transfer Station, a very decent young man who had known her in Moscow before her arrest. She told him the whole story and he persuaded her to come to me.

"Then he wrote to Monakhov, the commander of the Transfer Station, and sent him a complaint against Zakhariantz. Now the unfortunate N. is kept under lock and key on a charge of 'wrecking,' and a new sentence awaits him.

"That's what comes from interfering with the Cheka. All for one and one for all. And still, in spite of it all, I shall have no quarrel with them."

The bookkeeper came in.

It was half past twelve. The bookkeeper lowered the light of the kerosene lamp and stretched out on his bunk near the stove without undressing. Then, in a low and pleasant tenor voice, he started to hum the area of Lensky from the opera Evgeniy Onegin.

We went out into the dark yard and rubbed our hands and faces with snow.

The doctor put on his smock with a resolute air. He had evidently decided to give battle to the enemy, though he fully realized the risk.

Aaronovich appeared at his doorstep, buttoning his fur jacket. He was followed by the chief of the guards Sergeyev and by the timekeeper of the base. Aaronovich walked to the center of the yard and cried:

"Prisoners of the Pitsky Base, greetings!"

"Zdrah," came the reply.

The doctor stepped up to Aaronovich and handed him a list of names of the sick. He demanded in a firm voice that the men included in his list should not be sent out to work.

Aaronovich waved him aside.

"What are you talking about, doctor? They are not sick, they are slackers. The timekeeper inspected all those who reported that they are ill. I shall leave behind five of them, but all the rest must go."

He took the lists of prisoners from the timekeeper and commanded:

"Stop!" cried the doctor. "In accordance with the penal camp regulations I demand that the following prisoners be excused from duty," and he started calling out the names from his list.

The squad commander pulled out his gun:

"Column, attention, go!" he commanded.

Followed by the murmuring of the prisoners of the other square the disciplinary squad marched past us in double file.

At the head of the column marched a monk in his long cassock with a rope around the waist. There were many faces of educated men among these unfortunates. Some of the prisoners greeted the doctor as they passed by and exclaimed "Bravo, doctor."

Others just shrugged their shoulders as they looked at him, as much as to say that one good man cannot conquer an army of bandits.

Two priests walked at the end of the column. Some of the prisoners had swollen faces, others looked gray and haggard with hollow eyes and sharpened features.

They wore every kind of clothing, but very few of them had warm overcoats or felt boots. Most of them were dressed in light overcoats and low shoes, and the feet of some were wrapped with rags held together by strings. Almost none of them had mittens.

They walked by us in gruesome procession, their axes and saws glimmering in the semi-darkness of the early winter morning.

Aaronovich began calling out names of the next list. Men stepped out of the square and formed in double file. Among those called was a pitiable-looking peasant in his middle fifties who could hardly stand up, and two young half-dressed petty gangsters shivering in the cold.

"Comrade Aaronovich," said the doctor, pointing them out, "I cannot permit that these three prisoners go out."

"It cannot be done, doctor, they are just soldiering. I know them. They will get well in the forest. Go, hurry up, you three," Aaronovich bawled at the prisoners, handing the list to the foreman.

"The rest of you," commanded Aaronovich, "go to the third kilometer. All women are to do housework, you divide the jobs yourself," he directed the timekeeper.

There was a commotion in the remaining group. The prisoners were all huddled together and were bending over someone. We came up to them. Lying on the snow in an unnatural position was a man of about 40 dressed in a short jacket. His dirty knee stuck out sharply through a big hole in his trousers.

The unhealthy skin of his worn face contrasted unpleasantly with the pure, white snow. Saliva trickled down his thin whiskers. His lips were blue, his eyeballs were rolled back in agony.

The doctor got down on his knee, lifted the man's eyelid, quickly bared his chest and listened to the heartbeat. We waited in tense silence.

"It is all over, he is dead," said the doctor. "This is the kind of people you send to the forest!"

"This is not the first time a man died," frantically exclaimed one of the Kiev students, shaking his fists. "Scoundrels, cads, bandits that they are, they will kill us all! We are all doomed to die here, all of us "

"Into the dungeon with him," roared Aaronovich, shouting him down. "I'll show you what it means to start a riot."

Several guards rushed for the student. Zakhariantz came running up to our group. "What's going on here?" he exclaimed.

"Comrade Zakhariantz," the doctor appealed, "I insist that all the prisoners mentioned in this list be returned from work at once.

"They are sick and were sent into the forest in spite of it. Here's an example for you, a man just died here, at the base, during the rollcall . . ."

"Don't butt into other people's business, doctor," cried Zakhariantz. "You were sent here to inspect and not to give orders.

Patman to Back "Any Bonus Bill"

By Universal Service

Washington, Oct. 23—Payment of the $3,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus before the end of the next session of Congress virtually was assured today.

Representative Wright Patman (D.) of Texas, sponsor of four cash payment bills which passed the House, but eventually met either Senate defeat or presidential veto, today declared himself ready to drop his own measure and support "any other one" if necessary to get final presidential approval.

Drink Costs High

It was an expensive drink which Joseph Bissallor of Highland avenue, Somerville, was given by three men in an alley near 16 Gore street, Cambridge. They went through his pockets, removing a wallet and a pair of eyeglasses.

FLIERS GREET CURLEY TODAY

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Oct. 23—Completing a cross-country flight, two Massachusetts National Guard officers were here today to greet Governor Curley of Massachusetts upon his return from a vacation trip to Hawaii.

They were Brigadier-General W. I. Rose, adjutant-general of the Massachusetts National Guard, and Brigadier-General Rodger W. Eckfeldt, commander of the 51st Field Artillery Brigade.

Accompanied by their two pilots, Major E. S. Beck and Major D. R. Stinson, the flying generals will take off tomorrow for Los Angeles. Later they will fly to Santa Fe, N. M., to attend the annual convention of the National Guard Association.

Governor Curley is returning from Honolulu where he visited his convalescent daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly. He is due to arrive at San Francisco at 4 p. m. (E. S. T.), today aboard the liner President Coolidge.

Dope Smuggler Gets 18 Months

Sentence of 18 months was imposed in federal court today on Morris Rosenthal, 35, of Ballou avenue, Dorchester, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy with others to smuggle dope to prisoners at Deer Island.

Francis N. Hurley of Dorchester, arrested with Rosenthal, was given a six months' suspended sentence and placed on probation for a year.

Frederick McArthur, also involved in the charges, was given a suspended sentence of two years and placed on probation for three years.

Cool Wave To Follow Today's Heat

Although Boston felt the unseasonable heat today, with the temperature touching 77 at noon and continuing at that point several hours, it was not a record for the date.

Weather Bureau records show the record for October 23 was in 1900 when 80 degrees was touched.

However, humidity today was recorded at 96.

Office workers in many downtown business places went coatless.

Forecasts for this evening and Thursday indicate showers followed by clearing and brisk west and southwest winds with considerably cooler temperatures.

Infantile Plague Wanes, Says Bailey

Boston's infantile paralysis epidemic is definitely on the wane with no cases reported during the past 24 hours, Dr. Frederick J. Bailey, deputy health commissioner, said today. A total of 422 children were stricken and nine died since July 15.

Because of the very small number maimed by the disease, members of the City Council plan adoption of a resolution commending Dr. Bailey for compelling school authorities to delay opening of the schools this year.

Small City Vote Expected Nov. 5

Political observers today estimated that not more than 40 per cent of Boston's registered vote of 305,000 will go to the polls on election day, November 5.

Few wards have interesting city council campaigns and interest in school committee candidates seems confined, at present, to Dr. Charles E. Mackey of South Boston and Maurice J. Tobin of Brighton, who are seeking re-election, and to John C. Flaherty of Dorchester.

Tip on Pierce Fortune Fight Wins $25 Award

The "tipsters" have certainly been busy this last week!

The winner of the $25 first award does not want the name published. The tip led to the Boston Evening American's exclusive revelation of the existence of a rival claimant to the famous Pierce fortune—and two exclusive stories with pictures!

Five dollars goes to Norman Gerranan, for his story of firemen who met death in a Cambridge crash, and another five dollars goes to a Cambridge woman who told us of the rescue of a society cat!

This week there's a THREE DOLLAR prize, awarded because we got a chance for interesting NEWS PICTURES. It goes to Benjamin N. Feltsch, 154 Orchard street, Watertown, for telling us of an auto accident in which a truck rolled down an embankment and in which two persons were injured.

Two dollars is awarded to Mrs. Walter Meyers, 9 Jackson street, Cliftondale, for another truck accident, this one on Saratoga street, East Boston.

Dollar winners this week included Joseph Cunningham, Fellsway West; Beatrice Blumenthal, Dedham; Catherine Dolan, Eas Somerville; M. J. Connery, Waltham; Francis Rooney, Cambridge; Thomas Casey, Lawrence; and Leo McCormick, Foxboro.

2 Dorchester Boys Held in Stolen Car

Two Dorchester boys, one 13 and the other 10 years old, were arrested today in Squantum in a stolen automobile owned by John C. Sydenstricker, of Charles street, East Weymouth.

The boys said they were walking along a street in Meeting House Hill district of Dorchester when the auto passed them and two men jumped out letting the machine continue along the street. The boys said they jumped in, decided to take a ride and became lost.

Hitler Aide Dies

Berlin, Oct. 23 (AP)—Wilhelm Loeper, 52, a veteran supporter of Adolf Hitler, died today after a long illness. He was appointed Reich's statthalter, or governor, for the German states of Brunswick and Anhalt May 5, 1933.

COOL and Quiet as the Countryside
. . . yet right in the heart of New York

Visitors to New York in summertime have formed the habit of stopping, season after season, at The Devon, because of its convenience and accessibility to every metropolitan activity. But still more because of its quiet and exclusive atmosphere, and its solicitous attention to every detail of comfort and management.

PEQUOT MILLS WORKERS BACK

Salem, Oct. 23—Nearly 1500 out of 2100 employes of the Naumkeag company, operating the Pequot mills here, and the Danvers Bleachery in Peabody returned to work today following settlement of a ten weeks' strike.

This week only three days' work will be given Pequot mill employes, with a night shift starting tomorrow. The Danvers plant will not resume full-force operation for a week.

Killed by Lumber Fall

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23—Frederick Allegario, 28, of Matthew street, was crushed to death today when a pile of lumber in a yard in Allen avenue fell on him.

COLLAPSES AT LINEUP

7 Pick Negro as Purse Snatcher

"That is the man. He ——"

Mrs. Emma Sterling's accusing finger wavered, her voice trailed off.

And as the police headquarters staff leaped forward, the Mattapan matron, who had just left City Hospital after treatment for injuries received during an attack, collapsed.

She was the first of seven women who identified Joseph R. Atkins, 23, negro, as the man who snatched their purses, and in some instances attacked them.

Atkins was captured by Roxbury patrolmen after a series of holdups, during which the victims, all women, had been beaten.

At the police line-up, each woman picked Atkins out and said:

"That is the man."

The others were Evelyn Klein, 23, Devon street; Pauline Zola, 25, Mazing court; Sarah McConologue, 28, Hutchins street; Mary Keane, 26, Hutchins street; Ruth Belkin, 30, Wilder street, and Betty Spinner, 23, Homestead street, all of Roxbury.

Miss Belkin, whose purse was snatched October 19, was one of those beaten, police said.

BOSTON TO TAX U. S. HOUSING

The city of Boston will impose taxes on the South Boston federal housing project, City Collector John P. Doherty announced today.

Doherty said the property would be assessed at a fair valuation and tax bill sent next June. If not paid, liens would be issued, and if taxes are still unpaid court action would follow.

This action, Doherty said, will be based on the fact that the housing project is financed by a private corporation which is receiving federal aid, and also upon the fact that the government, when title was taken to the property, paid the taxes in full.

The showdown, the collector pointed out, cannot come until taxes become due next June.

CRIMSON VETERAN ANGERED BY SNEERS

By ALAN C. FRAZER
(Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American)

Laurence Curtis, one of Harvard's hero sons, today denounced the book, "Government of the People," which calls the Constitution of the United States a Frenkenstein monster.

Upon reading in the Boston Evening American that this book is a textbook in the Harvard course, Government I, Curtis procured a copy, read it and declared:

"The flippant tone and jeering attitude of Messrs. Laski and Brogan toward the Constitution, in the book 'Government of the People,' fill me with disgust.

"Of course one might disagree with a book and yet not object to its use for instruction purposes. It all depends on how it is used.

"But I much prefer an honest, scholarly criticism to the jeering, carping stuff in that book."

Curtis' statement brings up the question: Why was this book by Brogan, which Professor Harold J. Laski inspired, chosen out of the many available volumes?

Preaches Lineup Of Rich vs. Poor

This book—written by an Englishman and sponsored by a professor with radical contacts—not only attacks the Constitution but, as presently will be shown, preaches a political line-up of the rich on one side and the poor on the other.

That, it may be pointed out, is the first item in the radical program in America.

He was a member of the class of 1916, with such men as William J. Bingham, now director of athletics, Edward W. Mahan, the football "great"; Richard Norris Williams and Samuel M. Felton, Jr.

He was a member of his Class Day committee, of the varsity football, hockey and tennis teams and of Phi Beta Kappa, the scholastic honorary society.

Curtis Leads Fight For Sound Finance

In recent years he has led a fight for sound financial methods as a member of the Boston city council and the Massachusetts House of Representatives, of which he is now a member.

As Professor Laski, in his foreword to Brogan's book, proclaims the end of rugged individualism in America and predicts class stratification, so Brogan preaches class consciousness and warns of "a deluge." That is, a revolution.

Brogan advises the rich to organize first—which would naturally develop class-consciousness in the poor.

He states:

"The problems now facing the American government are of the European type, and they are problems which the American government is much less fitted to deal with than are most European governments.

"The national government must be given more power. It must be easier to amend the federal Constitution.

U. S. Enters Same Stage as Europe

"If the United States has definitely entered on the same stage of social-political development which has been endured in England and Germany since the war, she cannot struggle through with her present government.

"The President should have very wide powers, Congress being reduced to voting general appropriations.

"It will be of little avail to nationalize the presidency if that office is to be the present party system.

"It is necessary that the cards be put on the table, and that the sections of the population who believe in giving the rich their head, should be on one side, and those who disagree should be on the other.

"It is often asserted that what the United States wants is a powerful Socialist or Labor party, but what is immediately necessary is a powerful and intellectually honest Conservative party.

"A really powerful Radical party basing itself openly on economic, not on sectional differences, would of course smoke the rich out of their holes in the old parties.

"Hopeful radicals have again and again seen a red sky at morning, but it has alwys been a false dawn.

"Yet the forces that should make for a new class party are getting stronger and stronger.

"The dominant American political theory asserts the existence of a republic which offers economic independence to all capable and industrious citizens.

"This was as true as such theories can be, a century ago; it is less and less true today.

Farmer Called Serf Of the Bankers

"No longer can the discontented make themselves independent on the farm; indeed the farmer who is already established is losing ground, a serf of the banker when he is not a tenant farmer or an outright employe.

"The average American today is a proletarian. The alleged 'new economic revolution' which was to spread property, in small doses, all over the land, was always a joke and is now a joke in bad taste.

"If the present depression lasts much longer, this truth will be forced into the heads of even the most stoutly Anglo-Saxon of Americans.

"The ending of immigration is producing a fairly homogeneous laboring class, and economic pressure is curing millions of formerly hopeful citizens of dearly-held illusions.

"Baseless hope is the last infirmity of feeble minds, but the power of self-deception must have a limit. When that limit is reached the party system in America will suffer catastrophic changes.

"Despite all slogans to the contrary, few, if any, Americans are believers in rugged individualism.

"If the present crisis does not liquidate itself soon, and that without intolerable suffering on the part of the poor, the dykes of the old party system may cave in sooner than most people expect—and after that the deluge.

"If the old system has really exhausted itself, the changes will take unpredictable forms and find unforeseen weapons and new men to wield them."

A really powerful Radical party, basing itself openly on economic, not on sectional differences, would, of course, smoke the rich out of their holes in the old parties. Hopeful radicals have again and again seen a red sky at morning, but it has always been a false dawn. Yet the forces that should make for a new class party are getting stronger. Baker Beaten In Price "War"

Because he informed two strangers who entered his bakery in Salem street, North End, today, that he would sell his bread at any price he chose, John Pinto, 40, was severely beaten by them, he told police at Haymarket Relief Station.

Pinto said the strangers told him he could not sell his bread two cents cheaper than other bakers.

When he replied that he would sell as he pleased, one of the strangers swung a two-foot wooden club, lacerating Pinto's scalp, injuring his knee and cutting his face and arms.

Police have been ordered to watch for a possible flare-up of a "baker's war."

Nazis Ban Jewish Heroes' Names

By Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 23—Germany's Nazi regime was reported today to have taken another step to erase Jewish names from the nation.

Under a new order reputed to have been issued by Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, the names of 12,000 Jews killed in the world war while fighting for Germany will not be placed on memorial monuments.

ZIEGFELD BEAUTY

Type Returning, Says Kaufman

New York, Oct. 23—Young women, in the opinion of Harry S. Kaufman, selector of chorines, have ceased trying to thwart nature—and consequently are becoming more beautiful.

"Not only are they putting on flesh where it belongs," he said today as he reviewed a parade of pulchritude vieing for the next edition of the Ziegfeld follies, "but they are letting their hair grow naturally in both color and length."

Kaufman believes the girls in the forthcoming show will be as lovely as those personally nominated by the late Flo Ziegfeld.

He told about the 1936 edition of the "Ziegfeld girl."

"Five feet five inches in height, 118 to 124 pounds, 17 to 23 years of age they average, and (a most important feature) in walking grace they are superior to the girls of Ziegfeld's time."

Other statistics:

Unless something extraordinary happens in the next two calls for talent, only three red heads will be in the show. Kaufman has issued three calls for girls and about 2200 responded.

CLOUTIER JURY SEES CAR SEAT

Alfred, Me., Oct. 23—Seats and a door from Alexander Cloutier's automobile, said by state witnesses to bear bloodstains, were entered as exhibits in Cloutier's trial for the murder on Aug. 20 of Florence Grenier, 17, Biddeford millworker.

The state also offered two sticks, pieces of a pine bough, and an iron pipe which, it was indicated, the state would contend were used in the slaying of the girl.

Testimony by state witnesses was that the sticks and the pipe bore bloodstains and human hair when found near the girl's battered body in an unused dump near Goodwin's Mills.

Police Officer Edward H. Cote denied he showed to another prisoner implements allegedly used to strike Cloutier while he was being qustioned.

Alfred Cote, used car dealer, said rear cushions which matched the upholstery were in the automobile he sold the Cloutiers.

WELFARE LIST Jumps 1200

Seventh Man Slain in N. Y. Racket War

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 23—Underworld enemies poured gasoline over the unclad body of Louis Amberg, 36, today and left him in a blazing automobile near Brooklyn navy yard.

He was at least the seventh to die in a war for control of east New York slot machine and shakedown rackets.

The skull had been battered in with an axe, police said.

They said they had been hunting Amberg for another killing, but that gangland had found him first.

Louis' brother, Joseph, and the latter's chauffeur, Morris Kesler, were stood against a wall and shot to death in a garage in Brooklyn September '30.

Ten days ago Frank Teitelbaum's battered body was dumped in a trunk from a speeding automobile near Brooklyn bridge. Police identified him as a former lieutenant of Joseph Amberg.

TRIAL UNFAIR, BRUNO'S PLEA

By International News Service

Washington, Oct. 23—A claim that Brun Richard Hauptmann did not receive a fair trial for the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., as guaranteed by the Constitution will be the basis upon which his lawyers will seek aid of the Supreme Court.

This was indicated today by Attorney Egbert Rosecrans, who said:

"We expect to file our petition for review well in advance of November 15, the time limit."

He plans to cite the summation by Attorney-General David Wilentz in the trial at Flemington, N. J.

The state, it will be asserted, changed its theory as to the manner of the death of the baby after it was kidnaped.

Judge Trenchard's charge to the jury will be attacked as "biased."

Hauptmann's lawyer also will contend that the jury was not properly protected from outside influence.

Two Jobless Men End Own Lives

Springfield, Oct. 23—Two local young men, unacquainted but both despondent because of unemployment, were found suicides today.

Clifford Hill, 20, of Pearl street, who vanished Friday, was found by hunters in the Longmeadow woods. He had killed himself with an army revolver that lay beside him.

The body of Harry A. Whitehead, 27, of Clantoy street, was found floating in Connecticut river. He vanished, October 13, following two years of unsuccessful search for a job.

ROXBURY POLICE CAT

Prize Given in Safety Contest

If you live in Roxbury—and you want a first-class police cat (no, not police dog—police CAT!) you can have one if you win Roxbury's famous safety-essay competition!

You see, "Fish," mascot of Station 10, has just gone out and brought home three of the cutest—sweetest — prettiest — purriest — best looking—oh, well, you just have to SEE them!

Every patrolman at the station wanted one for his wife, or his sweetheart (sure, policemen have sweethearts!) or his nephews or his nieces, or his—anyway they all wanted one of Fish's kittens.

You see he wants all Roxbury children to know the rules of safety first—first to save THEM—and next to keep accidents out of his district.

So—if you really want one of those cute kittens—just sit down and write a letter telling Captain Casey what you think boys and girls ought to do to make Roxbury streets safer!

You see, it's easy! Just sit down and start right now beginning your letter:

Captain Thomas F. Casey,
Roxbury Crossing Police Station,
Dear Captain Casey:

I want one of Fish's kittens very much so I will tell you what "SAFETY" means to me.

Then do it.

ROUT THAT COLD

Let It Not Hang on Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Beware of the "common cold"!

The "common cold", doctors will tell you, is the cause of more serious trouble than anything else.

Many a person who is in a pneumonia jacket today had but a "common cold" yesterday!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is, first of all, a cold tablet, made expressly for colds. Secondly, it is internal medication, fourfold in effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in treating a cold.

Second, it checks the fever in the system, a vital step.

When you feel a cold coming on, trust to no makeshift methods.

Adopt the course of safety and take Bromo Quinine. Taken promptly, it will often break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speedy action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. It is sold by all drug stores. The few pennies' cost may save you a lot in worry and medical bills. Say "no" to a substitute.

M. I. T. TO KEEP DIPLOMA FROM OBJECTOR

Kenneth Arnold of the senior class of M. I. T., who refused to take the required course in military training, cannot receive his diploma under the present policy of the school, it was stated by President Earl T. Compton today.

"Arnold was given permission to continue (two years ago when he quit military training) as a special student of the Institute without taking military training. This arrangement was made in accordance with the authorization of the executive committee.

"Arnold accepted this arrangement, knowing he was not a candidate for a degree, and the case has not been opened since the original arrangement was made. It still exists and the matter rests."

According to Dr. Compton, Arnold was permitted to remain as a special student because of the sincerity of his convictions.

QUESTION RAISED

The question whether Arnold would receive his diploma was raised in an editorial in The Tech, the M. I. T. newspaper. The editorial was written as a result of a statement in the Student Herald that "the greatest fight of the year would be to get a diploma for Kenneth Arnold."

The Student Christian Movement, which sanctions the Student Herald, has already approached the executive committee of the Institute concerning Arnold's case, but the committee has refused to act.

According to Compton Arnold cannot receive his diploma from M. I. T. unless the policy of the institute is changed. This policy was definitely settled four years ago.

VOTED TRAINING

At that time the student faculty committee voted on the question of compulsory military training and the group was unanimously in favor of it. When the question was put into the hands of the faculty committee and the executive committee, it was again passed unanimously.

The executive committee is the only group that can give Arnold his diploma. Arnold has remained at Technology with all the rights and privileges of other students.

The New England Congregational Churches of which the Student Christian Movement is a part, voted recently that they believed military training should not be compulsory, and that a person should follow his own conscience.

Jimmy to Resume Law in New York

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Lonodon, Oct. 23—Jimmy Walker is on his way home.

He had that New York look in his eyes and there was that Broadway tilt on his gray felt hat as he arrived at Croydon Aaerodrome by plane from Paris.

He is booked to sail on the Manhattan tomorrow from Southampton.

He will be accompnaied by his wife, the former Betty Compton, probably by her mother, Mrs. Campton.

Betty Compton

Most of their baggage and their wire haired terrier will be shipped today from Paris to board the liner at Havre.

Walker explained today:

"In France, I received certain advices from New York that made it imperative I return as soon as possible.

"As you know, I have been taking it easy in England and France and other countries, getting my health back—and I am now feeling so well there is no reason why I should not get back to New York and to work."

"But what are you going to do—practice law?" he was asked.

Virginia Phelan, Marietta Howe Make Debut at Dances

By BETTY ALDEN

MANY DEBS AND THEIR ESCORTS will have to do a bit of fast driving and make lightning changes of attire in order to take in the full course of today's activities . . . This afternoon Mrs. James J. Phelan is entertaining in honor of her debutante daughter, Virginia, at their seaside home in Manchester, with a tea dance which, as the afternoon wears into evening, will become a buffet supper dance . . . As soon as this party breaks up there will be a grand rush back to town and thence out to the Dedham Polo and Country Club where Mr. and Mrs. Parkman Dexter Howe are giving a large dance to formally introduce their unassuming, informal, daughter, Marietta . . .

VIRGINIA PHELAN

Marietta will, of course, be poised and dignified as she stands in the receiving line with her parents to greet all her guests, but, as soon as the last welcoming handshake is over, she will drop her mantle of dignity and become once again, a sparkling, fun-loving little deb as she swings into the rhythm of the dance music pursued by the persistent minions of the stagline . . .

She will wear for her debut a gown of pale blue brocade with panels of silver cloth falling from shoulder to hemline, and an old-fashioned bouquet of pink roses . . . Mrs. Howe's gown is of sapphire blue crepe with a corsage of harmonizing flowers . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Howe are giving a dinner party for the ushers and their girl friends at the clubhouse before the dance . . . There covers will be laid for several out-of-town girls, including Ruth Roberts of Baltimore, who is visiting Rebecca Ames; Jean Tompson of Greenwich, house guest of Anne Soule, and Anne Grosvenor of Providence, who is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Richard C. Curtis in Brookline . . .

To add to the gayety of the debutante calendar today, Anne Hutchins, a deb who lives in Needham, will give a small dinner party before taking her guests on to Marietta Howe's dance . . . At her party will be Frances Osgood, Phyllis Lovering, Nancy Homans, Nancy Richards, Betty Ware, Dorothea Merriman, and Joan Chapin, and their escorts will be Arthur Newbold, Edward Farley, Jr., Robert Drysdale, Jr., Sheldon Ware, Irvin Garfield, Louis Farley, Frederick Ayer, Edward Pratt, and Myron Wick, Jr. . . . Miss Hutchin's own debut will take place Friday evening at a dance at the Dedham Polo and Country Club . . .

"Ginnie" Phelan, who is a very alluring eyeful in practically every costume she wears, will be even more attractive in her Renaissance gold moire frock as she received with her mother this afternoon . . . The dress is made with a perfectly plain bodice, full skirt, ankle length in front and swinging into a short circular train in back, and trimmed with a jewelled belt in which lime green is the predominant color . . . In her hair she wears a coronet of lime green curled feathers and her flowers will be a spray of yellow and green hanging orchids . . .

Priscilla Phelan in Charge of Pourers

MRS. PHELAN (who last evening revealed herself as a superfine hostess in appearing calm and unruffled as she received her fourteen house guests, all arriving at different times and all wanting to talk at once), is wearing a green velvet gown for the tea dance . . . Priscilla Phelan, older sister of the debutante, has charge of the pourers, and wears a black and white velvet gown . . . the youngest daughter of the household, Patricia, has come home from Westover for the occasion and is wearing pale blue bagheera velvet . . .

Some of the pourers will be Elise Sortwell, Alloe Plimpton, Anne Dick, Peggy Paine and Marion Wood, aside from a large number of out-of-town friends of Miss Phelan's . . .

Yesterday afternoon all the subscribers to the fascinating series of lectures given at the Statler every Friday morning by Miss Eunice Avery, were invited to tea at the Children's Hospital, the beneficiary of the lectures, to meet Miss Avery and to make a tour of the wards of the hospital . . .

Miss Avery was very gracious as she was introduced to all the listeners who sit before her on Fridays, with Mrs. Frank Stewart and Mrs. Samuel Warren assisting her in receiving . . . Miss Avery's authentic Chanel suit, of gray tweedy mixture with an amusing applique pattern of red and black oilcloth on its scarf was quite the envy of all present . . . for even though it was a very fashionable gathering, few of the women there had been fortunate enough to go to Paris during the summer and those who did considered that enough of a break without the added pleasure of buying an original Chanel suit . . .

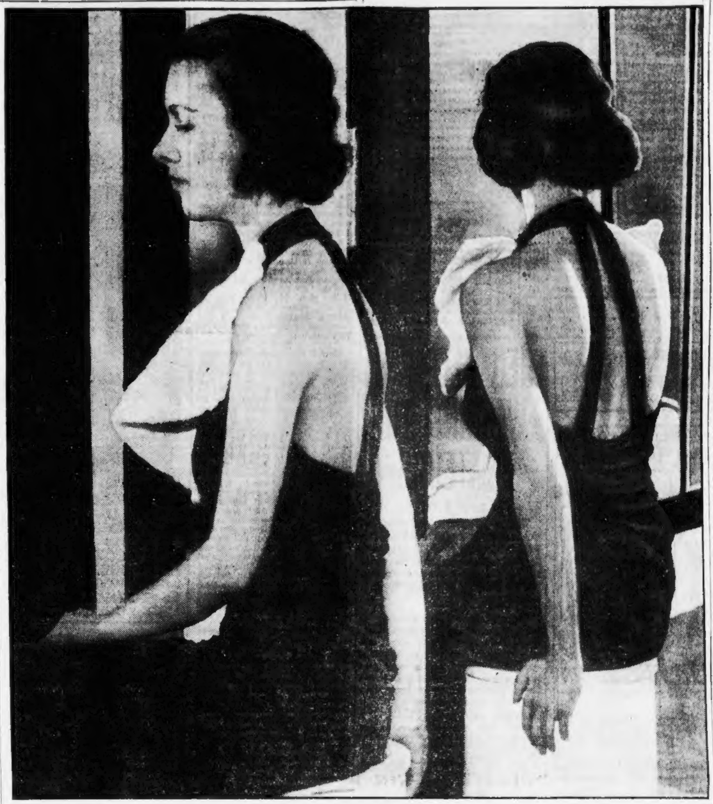
DEBUTANTE ATTENDS REHEARSAL FOR STYLE SHOW BENEFIT



(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

A FASHION SHOW is to be a pleasant interlude in the events on the program for the annual bazaar for the Sunnyside Day Nursery at the Copley-Plaza on October 30 and this pretty deb, Miss Louise English, whose mirrored reflection reveals the daring back of one of the black velvet gowns in the show, will be a mannequin. Miss English is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey F. English of Brookline and a debutante of this season. She will make her debut on December 5.

Chapel Bridal

Miss Mary Sullivan Weds on Saturday

THE CHAPEL of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross will be the setting for a colorful autumn wedding when Miss Mary Josephine Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Sullivan of Boston, becomes the bride of Mr. Louis Good of Roxbury Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Rev. William Dacey will perform the ceremony.

An attractive group of attendants will precede the bride to the altar. Mrs. Cornelius Murphy will be matron of honor, and Helen Clancy of Dorchester, Gilberta Bilodeau of Waltham, Mildred Kramer of Boston and Helen Cole of Boston will be bridesmaids.

James Good will be best man for his brother. Ushers at the church will be James Curran of Milton, Cornelius Murphy of West Roxbury, George Gardella of Arlington, Joseph Fay of Roxbury, Richard White of Ashmont, William Sullivan of Dorchester, Ralph Good of West Roxbury and Edward Morrissey of Brighton.

A whirl of parties have preceded the nuptials. Mrs. Cornelius Murphy was hostess at a buffet supper held recently. Miss Helen Clancy entertained the bride at a tea in her home in Dorchester this week. On Thursday evening, following the wedding rehearsal, a dinner dance for the bridal party will be held at the Hotel Touraine.

After the wedding reception at the Hotel Touraine the young couple will leave for Florida, where they will embark for a Caribbean cruise.

Miss Sullivan is an active member of Boston's smart young set and is a member of the 350 Club. Mr. Good is the son of Mrs. Jeremiah Good of Roxbury and attended Boston College.

NOVEMBER DATE FOR BOSTON AUTO SHOW

Setting a precedent, Boston's automobile show will open at Mechanic's Building, Huntington avenue, on November 16, and will continue for eight days.

The early opening date for the show, which heretofore was held during the winter, was agreed upon by members of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association as an aid to business.

It was pointed out that the winter time previously was a slow season, due to weather conditions and the fact that the buying public would wait for the annual auto show to be held before making purchases.

President Roosevelt, officials of the association, has asked the automobile industry to keep up production during the winter to stimulate employment.

Albert Rau, manager of the show, and George W. Sweet, president of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, met yesterday with the show committee and discussed plans to make this year's show the greatest in its 31 years.

Opening at 1 p. m. on Saturday, November 16, the show will continue daily and Sunday for th entinue daily and Sunday for the en p .m. On Sunday the hours will be 2 p. m. to 10 p. m.

MOVIE MIXUPS

BY ART MOGER

40 NEW 1936 Automatic RADIOS GIVEN FREE!

TOMORROW AT THE R-K-O KEITH BOSTON THEATRE

A gala show!

Tomorrow, at the famous RKO Keith Boston Theater, all of today's "Movie Mixups" cartoon characters will appear on the screen or in person, on the stage. The screen attraction is "The Rainmakers," while the stage presents a horde of popular stage, screen and radio performers in a brilliant revue.

Unscramble their identifications from the batch of mixed up letters near each cartoon likeness. Answer the question asked pertaining to the career of one of these celebrities and mail your completed set of SIX "Movie Mixups" to The Movie Mixups Editor, Boston Evenin American, Boston, Mass. A new series begins every Monday!

By special arrangement with the Automatic Radio Mfg. Co., of Boston, exclusive radio manufacturers in New England, the Boston Evening American will award a total of 40 Automatic radios, with the NEW metal tube and other 1936 improvements; also $150 in cash and 300 guest theater tickets.

A grand award, to be distributed to the person sending in the best "movie mixups" during the entire radio campaign, is the new 1936 nine all-metal tube, all wave, Automatic Console radio.

FRED ALLEN IN WARNING TO AMATEURS

By N. F. T.

Too many singers abound in the amateur radio ranks. It's Fred Allen now rising to remark and almost everyone is quite willing to grant him the point. Unless maybe it's the singers who won't.

In any vaudeville theater or musical comedy audience, the patrons don't care much about sitting through two, three or four vocalists, without some relief, be it comedy or drama. So it is in the home. Change of pace must take place—or success doesn't.

CALLING ALL COMICS

"N. F. T."

Fred Allen, a keen showman and no mistake, relates how out of the last 200 amateurs he tried out for his toothpasty "Town Hall Tonight" turn (WEEI) this evening at 9 o'clock, there were 190 warblers of both sexes. Too many, says Fred, and the echo rings around in living rooms of the land — too many! Instrumentalists, imitators, not to mention comedians, are reported scarcer than flies in the Flit factory.

Who will muster the courage to encourage a few amateur comedians? It's a big order, even for the estimable Major Bowes. But there seemingly should he more than a few potential funmakers now seriously occupied in the selling game, taking trolleys over busy city streets or perhaps keeping books balanced in big offices.

An address by President Roosevelt goes coast-to-coast over all major network stations tomorrow night at 9:30 p. m. It's a Mobilization for Human Needs rally, having nationwide air facilities arranged to convey voices and music from various centers in the United States.

THE "MIKE" MADE MAN

Parker got his vocal start on the Harry Horlick "Gypsies" program several years ago. Later he sang with the Revelers, then joined the Jack Benny program and finally becoming a star in hi own right with his own sound sanctum show.

SEMI-CLASSIC SETTING

A new song, "I'm the Echo," by Jerome Kern from Lily Pons forthcoming feature film, "I Dream Too Much," will be featured by the brilliant coloratura soprano during her program with Andre Kostelanetz' orchestra and chorus this evening (WNAC), from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m.

Kostelanetz also plans to present a special version of Kern's outstanding hit, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Two other famous coloratura numbers will be contributed to it all by Miss Pons, including the "Air de Rosignol" by Saint-Saens and the "Bell Song" from Delibes' opera, "Lakme."

Kay Gets Actress Role

By JERRY HOFFMAN

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Oct. 23—Kay Francis must be intrigued with the idea of playing an actress.

Kay, who just finished portraying one in "I Found Stella Parrish," will be given a chance to compare characters with her next vehicle for which Hal Wallis has chosen "Lovely Lady."

A dramatic story in which an actress, entirely different from the one featured in "Stella Parrish" has been written by Charles Kenyon and Rowland Leigh.

What should excite Kay is Hal's plan to have William Dieterle direct her. With "Midsummer Night's Dream" to his credit as co-director, Dieterle is vary much in demand.

Gail Patrick

Now, if Col. Roscoe Turner and the others will leave transcontinental records alone Paramount may be able to go ahead with "13 Hours by Air." They've finally arranged to star Fred MacMurray in the Bogart Rogers story which started out as "20 Hours By Air" and then was cut to "16 Hours By Air." All the producers are squabbling for MacMurray who started his first picture, "A Gilded Lily," just one year ago. Gail Patrick, who may become Mrs. Bob Cobb any minute, will have her most important leading role opposite Fred.

With all producers in a mad race to find new Fred Astaires and Eleanor Powells, Fanchon and Marco feel that the time is perfect for a production based entirely on dancing. For his first feature Marco Wolff has decided upon "Dance Congress" in which he will present as many famed dancers of all parts of the world as he can sign. Marco is anxious to have Eleanor Whitney and William Powell play the leads. Bill Powell isn't a dancer but the role calls for an actor of his type. Fanchon will supervise all the dance sequences and Ernest Shoedsack will direct the story.

It won't surprise me at all if Margaret Callahan is married next week. Simply because Margaret was so emphatic today in saying that there will be no romance for her in Hollywood until she establishes herself as a screen star. Those remarks have preceded so many movie elopements. Margaret, however, may not have long to wait. She takes the top feminine spot immediately opposite Preston Foster in "The Green Shadow." She's just finished with Gene Raymond in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and is doing quite nicely.

Chatter in Hollywood: For six months pretty Jean Chatburn has been playing Billie Burke and Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld." Her performances were in screen tests being made of other players. Today Hunt Stromberg and Robert Z. Leonard were looking at a test for the role of Mary Lou in which Jean was playing Billie Burke as foil to a new applicant. "That girl reading Billie Burke's lines," said Hunt to Bob, "seems ideal for Mary Lou." Bob agreed. Jean is through testing and becomes a principal with Myrna Loy, Luise Rainer and Bill Powell.

Jackie Coogan To Get Million

By Universal Service

Hollywood, Oct. 23—Jackie Coogan, greatest juvenile money-earner of the silent motion picture era, will become of age next Saturday and will get $1,000,000 as a birthday present.

The $1,000,000 is in the form of a trust fund created for him by his father John Coogan who met death with three others last May in an automobile accident of which Jackie a University of Southern California student was the sole survivor.

Arthur Bernstein for years business manager of the Coogan interests disclosed today that Jackie and his mother view the arrival of the youth at his majority with mingled feelings. He said:

"There's always danger. When it becomes known that a young man receives a vast amount of money he becomes a target for unscrupulous persons."

Divorcee Takes Poison

Mrs. Koestanus Grigatut, 46, a divorcee, of B street, South Boston, is in the City Hospital today after swallowing two different kinds of poison. Police said she had quarreled with her daughter.

HOLLAND

MARY Young as Author, Director, Star

By GEORGE HOLLAND

With The Profile far, far away at sea, Miss Barrie has taken it into her brunette head to spend the time between now and the next step of her romance with the famous star in acting.

George Holland

Hence Miss Barrie is in town. Her arrival somewhat dimmed the further interesting news that Mary Young has undertaken to serve in triplicate those of the local theater-goers who enjoy a visit to the Copley Theater.

Miss Barrie will support Miss Young in Miss Young's new play, "Katie Did So What?" As for Miss Young's triplicated capacity in "Katie Did. So What?" it deserves a top place in anybody's theatrical column. The Boston favorite will star in the new play, she will direct it, too, but what is even more electrifying is the news that she is also the author of the play.

Cohan and Coward are the two names that come to mind who have been able to accomplish this feat successfully. If that of Miss Young is added, the first miracle of the new season is close at hand "Katie Did. So What?" will open ten or eleven nights from now and the date will be set very soon.

* * *

In reviewing "Three Men on a Horse," this corner omitted mention of D. A. Doran, the young Irish-American producer who rates highly in the esteem of several of the motion picture companies. Mr. Doran proves his class in the producing field with the show current at the Colonial. It is superbly presented, from every angle.

* * *

Clark and McCullough, who closed recently with "Thumbs Up" have been engaged to star in Earl Carroll's forthcoming "Vanities," and Eliot Cabot, the Boston society lad who forsake the [illegible] few seasons ago, is [illegible] in a new play pointed Broadway.

Alone at Last

BRIAN AHERNE JOAN CRAWFORD

Brian Aherne and Joan Crawford find the path of true love far from smooth in "I Live My Life," which comes to Loew's State and Orpheum Friday.

Blanche Haskell in Recital

By ANN AMES

After an absence of several seasons from Boston concert stages, Blanche Haskell's appearance last evening at Jordan Hall brought a large and friendly audience.

The artist has long been a favorite here, appearing with the Handel and Haydn Society on several occasions, and as soloist at Tremont Temple.

For the serious follower of the best in vocal training, this beautiful [illegible] voice has much to commend it. [illegible] tone quality and [illegible] is above all, always [illegible] handled.

Particularly in the songs from Schubert and Schumann in Korngold's "Mariettas Lied zur Laute" from "Die tote Stadt" and in Ravel's Italian and Hebrew songs, were these splendid qualities apparent.

Never once trespassing against the most exacting in musical taste, the artist's one grave deficiency (and undoubtedly due merely to a matter of projecting the musical content across the footlights) is a lack of warmth and "esprit."

The purist may find few flaws in this facile handling of a more than adequate vocal equipment, yet there is not the emotional depth that such artistry requires to set it apart.

"Way Down East" Tops New Screen Bills

"Way Down East," which has taken its place as one of America's greatest melodramas, comes to the screen at the Keith Memorial tomorrow night at 10 o'clock in a new talking picture version.

Rochell Hudson and Henry Fonda are the young lovers in the famous story, once more finding the path to romance a rocky one down on the farm.

The rustic comedy is in the hands of Slim Summerville, and the remainder of the supporting cast includes Edward Trevor, Margaret Hamilton and Andy Devine.

The regular engagement opens Friday morning.

* * *

At the Keith Boston tomorrow the parade of gala stage productions continues with Benny Rubin, Boston's favorite comedian, as the star of the Red Hot Rhythm revue.

The all star cast has Ella Logan, radio's newest singing sensation, as another of the top attractions, while from Hollywood, Olive and George, tiny stars appearing recently as Major Tom Thumb and his wife in "The Mighty Barnum," are among the other headliners.

Carl Freed and his Harmonic Harlequins are also featured in the elaborate production with the 16 Bebi Barri dancing girls in startling dances in the modern manner.

On the screen, Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler are the comedy stars of "The Rainmakers." The two zanies enter the realm of science in their latest adventures, with pretty Dorothy Lee supplying the romantic interest.

* * *

The Mr. and Mrs. of "Flirtation Walk" are the principals in a romance set against the background of the United States Navy Academy at Annapolis. In the supporting cast are Lewis Stone, Ross Alexander, Dick Foran and John Arledge.

The two theaters also present on tomorrow's program "Harmony Lane," a romance with music based on incidents in the life of the famous American composer, Stephen Foster.

Douglass Montgomery has the role of Foster, and Evelyn Venable heads the cast with him.

Among the fine old melodies sung by Clarence Muse and the Shaw Choir of two hundred voices are "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," and other famous folk songs of the day.

Are you going to move this Fall? There is an excellent selection of apartments, homes and rooms in today's rental columns.

Headliner

JEWISH FUND GAIN TOPS LAST YEAR

Running far ahead of last year's contributions, campaign workers in the Associated Jewish Philanthropies drive for $550,000 open their third day today with a total of $300,212 already subscribed.

Reports of workers at the close of the second day yesterday indicated that $21,774 had been subscribed in the first day of the drive.

This, added to the total raised at Sunday night's opening dinner, brought the fund to the present standing, an increase of $73,383 over returns reported for the first day of last year's campaign.

CAMPAIGN CHALLENGE

Addressing the workers after reports had been made yesterday, Sidney Rabinovitz, general chairman of the drive, declared the campaign was a challenge to raise $100,000 more than last year.

"The outstanding factor," he declared, "is that in spite of some semblance of recovery and with a recognition of help rendered those in need, the Associated must raise $550,000, which is far more than it had been able to raise during the past year.

"It will cost more to run our institutions this year, because of the rising cost of living. In the past two years food and clothing prices have risen 25 per cent and fuel and light 15 per cent.

WOMEN ARE ACTIVE

Gabriel Stern, chairman of the trades organization, declared that three armies of workers have been mobilized for concerted action. They are to be known as the blue, brown and green armies and winning groups will be awarded prizes for best results each day in the drive.

The best report thus far among the workers has been turned in by Joseph Greenberg, captain of the Haberdashers' Team. He has already secured $1731 of his team's $1750 quota and has agreed to try to raise an addition of $1000.

YARD OPEN FOR NAVY DAY

Navy Day will be observed at Charlestown Navy Yard Monday when the reservation will be open for public inspection by visitors from 9:30 o'clock in the morning until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Thousands of school children are expected to take advantage of the opportunity to inspect the ships and shops at the yard.

A feature of the observance this year will be the ceremony of the laying of keels of the two new 1500-ton peace-treaty destroyers, Talbot and Mugford—the last of the six destroyers ordered built at the yard in drydock No. 2.

During the day at various periods the members of the United States Marine Corps, stationed at the yard, will put on an exhibition on the parade grounds.

The destroyers Macdonough, recently returned from a seven weeks' shakedown cruise to Europe, the U. S. S. Tillman, and other ships, including the old historic frigate Constitution, will be open to inspection.

The third annual Navy Reunion Stag will be held on Monday evening in the Navy Yard. Mess call will be sounded at 6 o'clock when the gathering will assemble in the Navy Yard restaurant for the serving of Navy "chow."

After "chow" the gathering will assemble in Building 33, the Sail Loft, where the entertainment will be held. Captain Gay will preside and Rear Admiral Walter R. Gherardi will deliver the address of welcome to the navy men.

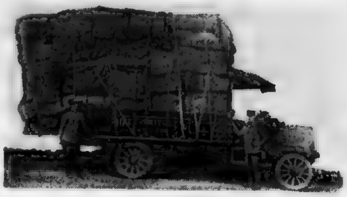
PAINE SCORES ANEW



A quarter of a century after Paine Furniture Company of Park square furnished the Newport, R. I. Hospital, the new addition to the hospital just completed is also being furnished by Paine's.

SABATH TO CALL JUDGES

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

The small town is getting rather hard hit in the news of late. Only a week or ten days ago inhabitants of a small town near Skowhegan, Me., professed to be shocked and surprised at revelations of moral turpitude in the town following discovery of the murder of a little girl by a degenerate. Prosecuting agencies of state and county, aided by women's organizations, pledged themselves to clean up certain immoral conditions, generally considered to be more characteristic of a big city than of a rural township.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Such an idea, says Professor Walter B. Pitkin in his fascinating volume, "An Introduction to History of Human Stupidity" (nearly 600 pages), is erroneous. The small town, he insists, is much worse than the big city, in spite of the fact the city gets all the unfortunate publicity. He continues

"How quickly people forget revelations of the rural slum! Time and again, whole counties have been exposed by wrathful reformers; once it was Vermilion County, Illinois; then it was Putnam County, New York; and again it was Adams County, Ohio.

"Ever the same panorama of stupidity, degradation, disease and general bad smell. Ohio farmers and villagers sell their votes for two dollars—a few impudent fellows demand as high as ten in a close election. Thuggery, blackmail, peonage, witchcraft, hexing, and all the other ways of the anthropoid gone wrong flourish from Maine to Florida.

"No metropolis is a whit more evil than any random collection of hamlets and countrysides having the same total population; and few cities are so evil."

Great Plains Bad Places for Square Meal

And he goes on to tell why this is so.

"Over all other influences, and far exceeding them in scope and vigor, is the old, old natural selection which drives the sensitive, the ambitious, the self-seeking, the quick-moving, and the sociable varieties of mankind off the farm, leaving those who can and will slave away for a pittance in loneliness."

Hardly had we assimilated the idea that the small rural village may be a hotbed of indecency than another commentator brings up what he believes to be the fact, that the American small town furnishes the worst cooking in the world, an opinion which is backed up by no less a person than George Rector, gourmet and restaurateur.

For that also Pitkin has a comment:

"Not merely the tropics but the cool zones furnish underfed and misfed people aplenty. The great plains of Russia, Siberia, and the Americas are probably the worst regions in this respect, for outside of the towns where modern city ways have intruded the diet is both meager and monotonous; black bread, cheese, bad tea or coffee, grease-poisoned potatoes and the like make it up.

"Plainly a creature that can eat everything is in graver danger of unbalance than one that can make away with only a few things. The former may have more opportunities of surviving in a precarious world, but he is more likely to survive as a bilious bellyacher, morose, temperamental, sour, and altogether obnoxious.

"For the more he eats wrongly the more violently his endocrine system is thrown out of gear and that disturbs all his emotions and attitudes. Stupidity in eating thus leads to all-round stupidity. Man ist was err isst (Man is what he eats)."

Hot Dogs Only Safe Bet Along Roadside

I am afraid we have to agree with the learned doctor. Any one who travels much, particularly in small towns and the rural countryside, knows that it is only by accident that he secures a really eatable meal. Fried meats, fried potatoes, canned vegetables (if at all), soggy pie and tasteless coffee are a matter of course.

My family has been so often disappointed and cheated in its food that now upon the road we dare eat little else than government inspected hot dogs at certain chain eating places which we have confidence in.

The average hotel table d'hote is usually a warmed-over horror. By preference we eat at short order places where the food has to be reasonably fresh and cooked for immediate eating. Even there, alas, the frying pan is the chief culinary instrument.

Hickory Stick Is Out

SAYS NEW TEACHER

(It is the great, the leaders of the professions and the masters of the arts, who are usually interviewed on their experienced views on life. But what of the would-be, perhaps will-be leaders and masters? What are their views of the fields in which they intend to spend their lives? Today the Boston Evening American publishes the first interview of a series in which students express their opinions on life.)

"Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic,

Remember the tune?

Even more do you remember your early schooldays?

Well those days are but memories.

The modern schoolma'am has no hickory stick.

But she is equipped with "a knowledge of the subject, with a knowledge of teaching methods, and with sympathy and understanding for children."

That is the belief of Ruth Harding of Stockton Springs, Me., graduate student at the Boston University school of education, a student today who will be a teacher in the near tomorrow.

She says:

"Probably the main fault with the older generation teacher was lack of interest in the student. There was rarely an attempt made to develop the schoolboy for his own sake.

"Of course, I intend to use discipline, but only where necessary, where reasoning and sympathy fail."

This young lady from the Pine Tree State upon being graduated from the University of Maine last year was presented with the 'Portland Alumni Memorial Watch,' an award given annually to the man and woman who have done the most for the university.

Among her varied activities Miss Harding served as president of the All-Maine Women, a judicial board.

She took a vigorous part in field hockey, volley ball, soccer, and tennis. And her favorite sport was and still is, swimming.

Tomorrow's Schoolma'm

Ruth Harding of Stockton Springs, Me., graduate of the University of Maine is now studying for a master's degree in education at the B. U. school of education. She represents the typical tomorrow's schoolma'm. No hickory stick for her, says she. Just tact, understanding, and, where needed, a little discipline.

Surprise for Police, Quincy Mystery Solved

Diver Finds Only a Truck

Cost Too Much, City Said

ARTHUR QUINN RALPH WALLACE FRED WALLACE

Brought Up by Diver

The Boston Evening American today turned over to your police department the 1935 Massachusetts automobile registration plate B15,2

It was removed this morning, by Mr. Fred Wallace of Somerville, an expert diver, from a truck that is at the bottom of 50 feet of water in Fallon's Quarry.

Mr. McDermott's son reports that the truck vanished last Wednesday from a vacant lot parking space and that it was reported stolen to Division 10, Roxbury, Saturday. The owner, it appears, believed it had been borrowed by a friend.

The ignition switch is off.

A thorough search of the car and of the quarry bottom convinced Mr. Wallace that there is no human body in the water.

All these facts, serving to clear up a mystery and set at rest the apprehension that crime or tragedy had occurred at the quarry edge, are supplied to you by the Boston Evening American.

They should have been established by your police department.

The Boston Evening American, acting on a matter of public interest and police disinterest, hired Mr. Wallace to explore the quarry hole after waiting two days for your police department to make up its mind whether or not it would take any action.

Tracks on the edge of the quarry cliff and oil on the cliff face and waters were unmistakable evidence that there was a car in the water.

Precious little interest was displayed by your police force despite the fact that it was only three years ago that another of your quarry holes gave up a car containing the body of a police informer slain by gangdom.

Police Captain Daniel H. Doran said the cost of hiring a diver was too great and that—anyway—nobody could be certain there was a machine in the quarry. Other police officers said the water was 150 feet deep and that diving would be futile.

Understand, Mr. Mayor, that the Boston Evening American does not object to doing police work in the public interest.

Reportorial work and police work often run hand in hand, sometimes the former leads the latter. This paper does believe, however, that it is the duty of the police at least to attempt to set the pace.

Sincerely,
The Boston Evening American

Lawyers' Abuses Seen

ONE GROUP GETS JOBS

Boston federal court judges are to be invited before the Sabath Congressional committee in an effort to correct alleged abuses existing in the appointment of receivers and counsel for financially embarrassed firms.

The committee, which is probing losses suffered by Massachusetts bondholders, reached this decision after learning that the late Roland C. Boyden had been appointed a receiver for the Fisk Tire & Rubber Company and his law firm retained as counsel for the receivers.

Meanwhile today sessions of the committee resumed at the Federal building to hear further evidence of bond defaults in which Boston and Massachusetts investors lost millions.

For the past two days special investigators and witnesses have presented evidence in defaults of real estate bonds in connection with the Metropolitan Buildings, Inc.; The Hotel Bellevue and the Fisk Rubber Company.

Yesterday's session closed with a withering blast by Congressman Adolph Sabath of Illinois against the group of Boston lawyers who he said condoned abuses and financial manipulations here.

Named Own Firm

His remarks were aroused by the statements of Peter Borre, prosecutor for the investigation, after the revelation that the firm of Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins was retained as counsel for receivers of the Fisk Rubber Company after appointment of the late Roland Boyden as receiver.

Orren C. Wood, former head of the rubber company re-organization committee testified that Boyden was appointed a co-receiver at $50,000 a year.

In reply to a question by Congressman Martin Kennedy as to whether Boyden's firm was retained as counsel, Attorney Borre replied:

"Oh, yes, that's a frequent situation here in Boston and Massachusetts. A little coterie of lawyers around here get all the receiverships. They have been getting away with it for two generations. The court, wittingly or unwittingly appoint all from this group."

"It might be well if we invited the judges before the committee," Congressman Kennedy said.

Congressman Sabath [illegible] he would [illegible] the judges before the committee in an effort to correct the [illegible].

Blasts Lawyers

He [illegible] the conclusion of the committee after its two days of hearings, including his [illegible] Boston lawyers. He said:

"One of the unpleasant duties of this committee is to call attention to this situation and try to eliminate the fee racket by which bondholders and stockholders have been robbed.

"I am amazed that Mr. Robert Dodge, chairman of the Bar Association, would condone and approve such practices as have been shown here.

"We are not in Boston to impugn motives or blacken reputations. We hoped to find conditions here which could be held up as an example to the rest of the country.

"We read of Bar Associations holding conferences on crime. If ever there was a crime, it is the financial manipulations which robbed thousands of bond and stockholders of their savings.

"We hope before we get through to eliminate these conferences in judges' chambers and behind closed doors where receivers are appointed.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Annice Brink

The Paul Reveres are beset with problems, all the fault of their ancestor whose evening canter made him famous overnight.

ANNICE BRINK

They give their right name to a traffic policeman, and what does he do but break into robust laughter . . . people at parties think they're being spoofed at introductions . . . and on April 19, Patriots' Day, the Reveres are forced to flee from their fireside and telephone to New York, haven of anonymity.

On the last April 19, in a New York night club, Mr. Paul Revere was the cause of a friend's becoming an impromptu part of the floor show.

So the friend told on Paul Revere.

"Now I have something unique," carolled the master of ceremonies, "to tell you on this April 19. Right here in the audience is Paul Revere! And on his right, Mrs. Paul Revere!"

Whereupon a battle-scarred "Diamond Lil" leaned toward Mrs. Revere, and confided on the wings of a be-ginned breath:

"Isn't it nice, dearie? I'm a Daughter of the Revolution, too!"

Returning by plane from the Florida air races together, they reached a parting of the ways at New York, where the family plane was hangared and the family car was parked. There was a slight debate about who should take which conveyance for the balance of the trip.

Said Ted, concernedly, "Really, I'd feel much better if you'd fly home!"

Full-grown men are apt to become mischievous small boys when they step into the Motohome Colony planted on the Cambridge bank of the Charles by the R. H. White Company.

The colony is a group of striking squarish modern homes, which are transported, ready to be set up, by motor to their chosen sites.

Were they not practically indestructible, the Motohomes might long since have been whittled down to the ground.

It seems that the men can't leave them alone. One grown-up youngster was seen to sway and heave with all his strength, trying to rock a support.

EYE STUDY AND ILLUMINATION CO-ORDINATE

The "Better Vision Institute," trade and professional organization in the optical field, is now emphasizing the importance of illumination in combination with correct vision. Work efficiency under varying stages of seeing ease has been advocated and has now become an established part of eye examination work.

This fact, in combination with the development of commercially practical lamps which produce the nearest effect to daylight yet achieved by lighting engineers, was the "highlight" news at the recent Illuminating Engineering convention held in Cincinnati.

Richard B. Brown, Jr., illuminating engineer of the Boston Edison Company, who attended the convention, said

"The story of 'better light, better sight' is not only lending its value to the home but has aroused the office and factory worker to the importance of eye preservation. It is my belief that eyesight conservation is of such major importance that it ranks with such activities as the long-established movement to prevent and cure tuberculosis.

"Public officials, educators, architects and engineers throughout New England have acquired, through surveys and intimate study, all of the facts on sight-saving."

He cited the new lighting installation at the Theodore Lyman School in East Boston as typical of the manner in which this knowledge is being utilized.

Home-Made Taste Characteristic

One of the outstanding characteristics of the products of Friend Brothers is their truly homemade flavor. This is what brought such wide sale to their famous New England baked beans, later clam chowder and other products

At this time of year when the housewife plans to have plenty of tasty pies for the family, all of the former time and bother consumed in making mince meat may be dispensed with by using Friend's mince meat. It has all the ingredients which old time cooks used, skilfully blended and cooked. A package of this mince meat will be found in the baskets distributed at the Cooking School.

Free Running Is Salt Essential

In cooking or in seasoning dishes that are already cooked, salt that is always free running is essential for satisfactory results.

International salt, a package of which will be in the market baskets to be given out each at the American-Advertiser Cooking School, is noted for its free running quality and has been accepted by the American Medical Association's committee on foods.

FRIDAY "MEAT LOAF"

½ of ½ pound package Borden's American Cheese or "Chateau
2 cups canned lima or kidney beans, baked beans or cooked lentils
1 cup bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Put Borden's American Cheese or "Chateau" and beans through the meat chopper. Add seasonings, and crumbs with a little melted butter or milk to moisten if too dry. Make into a roll and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 45 minutes basting occasionally with melted butter and water. Serve with well seasoned Tomato Sauce. Serves six.

SQUASH PIE

A cup of steamed or baked squash well mashed or forced through a sieve, 1 cup of brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon each of mace and nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup rich milk or cream, 3 eggs beaten without separating and 4 tablespoons of orange juice. Mix all together well and turn into a pastry lined pan, bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set in the center.

Co-operating

EMMA MAURICE TIGHE, director of the Edison Home Service staff, has assigned members of her domestic science organization for daily demonstrations of modern electrical equipment at the American-Advertiser Cooking School. On one of the four days a talk on home lighting will be given by Eleanor D. Masse, Edison home lighting specialist.

PRIZE AWARDS TO SEVEN

Tuesday's session of the American-Advertiser Cooking School brought prize awards to seven guests. Similar distribution is to be made each day of the remaining three days. The fortunate winners yesterday, and the prizes, were as follows:

Good Lunches for School Children

A substantial lunch that includes at least one hot dish is indicated for the school child. A soup or a meat dish with a simple dessert and plenty of milk or hot cocoa will send them back to school with energy restored

GREEN BEAN SOUP

3 tbsp butter
1 pt finely cut green beans
1 tbsp minced onion
1 tsp salt
Dash of pepper
2 tbsp of flour
1 pint boiling water
1 tall can evaporated milk

Melt butter, add beans, onion and seasonings. Cover tightly and simmer until vegetables are tender. Stir occasionally. Do not let them brown. Sift flour over vegetables and add boiling water. Boil until mixture begins to thicken. Add milk and heat. Serve with buttered toast

DRIED BEEF ON TOAST

Tear dried beef into small pieces, being careful to remove all string like fibres. Make a cream sauce and heat the beef in the sauce. Pour over hot buttered toast and top with grated egg yolk

SPAGHETTI ROYAL

1 package Mueller's spaghetti
7 slices lean bacon
2 cans tomato soup
1 small onion, chopped fine
¼ pound snappy cheese

Parboil the spaghetti for seven minutes in four quarts rapidly boiling water to which one tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Panbroil the bacon. Place layer of spaghetti in the bottom of the baking dish, dot with pieces of the minced cheese and bacon, add another layer of spaghetti and continue until used up. Mix the tomato soup and onion and pour over the top. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Macaroni may be substituted for the spaghetti

RICH HOT CHOCOLATE
For 6 Cups

4 heaping teaspoons Benedorp's Cocoa
12 teaspoons sugar

Then add
4 cups milk and bring to a boil
To this add
1 cup evaporated, unsweetened milk. Beat with Dover egg beater before taking from fire. Serve with whipped cream if desired

TEA A POPULAR BEVERAGE FOR HOSPITALITY

"Let's put the kettle on and a have tea!" That is the real symbol of true friendship and hospitality. Tea, the most popular drink in all the world except plain water, has grown from a fad to a custom to a necessity. Probably much of the popularity of tea is due to the fact that people are beginning to realize tea is really more than something that comes in a package, even more than a beverage that tastes good.

Tea is an event, an occasion. It is not only an opportunity to lose the worries of the day, to forget the fatigue of effort, but best of all to chat with friends in a congenial sort of way. Tea seems to have that peculiar faculty of helping people to get better acquainted by bringing them to a closer and more sympathetic understanding. These are only a few of the things that make tea so pleasant and so worthwhile.

Be correct in the few simple details that go to make up the charm of tea drinking. First of all make it correctly. The recipe is simple and easy to follow. Just scald out a crockery tea pot, and while it is warm, put in a teaspoonful of tea for every cup required, pour on fresh boiling water (but be sure it is "bubbling" boiling) and allow it to steep for five minutes. These directions, if quality tea is used, will assure you of perfect tea.

The real goodness of tea depends upon its flavor. Its flavor depends largely upon two things, the elevation at which the plant has been grown and the care exercised in manufacture. Experience has shown that the higher the elevation of the tea garden, the richer the leaf in fullness of flavor

Be discriminating in your choice of tea, for tea, like other foods, varies greatly in quality and flavor. The really successful hostess serves only the finest foods and beverages obtainable. This particularly explains why millions of exacting tea drinkers demand Salada Tea and cannot be satisfied with any other. They have learned to appreciate the flavor, the freshness and the uniformity of this delightful drink.

FHA AIDS HOMES NEEDING OIL HEAT

With repairing and modernization of homes made much easier by the enactment of the FHA, householders may well consider the purchase of a range burner for their kitchen stove. With one of these burners much dirt and labor can be avoided and time saved. They provide far greater control of [illegible] cooking temperatures than is possible with coal.

The Florence Stove Company now offers a complete line of range burners at all prices, available in attractive color schemes harmonizing with modern kitchens.

Florence Range Oil Burners have the complete approval of Underwriters' Laboratories and Good Housekeeping Institute, and are backed by 63 years' experience in the manufacture of oil-burning equipment.

There are also Florence Oil-Burning Heaters in new and beautiful streamline design, that provide beauty and comfort for the modern home. There are circulating heaters that heat, humidify and circulate the air through 3 to 5 open rooms, radiant heaters; garage heaters, and a full line of cabinet heaters requiring no flue.

FLAVORFUL FOOD Whet Appetites

Among the products, which will be sampled at the American-Advertiser Cooking School will be four food items from Old Colony Company of Pawtucket, R. I. These include Old Colony Ginger Marmalade, which contains only pure Canton preserved ginger. It is free from vegetable marrow and other fruit which some marmalades contain.

English style hot mustard sauce is a genuine cooked mustard, which has all the flavor and goodness of real mustard. No pepper, horseradish or other condiments are used. French dressing consist of a blend of over 20 ingredients and is made of the finest salad oil which never gets rancid. The company's Ginger Pancake Syrup can be used on other items, such as ice cream and pancakes and provides a pleasing change from the cloying sweetness of maple syrup.

Making Spuds Mealy

If baked potatoes are split or pricked as soon as they are cooked, they are not likely to be soggy.

PASTRY CAN BE DIGESTIBLE

Miss Edna Ferguson, in her demonstrations at the Cooking School, shows how pastry can be made digestible by the use of proper shortening. Crisco, to be exact. She uses Crisco, the creamy, digestible fat in her cake recipes and in making pie crusts.

Here are directions for making various types of crusts

DOUBLE-CRUST—Two cups flour 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup Crisco, 6 to 8 tablespoons water.

SINGLE CRUST—1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup Crisco, 4 to 6 tablespoons water.

From here on the method is the same—Roll pastry ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured board. For baked shell, cover inverted pie plate. Prick bottom and sides. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes.

TO THE WOMAN WHO HAS NEVER TRADED AT A&P....

WE realize that you are not an A&P customer because you are not familiar with A&P standards of quality; you do not really know A&P service, and you have not enjoyed the economy of A&P buying.

TRY shopping at your nearby A&P this week. See if A&P service differs from what you are accustomed to receive; compare the prices with what you usually pay and note the large variety of choice foods carried on A&P shelves to suggest your daily needs.

BECAUSE A&P stores are grocers to over five million housewives daily, A&P is able to buy in vast quantities, is able to sell at the lowest possible prices.

SEVENTY-SIX years of service to American housewives, starting with one little store and expanding from the Atlantic to the Pacific is the amazing growth of A&P Food Stores. The simple truth is that one satisfied customer tells another.

WHY, SUE, I THOUGHT YOU USED CRISCO ONLY FOR CAKES.
WELL, SINCE I'VE FOUND OUT THAT CRISCO COSTS PRACTICALLY THE SAME AS OTHER SHORTENINGS, I'M USING IT FOR PIES AND FOR FRYING, TOO.

Note CRISCO'S MODERATE PRICE The big thrifty 3-lb. can brings you today's best value in shortening
CRISCO
For Frying For Shortening For Cake Making

WRITES MRS. UGLOW

"I used to think children should be denied many adult foods. But now I've found I can serve Crisco desserts to my five stair steps—and their clear skins and sweet breaths prove good digestions. Before I used Crisco, the children often had night terrors and uneasy slumbers after they had eaten adult food. But not with Crisco!

"Crisco cooking is digestible for grown-ups, too. My husband likes substantial pastries and fried foods. In the past, however, he often had severe indigestion. Crisco cookery has done away with these spells, and now he enjoys his meals without fear of after-effects."

Sincerely,
MRS. FLOYD UGLOW*

Original letter in our files*

MOTHERS! It's a blessing to your kiddies to serve them light digestible things . . . and the simplest and most economical way to lighten your cooking is with Crisco.

Why do you suppose Crisco pastry is so flaky that it just melts in your mouth? And why are Crisco fried foods so crisp—absolutely free from heavy greasiness? Oh, you know why if you've ever made a feather-light Crisco cake! Crisco is the creamed vegetable shortening . . . and it imparts its healthful lightness to everything!

New taste thrills are in store for you when you make cakes, pastry and fried foods with Crisco. They escape that strong "fatty taste" . . . become delicate-flavored. That's because Crisco not only looks creamy, it tastes creamy, too!

Amazing value! Today Crisco is the best value in shortenings. Yes, actually! For instance, the big thrifty 3-lb. size costs only a trifle more than it did a year ago. Imagine that! When other food prices have been going up—up—up! But not Crisco! Ask for the 3-lb. size and save money! See the praise you'll get for your cakes, pies and fried foods.

Now EVERYBODY can afford to use digestible CRISCO for ALL baking and frying

CUT THIS OUT

The INNER MAN

Heavy indigestible food makes a man feel pessimistic. But the men who enjoy these Crisco treats are going to be optimists . . . because they are grand eating—and light—and digestible!

WINIFRED S. CARTER

light as a breeze. That goes for Crisco pastry, too!

FILLING
1½ tablespoons gelatine
¾ cup water
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup water (additional)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1⅓ cups grape juice
1 banana sliced
3 slices pineapple
2 oranges, peeled

Soak gelatine in water. Bring sugar and additional ⅓ cup water to a boil. Remove from fire. Stir in gelatine, then lemon juice and grape juice. Cool. When cold, beat until foamy. Dice pineapple; prepare oranges in small sections. Add to gelatine mixture. When mixture begins to set, pour into a baked Crisco pie shell (recipe below). Chill, decorate with whipped cream and pineapple.

Tender Digestible Pastry: The light Crisco kind! Sift 1¼ cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in ⅓ cup of creamy digestible Crisco (very finely for an extra-tender crust). Add 4 to 6 tablespoons water sparingly. Roll out on lightly floured board—fit pastry in pie plate smoothly—prick with fork. Bake in a hot oven (425° F.) 12-15 minutes.

CHICKEN-FRY DINNER

1 roasting chicken or capon
5 tablespoons Crisco
2 onions, sliced
2 raw carrots, diced
1 cup canned tomatoes
2 whole cloves
⅛ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 teaspoons salt
1 cup rice
3 cups boiling water

Clean chicken, cut into frying pieces, flour lightly. Melt Crisco (light and digestible) in heavy skillet. Brown onions, then remove them. With the same Crisco, pan-fry chicken. Put chicken in middle of large baking pan (with cover). Combine carrots, tomatoes, all seasonings, boiling water. Pour around chicken. Sprinkle in rice (washed and drained) around chicken, also fried onion. Cover pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until rice is tender, about an hour. Remove cover for last 5 minutes.

N. B. The secret of light modern pastry and cakes is light creamy Crisco.

CHERRY CARNIVAL CAKE

a feathery white cake with snowy Crisco

½ cup Crisco
1½ cups sugar
¾ cup milk
2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice or
1 teaspoon almond flavor
4 egg whites

Put Crisco, sugar and ¼ cup of milk into mixing-bowl. Beat till fluffy. (Easy, because Crisco is so fluffy!) Sift dry ingredients. Add alternately with remaining ½ cup milk. Add flavoring. Fold in egg whites, stiffly beaten but not dry. Use two "Criscood" 8-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 minutes.

Cherry Icing: In top of double boiler (over boiling water) put 2 egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup water. Beat with Dover beater 7 minutes while icing is cooking. Remove from heat, add ½ teaspoon almond flavoring. Beat until icing holds shape. Mix ⅓ of icing with ½ cup diced maraschino cherries, also ½ cup chopped almonds. Spread between layers. Cover cake with remaining icing. Decorate with cherries.

3000 WOMEN ATTEND OPENING OF COOKING SCHOOL

Apple Dumplings Win Throng

When more than 3000 women chorus "um-m-m-m," "ah-h-h-h" and "yu-um-m," while their eyes smile with appreciation and their mouths water with anticipation, it's just too bad, says Edna M. Ferguson, that there aren't enough apple-dumplings to go 'round.

Miss Ferguson, nationally famous authority on cooking and home-making, is in charge of the ninth annual Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Cooking School, which opened its four-day session yesterday in the spacious ballroom of Hotel Bradford. This newspaper's own Martha Lee is the gracious hostess at the various sessions.

Nothing if not generous and practical, Miss Ferguson presided in her cross-section kitchen on the ballroom platform, gave the most thorough and easy-to-follow demonstration on preparing a family dinner that a Boston audience has ever witnessed.

Interspersing her directions with crisp, humorous observations Miss Ferguson didn't miss a trick in disclosing to her interested audience of women and not a few well-fed appearing gentlemen the fine art of preparing food that is as nutritious as it is easy on the eye and the palate.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

Outstanding example were the apple-dumplings which this feminine George Rector prepared in full view of her audience. She popped them into the oven and, in less time than it takes to say apple dumpling, popped them out again golden-brown and oozing the fragrance of apple and nutmeg and cinnamon.

The recipe:—

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
Juice of one lemon
1 teaspoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
1-3 cup milk
Nutmeg and cinnamon
Rind of ½ lemon
Vanilla
Sliced apples

Measure and sift the dry ingredients. Cut in the shortening. Add the milk, lemon rind and juice. Roll into a rectangular shape ¼ inch thick. Cut into 5-inch squares. Put 3 tablespoons of sliced apples in each square. On the apple put 1 teaspoon butter, few drops vanilla and 2 teaspoons brown sugar. Wet the edges and draw and pinch them together. Bake at 350 degrees F. till browned. Serve with butterscotch sauce.

BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE

2 cups brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup water
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons butter

Mix the flour and sugar. Stir over a gentle heat until considerable carmelization takes place. Add the water and boil until all lumps disappear. Remove from the fire and add the salt, vanilla, butter and baking powder before serving.

FASHION SHOW

A fashion show, presented by Scott Furriers and featuring gowns and fur coats and an address of welcome by Carl Dreyfus, publisher of the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser preceded Miss Ferguson's demonstration.

Both Mr. Dreyfus and Miss Ferguson stressed the importance of the homemaker in the life of the nation, both spiritually and financially. She it is, it was pointed out, who represents the country's greatest purchasing power and as a consequence, she had better know her budgets as well as her groceries.

And speaking of budgets, Miss Ferguson made it clear that her aim is to include in this four-day homemaking course recipes and meals which are practical, nutritious, economical and easily prepared.

MOTHERS AND BRIDES

"My particular pets," she said, "are the mothers of large families and the bride who must prepare tasteful, nutritious meals at least expense.

"Aside from economic necessity, however, it has been my experience that homemakers, whether they be financially well-fixed or on a slim budget, are tending towards simplifications of meals. The present trend is towards simple, wholesome meals, attractive prepared.

"'Overdressing' of foods, elaborate, fussy meals have become as old-fashioned as excessively ornamented and primped-up women. Simplicity is the keynote to modern dining as well as dressing."

DONE BY MIRRORS

Just to prove it, Miss Ferguson tossed off a flock of Parker House cutlets, made of this and that and minced left-over meat from last night's roast; a harvest salad constructed of finely shredded cabbage, onion, celery, grated raw carrot, minced green pepper and a sliced apple; an oatmeal date shortbread that looked and smelled like a symposium of all the favorite desserts mother used to make, and a dish of tea" that was just right.

As each dish was ready to be popped into the oven of the gleaming green and white enamel electric stove, Miss Ferguson, who is something of a magician in the kitchen, used a mirror to show each and every woman and man in the audience how the finished product looked.

She showed the potential lucky winner of the three-inch tenderloin donated by the First National Stores and 3599 other housewives how best to broil a steak to retain its juiciness and flavor.

She advocated seven minutes of broiling to the pound, turning the steak at every count of ten until it had been properly seared and putting it into the oven only after the broiler grills had been well oiled and the oven was hot.

At the conclusion of the demonstration 25 names were drawn from among the thousands of ticket holders and the bearers were awarded baskets of choice foods. This pleasant procedure will be followed daily throughout the school's sessions.

Co-operating with the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser in making these sessions interesting and profitable are leading manufacturers and [illegible].

We Can't Afford To Win New War

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The League of Nations has sent us its new catalogue in case we want to order anything.

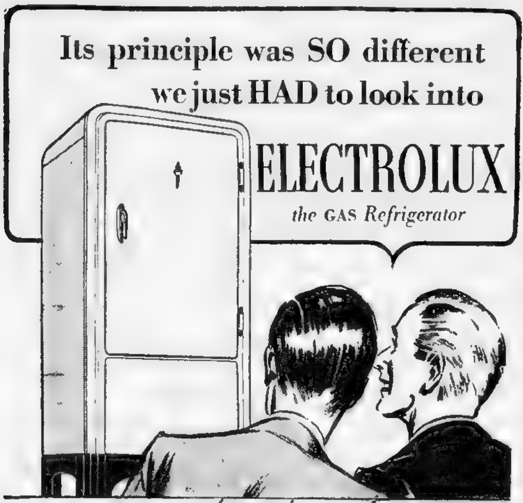
American tourists are advised to be neutral. Don't slap a general on the whiskers if he has his arms with him.

We must stay out of this one. Our books show we cannot afford to win another war.

The League is trying to stop this war by applying sanctions. A sanction is a diplomatic mustard plaster that brings a boil to a head and then tips its hat.

A sanction is like a fellow who can do as well on the dole as he can do on a job. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't.

This is the first time that anybody has tried sanctions. And if a sanction is anything like a peace treaty we had better let this war stop itself.



Its principle was SO different we just HAD to look into ELECTROLUX the GAS Refrigerator

EVERY POINT OF DIFFERENCE OFFERED AN IMPORTANT ADVANTAGE WE WANTED . . . LIKE PERMANENT SILENCE, FOR EXAMPLE
ELECTROLUX HAS NO MOVING PARTS TO CAUSE NOISE OR WEAR, AND THIS UTTER SIMPLICITY OF ELECTROLUX INSURES LOW OPERATING COST, TOO!
BESIDES . . . ELECTROLUX IS GOOD-LOOKING—YOU CAN SEE FOR YOURSELF—AND HAS EVERY WORTHWHILE MODERN CONVENIENCE

TRULY a marvel of modern science, Electrolux differs in basic principle from any other refrigerator. A tiny gas flame replaces all moving parts!

Thanks to this simpler, more efficient operation, Electrolux can offer advantages no other refrigerator can match. In more than 500,000 modern American homes Electrolux is daily proving its outstanding superiorities. This year, it provides even greater economy, beauty and convenience. Blue? Brown? Hazel? Grey? What color eyes has your little boy or girl? It doesn't matter much as long as they are perfect eyes — and as long as you help to keep them so.

How can you help? One way is to provide good lighting in your home . . . This is vitally important. Babies are born with perfect eyes . . . Yet in a few years one in every five children has defective sight. Poor lighting is one of the main causes.

Protect your child's eyes and your own. Use plenty of light, well shaded, free from glare — especially in rooms where reading, studying or sewing is done. Good light is far cheaper than eye troubles.

GLITTERING GIRL

By May Christie

CHAPTER XX

"Why do you always throw the Prince up at me, Mother?"

"Lands sakes alive, girl, do you think you'll ever have a chance like that again?"

"It—it sounds so—sort of designing, Mother. I don't like it."

"Of all the contrary girls, you beat the band, Maggie! What do you think we're spending our money so freely for, and hiring this swell apartment, and putting up a big front—which of course we can afford, but it does seem wicked extravagance—if it isn't to land you properly, and get you set in the marriage your money and—and position demands."

"Position? We haven't any position. I don't want position. I just want to be happy when I marry."

"And why shouldn't you be happy with a handsome fellow like the Prince? Isn't he good looking and young and hasn't he a swell title?"

"He hasn't asked me yet. Time enough when he does to discuss his background."

"My goodness me, you're sure of yourself! And you don't seem to care one bit that other women are after him!"

Vernon sighed. These arguments were of daily occurrence. Her mother was a totally different person from the old Sadie Tyson of Palookah, Texas . . .

"So you insist on ditching the Prince tonight? What am I to tell him?"

"Let him dine with you. Ask Mertina de Bray to take my place."

Mrs. Tyson tossed her head. She was annoyed. "I'm not so sure that Mertina isn't after the chap."

"Well, do anything you want to." Vernon went into her bedroom and donned a gown of hyacinth blue velvet. Down on her russet locks she pulled a turban which was nothing but a band around the brow with a cross-piece of the velvet.

Card From Prince

It was tremendously becoming, with its glimpse of wavy hair across the top of her head. Her gloves were of blue velvet, too, reaching from the knuckles nearly to the shoulders.

"You persist in defying me?" demanded Sadie, who had followed her daughter into the bedroom.

"Oh, don't be melodramatic, Mother. I like Prince Karinoff well enough, but he isn't the only pebble on the beach. So why spoil him?"

Under knitted brows, the mother considered this one. After all, maybe it would make the Prince all the keener if they didn't fall for every engagement he made woth them?

Vernon hunted for a card. She hoped they were from Terry!

But the spidery handwriting of Prince Karinoff was on his card that was surmounted by the Russian eagle and two crowns. He wrote in French: "To her who is sweeter and lovelier than these—with my adoring thoughts."

Vernon had to translate this sweet sentiment for her mother. She did so rather reluctantly.

Sadie Tyson was delighted. She pinned them in the bodice of Vernon's evening dress.

"I'll give in to you this once. Maybe it will make the Prince all the keener. [illegible] they do look beautiful against the blue. I pray heaven he doesn't see you with that other fellow."

Vernon did not care. Because of her mother's unsympathetic attitude to Terry, she was glad she had arranged to meet him in the lobby. There was no saying what queer remark her mother might let slip! Anyhow, her reception of him would probably be most ungracious.

She was glad [illegible] the velvet gown was so [illegible] becoming. It had an adorable little waist length [illegible] with high collar and deep [illegible] fox fur.

Terry's eyes [illegible] with the [illegible] in the center. Without speaking he seemed [illegible] questioning her.

"I do believe [illegible] a date with him [illegible]." And he took her arm possessively and piloted her through [illegible] to the exit.

"And you [illegible] date for you? [illegible] But aren't you [illegible]"

"I am tonight—with you. You look glorious, Vernon."

He helped her into his car. He tucked a rug about her, for the night was chilly.

They dined in the Round Restaurant of the Ritz-Ormond. Everything was perfect. They sat on the balcony. Four waiters hung about their table. Vernon was conscious that among all those beautifully-gowned women, she was looking lovely. And the food was excellent.

She was proud to be seen with Terry Shannon. In his evening clothes, he was extraordinarily good-looking. Once or twice she felt a silly little pang of jealousy go through her as more than one pretty woman bowed and smiled to him.

But he didn't appear the least bit interested in anyone but the girl he was escorting.

Her fresh enjoyment of the occasion stimulated him. "I thought you would be bored, going out every night as you do."

[illegible]

"How about your heavy date, Prince himself?"

To her dismay Vernon found herself blushing hotly. What would he think? Why did she have to tell him that these were the Prince's flowers she was wearing? Why had she boasted of the Prince's message?

There at their balcony table in the Ritz-Ormond, a perverse imp made Vernon inquire of Terry, "Don't you think the Prince is very attractive?"

The corner of Terry's finely cut lips curled. "He seems so to you women. A man's idea might be different."

"You don't like him?" Was Terry jealous? She fervently hoped he was. That would prove that those wonderful kisses had meant something to him . . .

Manners and Man

"Don't you think that nice manners mean anything?"

"To you girls, yes. More often than not they blind you."

"To what?"

"To the real man underneath the flattery."

"Is that so? Wasn't it Shakespeare who wrote, 'Manners maketh the man'?"

"Sometimes they unmake the recipient."

"Well, of all queer things to say." She cupped her chin in her hand and regarded him meditatively. "You think I've lost my head to the Prince just because of a few compliments, and these violets?"

"I hope," said Terry Shannon slowly, "that you have not been so foolish."

Vernon was nettled. "You think he's insincere? You think he has some particular ax to grind in everything he does?"

"Since you force me to reply, I should say it was pretty obvious."

Scarlet flooded her cheeks. Ill-bred though it sounded, she heard herself say, in a stifled tone, "So you think he's after me for my money?"

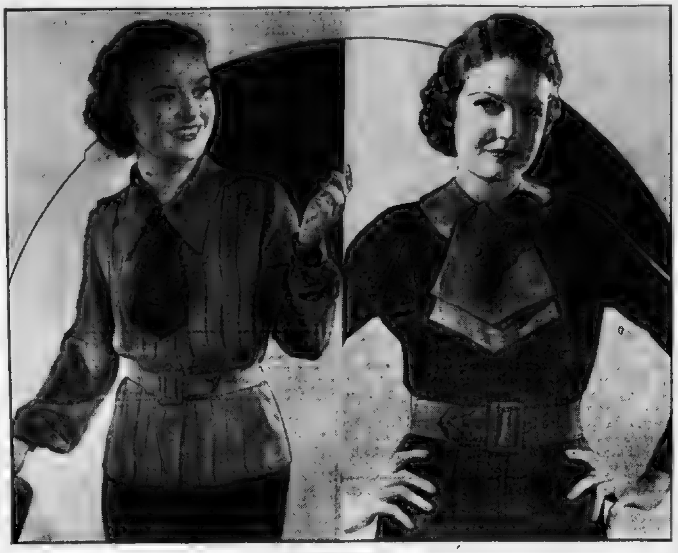
Wardrobe-Doubling Tricks



By ANNICE BRINK

BLOUSES that spell our favorite sweaters must be simply tailored. Here is a (left) that helps stretch the suit wardrobe. It's a great favorite around town, done in beige, rust, white, kelly green, brown, black or navy crepe—and called "The Ratcatcher." The tie is velvet. Pleats down the front are particularly nice. And another smart trick is the set of scarf and belt (right) of metal-shot fabric; to be had in brown, green, rust or blue. Both blouse and scarf-and-belt set are inexpensive; for shopping details, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

Cuffs On Skirt Hems

HAVING BORROWED about everything else from the wardrobe of the protesting male, designers this fall have seized on the cuff as a dashing finish for the austere tailleur.

Some go a step further and add a stitched trouser crease at either side of the skirt in front, thus making it increasingly difficult to determine which member of the family wears the trousers.

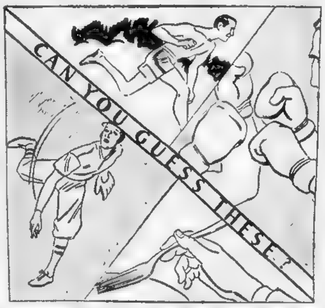
Stage a Jolly Party



CAN YOU GUESS THESE?

GUESSING GAMES TO ENLIVEN YOUR PARTIES

NO, this isn't news from the sporting world.

Have you a secret passion for acting? Are you fascinated by guessing games (who isn't)? Then you'll love charades. And you may be sure your guests will too. This jolly old combination of make-believe and guessing game is hard to beat as a fun-maker.

See what you can do with the words we've illustrated. They're "pitchfork" and "runabout." First you act each syllable. "Pitch" suggests a ball game, so have one of your guests go through the motions of pitching. Other players can be fans. When the players have acted this syllable, [illegible]. Then they come back and do the second one—"fork." This could be an imaginary restaurant scene, with someone dropping a fork and a waiter picking it up. Last of all, you do the entire word, "pitchfork," and this, supposedly, can be a farm scene, with hay being tossed into a barn.

Try This Charade Word

Now for "runabout!" The first scene might suggest running, but if you want to be foxy, "run" could be a run in a stocking. As for "about," our illustration suggests "a bout" in a boxing match. The complete word can be presented by the players running around various objects in the room. Or, if you want to make it difficult, remember that the old two-seated cars were called "runabouts."

Another way of doing charades is to present the whole word at once, with some play upon its meaning. Try doing "Manhattan" (Man-hat-on) this way.

Sweet Potato Delicacies

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

ORIGINALLY a tropical plant, the production of the sweet potato has traveled as far north as Jersey, and the vegetable itself has become a great favorite of Northerners.

In buying sweet potatoes there are two types—the light-colored, mealy-fleshed variety, which are grown in the northern countries, those around here coming from Jersey, and the moist, sweeter and deeper yellow kind, which are native to the southern countries.

These are called yams and are more popular in the South, although a larger quantity have been used around here in the last few years. Beware of sweet potatoes which are bruised for this quality spoils the entire potato.

As far as food value is concerned, the sweet and white potato belong to the same family—that is, they are starchy foods and can be substituted for the other. Do not serve both at the same meal. The sweet potato contains vitamins A, B and C.

They can be cooked in a variety of ways—boiled, baked, fried or mashed. They also make excellent casserole dishes either alone or combined with meat, such as park or ham, or fruits, such as apples, oranges or pineapple.

There are several different ways of candying sweet potatoes. The raw potato can be cooked in a sugar and water syrup. Or the potatoes can be partly boiled and then transferred to a casserole with the following syrup poured over and cooked for an hour or more. One cup of corn syrup boiled with one-half cup of sugar, a little salt and four tablespoons butter until fairly thick.

Another excellent way of candying the boiled potatoes, or left-over sweet potatoes, is to melt two tablespoons of butter in a skillet, add ½ cup of brown sugar and two tablespoons of water. Cook to a syrup and in this saute the cooked potatoes until they are glazed and rich colored.

SWEET POTATOES AND ORANGE CASSEROLE

4 sweet potatoes
2 oranges
¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup honey
1 tablespoon butter

Cook the potatoes in their jackets until tender. Cool and peel. Grease sides and bottom of a casserole dish. Slice a layer of sweet potatoes into the casserole. Sprinkle with salt and brown sugar. Cover with a layer of thinly sliced oranges, peel and all. Continue with these layers until the dish is almost full. Pour honey over all. Top with brown sugar and dot with butter. Bake uncovered one hour in a moderate oven, 175 deg. F. Serves 6.

LONG BLACK wool capes, striped with bands of black Persian lamb with a little round Persian lamb collar seem to be hitting a new high in popularity. The cape goes well with a black wool dress, and Persian lamb belts, with black wool bows, have been designed to go with it.

Monkey fur is also coming into its own, especially with the new black satin evening capes.

HUGH MAKES A STARTLING 'CONFESSION'

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 479

I DID NOT have to wait long to find out what Dicky thought of Hugh Grantland's startling speech concerning the "apology," the "confession" and the "atonement" that he owed us.

Dick's replies, promptly spoken, were the indulgent ones which a humane person uses to one mentally ill.

But there was a chill investing the rapid speech which told me that my husband's ever-present jealousy had found food in these fantastic words of Hugh's.

"You don't owe us anything of the sort," he said heartily, "please don't speak of it again or even think of it."

"But I must speak of it." Hugh's voice took on a high, almost a wailing note. "I am no better than a murderer, and I must tell you about it."

HUGH'S OBSESSION

"What?" Dicky shouted raucously, then added quickly but lamely, "absolute rot!" Then, with an effort he brought his voice back to the soothing intonation he had used before.

"Don't be an idiot old man," he said kindly. "You're ill, overwrought and you're imagining—and talking—a lot of nonsense."

"But I'm not talking nonsense," Hugh exclaimed. "It's all true! I must—"

He was raising himself excitedly on one elbow when Lilian stepped to his side, put him deftly back against his pillows, and laid her fingers lightly but firmly across his lips.

"Hush! boy," she said softly. "I've just discovered what's eating you. Tell me, do you remember what those Chinese said while they were in that basement room?"

"What basement room?" he queried. "And what Chinese? Do you mean the men whom Lee Chow hired to kill Dick because he thought—"

"I thought so." Lilian's fingers which she had lifted from Hugh's lips went back again to silence his wild babblings.

LEE CHOW INNOCENT

"For the moment you've lost all memory of what's been happening since you were brought back here wounded. I imagine that medicine that Dr. Braithwaite gave you to brace you for the ordeal is partly responsible, and that you'll be all right once it wears off. But now I want you to listen to me. And here it is in a nutshell. Lee Chow had nothing whatever to do with that shooting of the Dicky-bird. Those men confessed to that while you and Dicky were both in the basement listening. Lee Chow is as innocent as the babe unborn—or any other outworn simile you may prefer."

I knew that she purposely had finished her story upon a lighter note in the hope of relaxing the tense, agonized gaze which Hugh Grantland's eyes were fixed upon her. I could see that look from beneath my lowered eyelids, but I did not dare openly glance toward the wounded man. Nor did I dare look at Dickey, though I felt that I should shriek aloud if he did not soon say something which should bolster what Lilian was saying.

Then it came, the one thing needed to complete Lilian's story, a low, apparently amused chuckle from Dickey as he bent over the couch and put a reassuring hand upon Hugh's shoulder.

"You sure must be dazed, old man," he said, "if you don't remember that basement session. And now that it's cleared up, don't you think you would better forget these nightmares of yours and go to sleep?"

Mannish Suits

MANY of the tailored suits of the season are going in for double-breasted lines, with notched lapels and a general air of simulating the young man about town.

The "Clark Gable" back is out, and perfect fit with no bunches, pleats or gathers about the shoulders is the order of the day.

Fabrics are varied and colorful, ranging from the sober men's wear twills and worsteds to new and vivid tweeds.

And for more formal wear, there are silky broadcloths and velvets, sumptuously trimmed in fur.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Fiance Dislikes Her Little Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I'm 26 years old, and have been recently divorced from my former husband who is 52.

I have two children—a boy and girl.

I'm engaged to a man of my own age, who is charming and a gentleman. He likes my little son, but seems to hate the girl. He calls her names and does not want to hear her voice or have her at the table at mealtimes. He wants me to give her to my former husband, but I know she would not be safe with him, because she is only five years old.

PUZZLED.

If you'll forgive me for saying so, my dear correspondent, your ideas of being charming and a gentleman impress me as peculiar. How could a charming gentleman be so brutal to a little girl of five? Doubtless you read in the papers a little while ago how a stepmother murdered her stepchild for one of those nameless aversions. It seems the child didn't eat her lunch fast enough. I hope you'll reconsider your decision of marrying a man who presumes to treat one of your children that way.

IS SHE OLD ENOUGH?

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I'm 19 years old, but so short that I do not look my age. A boy of 21 has asked me to go out with him. I have been invited several times before, but my mother and father wouldn't hear of it, and never give any real reason.

Finally I put the question to them, and they have the silly excuse that I was too young, didn't look my age even if I were old enough. Do you think height should have anything to do with accepting an invitation from a boy?

ANXIOUS GIRL.

This is the first time I've ever heard of height being considered in the question of dates. If the young man is desirable, I cannot see any objection to a girl of 19 going out with him. As I've said so often in this column, it seems to me the wiser course for parents to encourage their daughters to invite their young men friends to the house so that they can look them over.

Many an unhappy marriage might never have been made if parents had taken the trouble to become acquainted with their daughters' friends. To do otherwise is to run that greater risk of having your girls meet young men on the [illegible]

FORMAL DEMI-TOILETTES

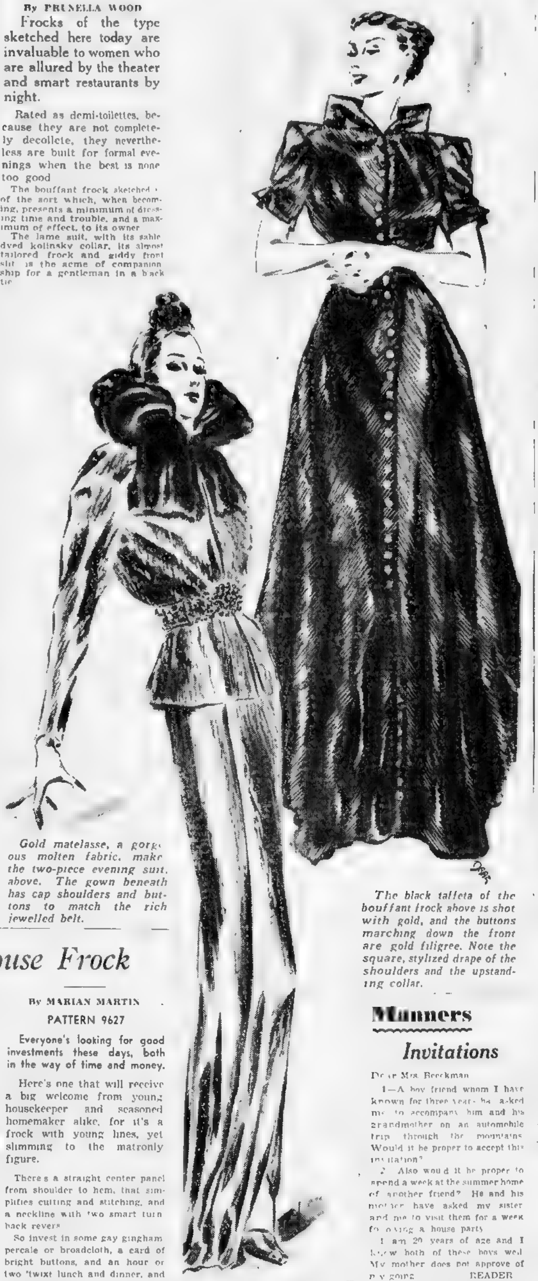
By PRUNELLA WOOD

Frocks of the type sketched here today are invaluable to women who are allured by the theater and smart restaurants by night.

Rated as demi-toilettes, because they are not completely decollete, they nevertheless are built for formal evenings when the best is none too good.

The bouffant frock sketched is of the sort which, when becoming, presents a minimum of dressing time and trouble, and a maximum of effect, to its owner.

The lame suit, with its sable dyed kolinsky collar, its almost tailored frock and giddy front slit, is the acme of companionship for a gentleman in a black tie.



Gold matelasse, a gorgeous molten fabric, make the two-piece evening suit, above. The gown beneath has cap shoulders and buttons to match the rich jewelled belt.

The black taffeta of the bouffant frock above is shot with gold, and the buttons marching down the front are gold filigree. Note the square, stylized drape of the shoulders and the upstanding collar.

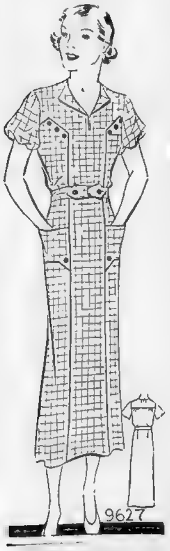
Tailored Suits Go Military

THE MILITARY URGE is seen in perfectly fitted tailleurs, usually with high trim military collars, double-breasted fastenings, fitted and belted waistline, and braid or frog trimming.

A more formal variation of the mode is seen in the dressy town suit of [illegible] with fitted jacket [illegible] of Persian lamb. It has the big military collar, wide belt at the waistline and a matching muff.

Equally effective is the cloth suit in smooth woolen often in high renaissance colors, with double-breasted braided frog fastenings, high turn-over collar and slim skirt slightly flared. And of course, there's always the classic tailleur of men's wear suiting, tailored to give you broad shoulders and a slim waist.

Youthful House Frock



By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9627

Everyone's looking for good investments these days, both in the way of time and money.

Here's one that will receive a big welcome from young housekeeper and seasoned homemaker alike, for it's a frock with young lines, yet slimming to the matronly figure.

There's a straight center panel from shoulder to hem, that simplifies cutting and stitching, and a neckline with two smart turn back revers.

So invest in some gay gingham, percale or broadcloth, a card of bright buttons, and an hour or two 'twixt lunch and dinner, and you'll have something nice to show.

Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included.

Pattern 9627 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 36-inch fabric.

It pictures dozens of easy, thrifty ways to make up lovely new fabrics—in smart fall and winter clothes for your whole family!

Use Care in Treatment Of Ears

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Too often, especially in childhood, it is accepted as something trivial and is treated by home remedies.

As a result, in many instances, serious and permanent damage results from unscientific treatment of this delicate organ.

In spite of repeated warnings, children and adults, too, continue to insert foreign bodies, such as needles, hairpins and even safety pins into the ear. The adult will do this in an attempt to relieve itching or to remove wax from the ear canal. Children resort to this practice, making a playhouse of the ear.

CAUSES DEAFNESS

A child will poke a pea, bean, bead, stone or piece of chalk into the ear canal. The parent is not told and the child does not complain of pain until some time later. Many cases of temporary, as well as permanent deafness can be traced to this accident.

It is dangerous to allow any foreign object to remain in the ear. But it must be removed with extreme care and gentleness. Always have a physician do this as he has the necessary instruments for removing the object without hurting the ear-drum.

An excessive amount of cerumen, wax, in the ear, is another common annoyance. Bear in mind that when wax hardens it becomes impacted, and then acts as a foreign body. Never try to remove wax from your own ear. There is always the possibility of doing real harm. Like a foreign body, it should only be removed by one trained in this work.

DELICATE STRUCTURE

Never pick or fuss with the ear or place any sharp or blunt instrument in the ear passage. Remember that the ear is a delicate structure and can easily be damaged. This damage may lead to impaired hearing and even profound deafness.

Let me warn also against self-treatment of inflammations of the ear. Such inflammation, medically termed "otitis media," often follows exposure to cold. Sometimes it can be traced to infected teeth, nasal sinuses or tonsils.

The sufferer complains of pain in the afflicted ear. The pain is increased by movements of the jaw in eating and talking. At times there may be difficulty in hearing, as well as dizziness and ringing in the ears.

Never resort to home remedies or medicines unless first advised by your doctor. Neglect of what appears to be a simple infection may lead to prolonged ear discomfort and permanent damage.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Q—Is there any way of curing a person of the habit of smoking?

(Copyright, 1935, K. F. S., Inc.)

A Reader. Q—Will lysol, diluted in water, clear the complexion?

A—I doubt it. If you have blemishes on the face, improve your general health and watch your diet. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Manners

Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—A boy friend whom I have known for three years has asked me to accompany him and his grandmother on an automobile trip through the mountains. Would it be proper to accept this invitation?

2. Also would it be proper to spend a week at the summer home of another friend? He and his mother have asked my sister and me to visit them for a week following a house party.

I am 20 years of age and I know both of these boys well. My mother does not approve of my going.

READER.

1. If the grandmother herself gives you a direct invitation and if your mother approves, this would be a thoroughly proper thing for you to do. But you shouldn't think of accepting on only this boy's invitation.

2. If your mother doesn't approve of you and your sister accepting this invitation, she probably has some reason for her disapproval, and no outsider could pass judgment on that.

Cream Flecked with Gold

By Arline Gould

THIS YEAR we are to have our first go at grandeur.

The metallic note has swept the land, and gold and silver, lovely ladies, are everywhere.

Real 14 karat gold dust is in the air, in the new clothes, in the very cream and powders that you will soon be using on your faces.

If you have any inhibitions as to the giddiness of gold in cosmetics, see how triumphantly it is being used this year in an extraordinary new face cream.

The use of gold in beauty care dates back many centuries—to the time when Helen of Troy and other devastating ladies of her ilk discovered the ritual of mixing gold with wine as a beauty lotion.

It remained for modern science to find a method for developing the real beneficial qualities of gold, however. This was accomplished just recently, when, after years of experimenting, a new process was found making it possible to prepare gold in the form of millions of infinitesimal atoms.

Just to get the low-down on the whole gold situation we trotted over to a down-town store where this cream is being shown. We were amazed to find that it acts in the same manner as a magnet—actually dislodging every trace of dirt, waste and make-up from the pores, and bringing them to the surface of the skin.

Don't ask us how this works because, frankly, we don't know. However, for those of you interested in the purely scientific action of the cream, may we say that gold possesses a negative electrical charge, while dead tissue, dirt and pore impurities possess a positive charge.

So it would seem that in this way the negative charge attracts the positive and carries it away with it. (We love to think of blackheads and other poisonous excretions being made off with in this manner.)

POSED BY VIRGINIA BRUCE.

A cosmetic house that for a half century has been keeping generations of faces young, is sponsor for this extraordinary discovery. They not only stand back of a promise of new skin health but offer actual cases where patients in clinics were cleared of skin infections through the use of gold in creams.

To learn the name of this cream which dermatologists say will insure a flawless, lovely skin call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Insuring the Contract

IT IS usually worth about 500 points to bid and make a game; sometimes it is worth even more.

When there is any chance of failing to make a game which you have bid, you should look for precautions to safeguard your contract against unexpected distributions of the cards.

If by playing safe you miss a chance to make an overtrick, do not have any regret. The overtrick is worth only 20 or 30 points and you will never notice the loss when you score a game worth 500.

Albert H. Morehead is a specialist on plays of this kind, and will take time out on some hands which are apparently uninteresting in order to work out some line of play which makes his contract sure. These plays may prove unnecessary, but they are often brilliant. For example, Mr. Morehead's method of playing the hand below saved him a game which would have been lost had he played less carefully. Since winning the game meant also winning the rubber, Mr. Morehead paid 30 points for insurance and collected nearly 700.

The bidding

South	West	North	East

3 ♢	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠ (1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Despite his four-card spade suit South [illegible] play the hand [illegible]. A four-spade contract is equally safe, since the diamond suit is probably solid and will furnish as many discards as South needs.

West opened the Queen of clubs. In planning his play of the hand Mr. Morehead, who was South, saw that if the spades were divided 3-3 he could win eleven tricks, and even if they split 4-2 he could take the ten tricks he needed—three spades, two clubs and five diamonds.

There was danger, however, that if all the spades did not drop on the third lead one of the opponents would trump the second or third round of diamonds and cash three hearts.

It was desirable to save a trump in dummy until South was in a position to draw all the trumps and then run his diamond suit. Then the third round of hearts could be ruffed in dummy.

Mr. Morehead's solution of the difficulty was to win the opening club lead with dummy's Ace, lead a small spade, and finesse the ten.

This lost to the Jack, but now West could win only two heart tricks and shift to a club. South took the club King, drew the three remaining trumps from West's hand, played out the diamonds, and discarded his heart and club losers. He made the game which he would have lost had he tried for an overtrick by leading the top trumps at once.

The Eighth Woman

WHY SHE IS ALWAYS HERSELF

ALL women are not born "free and equal," Nature being what it is. Many readers of this newspaper know this to their sorrow. A woman's days are not all alike. There are difficult days when some women suffer severely.

There didn't used to be anything to do about it. Eight million had to suffer month after month. Today, a million have accepted the relief to be had from Midol.

As a rule, it is a knowing woman who keeps that little aluminum case tucked in her purse. One who knows what to wear, where to go, how to take care of herself, how to get the most out of life. That "eighth woman" who has learned to rely on Midol!

Are you a periodic sufferer? Midol might spare you such pain. And even though it didn't make you perfectly comfortable, you would receive relief well worth while!

A smart woman doesn't try every pill or tablet somebody says is good for periodic pain. But Midol is recommended by specialists. It can form no habit because it is not a narcotic. Taken before the time it often avoids the pain altogether. But Midol is effective even when the pain has reached its height. It's effective for hours, so two tablets should see you comfortably through your worst day.

Any drugstore has these tablets. Or, a card addressed to Midol, 170 Varick St., New York, brings a trial box free and postpaid, plainly wrapped. Do you wish one?

Two Shots in the Night!

Death and Maiming Follow Strange, Cowardly Attack!

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Publication of your story may be delayed a bit while Floyd is in the war zone, because of the time it takes his mail to reach him. Floyd asks all his adventurers to "be patient with a hard workin' feller."

HELLO, EVERYBODY—

Walter Northrop of 10 George street, Tenafly, N. J., has a garage. Perhaps you've helped yourself to gas at Walter's place and as you wiped off your own windshield and paid Walter perhaps you wondered how he came to lose the use of his legs. Here's the story.

FLOYD GIBBONS

November 15, 1919! The war is ended! Camp Merritt—near Walter's town—is filled with impatient soldiers, waiting to be demobilized.

Walter had a good job in those days and was commuting to New York daily. His future seemed assured when a coward's shot changed it all.

It was in the evening. Walter took a walk toward the station to pass the time away and at the station was hailed by an old friend of his. The friend was a taxi driver in Tenafly named Edward Snedeker. He had a soldier in his cab who had asked to be driven to Pearl River. Edward wanted company on the lonely ride back.

"Come on," the taxi driver said, "I'll take you for a ride."

Walter climbed on the front seat with the driver, little thinking of the tragic prophecy in back of that invitation. Walter climber into the fatal cab a strong, healthy boy. He came out a hopeless cripple! Edward, the driver, started with a joke on his lips. He came back a corpse!

The taxi fare, an unkonwn man in uniform, said he was on his way to meet his sweetheart at Pearl River. The girl could not be found and the man in uniform then asked to be driven to Edgewater Ferry. It was eight-thirty. Darkness had fallen. The road was deserted but neither Walter nor Edward had any thought of danger.

"Wait a minute," he said, "I've dropped my hat."

On went the brakes and the cab came to a quick stop in the shadow of the trees. The man in uniform got out. He stood beside Edward. He had his hand in his pocket.

"How much do I owe you?" he asked.

"Ten dollars," the driver answered.

The man in uniform smiled evilly. He brought out his hand from his pocket as though to pay. There was a flash and a terrific explosion. Edward slumped forward over the wheel, blood pouring from a gaping wound in his temple. Walter started up in horror and the murderer calmly turned his pistol on him.

There was another flash and explosion and Walter felt a crashing blow in the middle of the back. He sank to the floor of the taxi unconscious.

Walter came to the next day in the Englewood hospital. It was a sad awakening. Edward dead. He had passed away in the night from a bullet wound in his head. And Walter lay paralyzed from the waist down—from a bullet that had shattered his spine and severed the nerves that governed the action of his legs.

That was twenty long years ago, and Walter is still paralyzed. His case is hopeless, the doctors say. But Walter is not bitter.

"If this story should be printed," Walter writes, "I hope it reaches the eyes of the man who committed this crime and that he realizes what a dreadful thing he did."

I'll go farther than that, I hope the man who committed such an atrocious crime for such an insignificant cause will some day be caught and punished. Perhaps you adventurers reading this can help bring him to justice. Here's how you might do just that.

A man who would commit a cowardly murder like this one would be very apt to be the type to boast about it. However, in his boasting he would certainly give himself a more heroic role and would probably refer to the whole thing as a "fight" in which he came out victorious.

Now if you have ever happened to hear of any ex-soldier bragging about a pistol fight in the vicinity of Edgewater Ferry or anywhere around Camp Merritt, get in touch with the Chief of Police of Tenafly, N. J.

Your man might be innocent, but I'd sure like Walter Northrop to get a look at him. Twenty years is a long time, but that's exactly why the murderer or his friends may talk about it—feeling that the criminal is now safe.

And, boys and girls, while you are working as G-Men for the Adventurers' Club, why don't you sit right down and send me in that true adventure of yours? I've still got plenty of ten-dollar checks for stories used, and there's still a big one-hundred dollar bill for the best story of the month.

Tomorrow I'll give you a new thriller. It's "Soft Shoulders," a motoring adventure, by MRS. GEORGE MIRON BICKFORD of 53 DUNFEY STREET, LOWELL.

Floyd Gibbons, famous war correspondent, author and adventurer, wants YOU to collaborate with him in writing the story of YOUR most thrilling moment. Floyd believes that everyone has had at least one hair-raising adventure. He is bringing the adventurers of Boston together in a city-wide Adventurers' Club, and he wants YOU to become a member. You can join simply by sending your adventure story in to Floyd. And the only membership fee is the $10 that Floyd pays YOU for every story he prints in his column. YOU can win prizes for your story, too. For details, see next column.

HOW TO WIN $100.00

Advice to 'Eskie,' On Becoming Sport Dean At Lafayette

Austen Lake

As an old 'Fayetter with waffle-ridges and cleat-pits on his person from old football wars in the Lehigh Valley, I am doubtful whether to congratulate or commiserate "Eskie" Clark of Harvard on his new job as Athletic Dean at the Easton, Pa. institution.

Eskie, with his shining ideals and purist training, is going forth to battle in the land of athletic heathen, where for years the lads braided the hair in their ears, slept in the trees and opened tin cans with their thumbnails.

I don't know how things are at Lafayette now. I hear the college is on a moral backswing with a flock of pinafore-kids playing beanbag football and taking their lickings from rival teams which were so much caviar to the barbarians of the older day.

It is a little saddening that schoolboy squeeks have replaced the jungle roars that used to bend the bushes—and blow in windows for miles around.

Possibly Eskie is hired to fumigate the reek of body smells that the old whiskery ruffians left behind, and, maybe, spray the college with an odor of sanctity.

I would not know. But his job will be made a little harder when the hordes of old boys come stamping back for June reunions, a-thumping their breast-bones and biting off the doornobs along Northampton street.

* * *

Clark's Heroic Role

I THINK IT ONLY FAIR to forewarn Eskie about this, lest he be embarrassed when a grizzled giant comes in for a freshman application with a mine lamp in his hat. For the old Lafayetters have a way of sending their baby brothers to the maternal hill, which is a high cliff, studded with jagged boulders, where we used to fling the bodies of the Lehigh scholars after the annual game.

I am thinking, too, that old Pete Maxfield, who used to scratch his back on the grill-work over the college gate, ought to have a son rising entrance-age about now.

It used to be a sight to see Old Pete lighting his pipes from sparks gnashed from his teeth, his chest-fur burgeoning from his open shirt and his shoulders looking like he had a pair of derby hats shoved up his sleeves.

He was a lineman who never dared to tackle an opponent except with thumb and forefinger, lest he be held up for manslaughter. Well I recall the time he reached for a Pennsylvania halfback named "Nig" Berry, crooking his forefinger in the lad's jersey neck and stripping him naked like shucking an ear of corn.

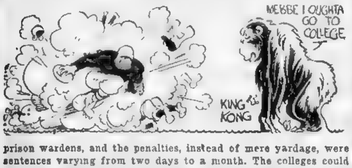
* * *

The Big Game in the Brave Day

I DON'T KNOW HOW ESKIE is going to find the Lafayette-Lehigh game now, because Lehigh has suffered a malignant case of sissyism on the late years, and the boys who used to scratch matches on their sandpaper chins and split the interference with their jawbones, are just legends that live in the yellowing photographs which line the walls of Taylor gymnasium.

But in the old day the boys came on the field wearing stove lids for thigh-pads, and coal scuttles under their helmets and dusted their hands with steel filings instead of resin.

The game officials, who always wore diver's suits, were usually prison wardens, and the penalties, instead of mere yardage, were sentences varying from two days to a month. The colleges could spare the athletes following the game, since the season was over anyway.



MEBBE I OUGHTA GO TO COLLEGE
KING KONG

The local chapters of the state militia used to border the field, their fixed bayonets forming a picket-fence and keeping the rival student-hordes from storming down from the slopes and assaulting each other with kitchen utensils and spare auto parts.

This always came later with the home side escorting the visitors to the station under a shower of bottles, garbage and cobblestones. So that on the day of the big game the merchants of Easton and South Bethlehem always barricaded their store-fronts with sandbags and rolltop shutters, like Paris during the World War.

* * *

He's Safe Until Next June

TIMES HAVE CHANGED. I don't think Eskie is going to have much trouble with the modern Lafayette breed, boys with smooth skins and fetching lisps who say "Ma'am" to the ladies and don't forage among the hen-roosts of neighboring farms.

The Lafayette lads now, I hear, are much like the college type anywhere else who wash their necks with a cloth instead of emery paper. They wear shoes, I hear. And they are not padlocked in their cells after dark.

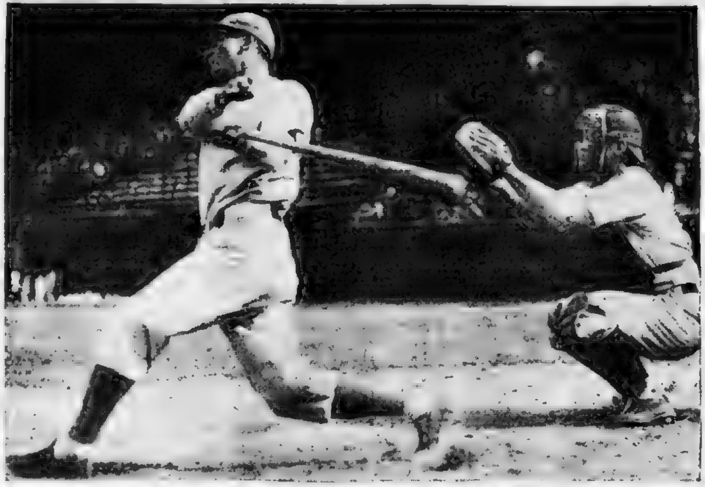
That will be class reunion-time next June. Then I think that Eskie and newer members of the college faculty had better pull up the portcullis and lock themselves in the college safe.

Not being used to Harvard men, the shaggy alumni might want to handle him and poke their fingers into his person to see if he is made like other men. And, being sensitive to cultured ways, they might take it amiss if he did not drain a butter-churn full of Pilsner at a single draught, as is the old custom.

As an added suggestion, it might be a good idea if Eskie invited Dan O'Mahoney down as his house guest and male companion next June.



Johnny Marcum, a feather-limbed Kentuckian who showed a world of promise in his first full season with the Athletics, will also don a Red Sox uniform for next season's American League festivities.

Jimmy Foxx, hero of Connie Mack's "great experiment" last season, when the husky star was shifted to catch for the Athletics, is to perform at Fenway Park next summer. Foxx, a super-slugger who soared to fame at third and first, showed plenty of ability as a catcher. His right-handed wallops will produce plenty of extra base hits for the edification of Boston's fans.

Mat Results

New Haven—Joe Savoldi, 200, Twin Oaks, Mich., won over Karl Schultz, 210, Germany, when the latter was disqualified for foul tactics in 21:32. Irish Jack Donovan, 220, Boston, threw Dick Raines, [illegible], Texas, in 30:52.

Peoria, Ill.—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, 240, Los Angeles, defeated Olaf Olson, 255, Sweden. One fall.

Kerr Makes Four Shifts in Lineup

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 23 (AP)—Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate's football team worked today with a lineup in which he has made four changes.

Red "Wop" Lafferty was at left halfback in place of Ike Kern, George "Quo" Vadas replaced Albie Burke at quarterback and Kerr used Whit Jaeger and Wallie Wilson at right halfback and Bob Renike at left tackle ahead of Ken Reives.

The new varsity did fairly well in scrimmage yesterday. Bull Irwin remained at fullback, but when Kerr sent in Joe Fitzpatrick and Ed Lalor they seemed just as effective as Irwin.

Boxing Results

St. Paul—Charley Retzlaff, 194, Leonard, N. D., outpointed Fred Smith, 209, Kalispell, Mont. (10); Petit Larrace, 174, Des Moines, Iowa, outpointed Lew Thomas, 169, Indianapolis (6); Paul Lee, 125, Indianapolis, and Mickey Walker, 129½, Davenport, Iowa, drew (6).

Tucson, Ariz.—Hank Bath, 166, Fort Morgan, Colo., knocked out Terry O'Brien, [illegible], Tacoma, Wash. (3).

B. U. Mascot Fund Drive Nears Goal

Boston University's student campaign to obtain funds for a new Boston terrier mascot has almost reached its goal.

The idea, sprung upon the students last week, to get Danny II as successor to the late Danny I, has brought dozens of offers.

The first offer was ill-fated. A freshman student declared intentions of bringing in his own four-year-old terrier. He returned the following day to report that the very night he made his offer the dog was killed in an automobile accident.

Several dozen letters and pictures have been received by the committee.

Red Sox Pennant Bound With This Quartet

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service)

Yawkey and Mack Close Deal for 4 Players

By AUSTEN LAKE

Leaving behind the persistent reports that the Red Sox have closed a deal with the Philadelphia Athletics where Pinky Higgins, Jimmy Foxx, Johnny Marcum and Roger Cramer will come to Boston next spring, Owner Tom Yawkey, and his park manager, Eddie Collins, today were encamped outside of Lewiston, Me., for a week of hunting.

Before departing at 8 o'clock this morning, Yawkey said he and Collins had met Connie Mack in New York last Saturday and proposed a purchase of an unnamed group of players for an unnamed sum of money.

What is probable is that Yawkey is treating for Higgins, a third baseman and Pitcher Johnny Marcum, with Foxx's fate still in the balance. Recently Yawkey and Collins told the writer that their policy henceforth was to buy young, upcoming players rather than veterans of the major leagues. He added:

"If we are going to spend the kind of money named in the Foxx stories, we will spend it on unseasoned men."

At the time Yawkey said he "doubted that he was interested in Foxx at any price," a statement to which Collins nodded his head vigorously.

Yet decisions at Fenway Park have fluctuated so much during the tenure of the new owners, that what might seem to be one thing today becomes something else tomorrow.

The Red Sox undoubtedly will pick up Foxx if at a right price. But their pennant prospect is not founded on the purchase of additional infield and outfield strength so much as new pitching power.

Foxx in Wrong

Foxx has just finished a bad year with the Athletics and is in bad grace with the Philadelphia fans. Connie needs liquid cash to meet club and player obligations. So that he is, undoubtedly, willing to give up his slugging first baseman at a favorable figure, especially as Foxx is getting no younger and his investment will not appreciate.

The only other club, beside the Red Sox, which might be in the market for Socking Jimmy, and who have the cash to pay, are the Chicago White Sox.

But Connie Mack's close affiliation with Collins, his ex-assistant, insures that the Boston club will have first choice on the sale figure. Hence all straws point to Jimmy coming here.

Red Sox Get $9934

Chicago, Oct. 23—The Boston Red Sox received $9934 as their fourth place share of the World Series receipts.

Cub and Tigers cut up the biggest melon in history which accounts for the large fourth place share of the Boston and Pittsburgh teams.

Each of the Detroit players got a check for $6544.76. The Cubs' share—$4198.52 to each player—was held up pending fines to be imposed upon Manager Charles Grimm, Captain Woody English and Shortstop Bill Jurges.

Selections Made for Fast Track

BEST BET—BLADE EDGE

Narragansett Park, Oct. 23 — Regardless, clever plater from the stables of Mrs. A. M. Creech, is this observer's choice to cop major honors in the feature $2500 added Wampanoag Claiming Stakes.

For a best bet, string along with Blade Edge in the one mile and 70 yards of the seventh stanza. This plater has won his last three races in a row.

FIRST RACE

Ophelia, My Date, Jacksnipe

OPHELIA is drop[illegible] down a few pegs and looks [illegible] winner in this $2[illegible] bottom affair. Those [illegible] forts at Suffolk go for the old gent that manicures the morgue. MY DATE just missed drubbing Dr. Traprock last time. She figures close up on the strength of that performance. JACKSNIPE displayed high speed in recent Agawam races.

SECOND RACE

Armful, Lt. Greenock, Two Edged

ARMFUL needs only to duplicate any one of her good Suffolk races in order to be returned the winner here. She [illegible] the speed of the party and should [illegible] from flag-fall to [illegible] LT. GREENOCK is [illegible] pounds. He is the main [illegible] TWO EDGED was a surprise winner last time [illegible] chance on that [illegible]

THIRD RACE

Heedless Gal, Idle Along, Miss Purray

HEEDLESS GALS last two efforts were corkers. She drubbed General Pulaski and other good ones last time. In front of that she was a smashing second to W[illegible] IDLE ALONG was the runner-up to Granny's Trade in her most recent endeavor at [illegible] MISS PURRAY raced well at Agawam.

FOURTH RACE

Bull Market, Guiding Light, Foreign Lady

Just can't go past BULL MARKET in searching for the winner here. This plater barely missed last time out. Any sort of a track suits. GUIDING LIGHT has some class and appears next best. She finished third in her most recent start at Empire City. FOREIGN LADY is unreliable, but she holds a royal chance of best races.

FIFTH RACE

Regardless, Royal Blunder, Allen Z

REGARDLESS' recent third to Beefsteak and Some Pomp was a corker. Since then he has worked a mile in 1 41 and will be coming up on razor edge. ROYAL THUNDER is heaps better than recent form will attest. He may come to life. ALLEN Z figures close up.

SIXTH RACE

Chief Mourner, Don Manuel, Semaphore

CHIEF MOURNER was out-matched in his most recent Suffolk endeavor and that effort may be tossed into discard. In a previous engagement he turned in a bang-up second to Knave. DON MANUEL placed in a swiftly run dash last time. In front of that he was a clever winner over this same [illegible] SEMAPHORE is dropping down.

SEVENTH RACE

Blade Edge, Rhodius, Ceylon

BLADE EDGE will be meeting [illegible] than he encountered in [illegible] up his three straight wins. He needs only an even shake in racing luck in order to score. RHODIUS will be dangerous only in the event of mud. CEYLON may hang on long enough to save [illegible] short end.

EIGHTH RACE

Star Fire, Inheritor, Max Way

STAR FIRE gets the top figures here on the strength of recent good Agawam form. INHERITOR has worked well and may be the "good thing." MAX WAY raced well at Agawam.

Annapolis, Md (AP) Navy athletic [illegible] are wondering if [illegible] seats in the Baltimore stadium will be enough to accommodate all the people who want to [illegible] Notre Dame Saturday. Already 45,000 seats have been sold and they're thinking of [illegible] a new temporary stand.

Makes Varsity

Philadelphia, Oct 23 (AP) — The life of a scrub isn't always a hard one. Sol Maksik, a clever passer who has been playing on the Penn junior varsity, made such a good showing [illegible] the Navy Jayvees last week that he was promoted to the varsity squad. Now he's slated to understudy Bill Kurlish the rest of the season.

Foberg Lost To Tufts

The loss of Charlie Foberg [illegible] ing back on the Tufts eleven [illegible] severe blow to the hopes of Head Coach Lew Manly for Charlie was developing into a triple-threat man.

This week's scrimmaging in preparation for Williams at the Oval Saturday, has proved too much for the Foberg knee, and as a result he is lost to the squad for a fortnight at least.

Ollie Borden is being used in his place. Ollie weighs only 153, while the injured back tipped the scales at 173, putting a light backfield at an unusual disadvantage in rushing.

Borden has an exceptionally long football record to his credit. He played at Medford high for three years, at Bridgeton for two, on the Tufts frosh for a year, and this is his third year on the Tufts varsity.

Counts Top Arena Mat Card

Alex MacLean presents one of his most colorful wrestling shows in weeks tonight at the Arena with a pair of European peers—Count George Zarynoff of Russia and Count Casimir Polowski of Poland—in the feature bouts.

Minor attractions on the card are the Olson brothers, Hermi and Heoinie, a pair of spectacular Swedes from Minnesota, who make their debut here in preliminaries.

Count Zarynoff, the elastic man, meets Charlie Strack in the main bout, two falls out of three. The acrobatic Zarynoff will be a favorite to withstand Strack's rough and tumble barrage and win.

Count Polowski, the stone man with the Emily Post manners, tackles the biggest and strongest foe he has met in Stan Sitkowski of Chelsea. One fall will be enough to win with a 30-minute curfew. Polowski is still unbeaten.

Hermi Olson faces Farmer Raymond with brother Heine meeting Jim Wallis.

Special bouts are Scotty McDougall vs. Billy Bartush and Boris Demetroff vs. Dick Raines, a third newcomer to the Arena on tonight's card. Another perlim listed is Max Goldberg vs. Jim Kendricks.

MAIN BOUT

Count Zarynoff vs. Charlie Strack
(Three falls—A. A. rules)

SEMIFINAL

Count Polowski vs. Stan Sitkowski.

SPECIAL BOUTS

Billy Bartush vs. Scotty McDougall
Boris Demetroff vs. Dick Raines.

PRELIMINARIES

Hermi Olson vs. Farmer Raymond.
Heinie Olson vs. Jim Wallis.
Max Goldberg vs. Jim Kendricks.

BOXING FINALS

A real treat is in store for the fans next Monday night at the Boston Arena where the Irish American A. A. stages the Golden Glove Finals of 1935.

There will be eight classes, 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 pounds and heavyweights, 24 bouts in all.

George Still After Danno

By JACK CONWAY

ED DON GEORGE isn't convinced Dan O'Mahoney is his master. The former heavyweight wrestling champion will start a drive at the Garden Friday night which, he is confident, will end with a victory over the champion.

Carl Pojello, who will oppose George on the Garden show, may give Ed more opposition than he expects. Pojello as an Unknown was matched to meet George at a Jack Curley promotion in the New York Garden. When George learned he was to be called upon to clash with Pojello, he stepped out of the bout. During the time he held the championship George refused to clash with Pojello. As a former champion, he has consented to enter a ring with the Lithuanian heavyweight.

Mr. Boston

George says he won't be troubled by any [illegible] cares on Friday night and will take more chances than when he was champion.

MICHAEL Debros, Greek heavyweight [illegible] champion, has [illegible] here and will strive to regain the title O'Mahoney took from Jim Londos. Debros worked out at a Boston gym with Nick Kravas, and showed he has been well schooled in the fundamentals of the [illegible] game.

Debros has been signed by Paul Bowser to [illegible] with John Spellman [illegible] George Pojello's card. It will be a 30-minute match, which will give the fans ample opportunity to get a line on the latest Greek wrestling importation.

MAX BAER

OF COURSE Max Baer will fight again. Boxers, particularly heavyweights, always take one more shot at the opposition.

Baer's statement from the Coast that he [illegible] to return to the ring merely confirms the information I gave you in this column when Max was telling New York state writers following his defeat at the hands of Bomber Joe Louis that he was going to quit the [illegible].

Boxers always want to retire after they have received a major setback. They are usually bitterly disappointed and want to get away from everybody who even thinks of boxing.

Time is the great healer, and when their defeat loses some of its importance they are usually anxious to box again.

I don't think Baer will ever be able to beat Joe Louis, but he still can conquer a great many of the so-called [illegible] heavyweights. Poor [illegible] has greatly retarded Baer's [illegible].

He [illegible] his hands before his bout with Jimmy Braddock and he had an [illegible] that bad when he opposed Louis.

Baer lost [illegible] partly because he [illegible] physically fit and [illegible] of his [illegible] to get out of the way of the [illegible].

Harlow has had a difficult task at Cambridge in view of the fact football practice does not begin until the middle of September. The so-called Spring football practice has always been more or less of a joke at Harvard.

Strong Side Reverse Andy Kerr's Pet Play

RED RAIDERS BAFFLE RIVALS WITH REVERSES

Pat Hanley Likes It

BROUGHT TEAM CONFERENCE TITLE

By L. B. Pat Hanley
Head Coach at Boston University
(Copyright by Boston Evening American)

The mention of Andy Kerr brings laterals to mind immediately. Andy, however, used laterals only as a threat and has a basic offense built on the Warner system.

The play is very dear to me also, as it gave us the Conference championship at Northwestern in 1930.

That year we were undefeated going into our last game which was against Wisconsin. If we lost or tied the game the championship went with it. The Badgers proved to be particularly tough.

Going into the fourth quarter the score was tied 7 to 7. We were on Wisconsin's 45-yard line and the situation did not look very promising.

Then suddenly the very reverse which is a part of Andy Kerr's and is the play for today was called.

Rob Russell was at fullback. He spun perfectly and handed the ball to my kid brother, Lee, who swung around right end and continued until he crossed the goal line to give us the winning touchdown and the Conference title.

The Hanley family was a happy group that night. Dick and I as the coaches and Lee as the hero.

New England football fans who travelled to Worcester last year to see the Red Raiders clash with Holy Cross or down to Providence to see Colgate tangle with Brown should remember this strong side reverse.

It is a basic play in the Warner offense and no matter how well the opposition knows it, if the men ahead of the ball carrier block properly, the play will go. It has deception and plenty of power.

(This series of Famous Plays by Famous Coaches, written by Pat Hanley, head coach of football at Boston University, appears only in the Boston Evening American. A series of photographs of the plays and diagrams [illegible] every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Watch for the next one which will appear in all Monday's editions.)

Jockey King On 13 Winners

By the Associated Press

Jockey J. King was the [illegible] sensation of the country last week. The lad performing at Churchill Downs in Louisville [illegible] piloted 13 winners [illegible] for the week. For the 1935 season he stands [illegible] with 119 winning mounts.

Joe Wagner, who leads the jockeys for the year with 163 winners, did not ride a single winner last week. Wayne Wright, who is second with 161, brought one in for first money. R. Neves returned to the saddle and rode two winners to bring his total for the year to 155.

Here the left halfback is on his way. Notice the power ahead, in addition to the three linemen who have pulled out, he has the quarterback and fullback ahead also. With proper blocking the ball carrier should go to town.

Revolta Three Up On Armour

By Associated Press

Twin Hills Golf Course, Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 23 (AP) — Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, Western [illegible], held a three up [illegible] over the veteran Tommy Armour of Medinah, Ill., at the end of the ninth hole of their [illegible] match in the P. G. A. [illegible] tournament here today.

Revolta's drive was to the side of the fairway on the second [illegible] of Armour's [illegible] the middle.

Revolta [illegible] stopped 20 feet [illegible] but Armour's [illegible] was [illegible] short of the green. He then put a chip shot [illegible] of the cup. Revolta [illegible] the [illegible].

Revolta Recovers

With the wind at their backs both were [illegible] on the 300-yard third. Revolta had [illegible] on a bare spot [illegible] the ball stop [illegible] feet from the cup. Armour [illegible] and was on but [illegible]. [illegible] Armour's long putt wobbled [illegible] cup but [illegible] as Revolta [illegible] second [illegible].

Armour's [illegible] fourth was [illegible] 12 feet from [illegible] as Revolta was 25 feet away. [illegible] the hole in par [illegible] Revolta was down in two and Armour [illegible].

Red Sox Close Deal For 4 Mackmen

finished fielder, is a weak spot in the batting order. And, though Werber has been counted an asset at third base, the club officials regard him as erratic and an uncertain quantity in their infield setup.

Thus Higgins 3rd, Cronin, ss, McNair 2nd and Foxx 1st would give the Red Sox the best balanced infield, both in fielding and hitting, that the game can boast in either league.

Werber on Bench

Werber, my understanding is, will be kept as infield insurance, to bolster the second line of the team in event of injury.

Bob Collins and Yawkey know [illegible] pennant would hinge [illegible] the pitching force, which [illegible] Wes Ferrell's great year [illegible] be duplicated. Lefty [illegible] best [illegible] [illegible] when athletic old age [illegible].

He [illegible] and in the [illegible] of [illegible] Walberg [illegible] and [illegible] reliable [illegible] catcher [illegible] the [illegible] about ready. Rhodes and Welch are X quantities, unknowns and [illegible] and outer.

Hence the keystone of the Sox must be in the addition of several able hurlers, which is the reason why I give credence to the inclusion of Johnny Marcum's name in the trade.

One has no doubt that Yawkey having laid out a large fortune in buying such players as Grove, the Ferrell brothers, Melillo, Cronin, Cooke, etc., and seeing the pennant just beyond his finger tips, will not flinch at the expense of buying what it takes if the players are available.

Phillie Fans Fickle

He knows too that whatever outlay up to a $250,000 for new stocks will be repaid in increased gate receipts next year if the club is in the thick of the championship drive.

Hence there is every reason to feel that sometime between now and December Cornelius Mack will deliver some of his jewels and brave the wrath of his Philadelphia following, which, as a baseball following goes, is the most fickle in the game.

COUTURE With Canadiens

Quebec, Oct. 23 (AP) — Lolo Couture, right wing of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League last season, has signed to play with the Montreal Canadiens, the Canadiens announced today.

Drills Trinity

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 23 (INS) — Rumors persisted today that Dan Jessee, whose work has given Trinity a string of 14 straight victories on the gridiron, was being sought by larger institutions. Meanwhile his charges went through light drill for Saturday's game with Connecticut State College.

Harlow Builds "Iron Men"

The question of comparative durability will be one of the vital factors which will determine the battle between Harvard and Dartmouth in the Stadium on Saturday.

Dartmouth, high point scorer in the East, has a plentitude of husky, powerful linemen and speedy backs. Three sets of giant ends have been given much of the credit for the Big Green's successful offensive this fall.

Harvard, unable to start the same lineup two weeks running, will counter Dartmouth's remarkable material with a starting eleven which is expected to carry the brunt of the battle most of the distance.

Satisfied that Harvard's hopes of developing an offense lay in constant offensive scrimmaging, Dick Harlow has held two contact sessions this week already, and has ordered another for this afternoon.

By constant scrimmaging Harlow is achieving a twofold end. He is also building an ironman eleven inured to hard play by rough contact in practice.

Despite the fact that the Crimson already has played two exhausting games with superior Holy Cross and Army elevens, the players are profiting by the diet of hard work.

It has been a dangerous gamble for Harlow to take, for he is constantly running risk of further injuries, such as those suffered by Fred Lane, Don Jackson, and Tom Bilodeau, which would permanently cripple the squad.

DANNO WINS

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 23. They can't stop Danno.

Under the pretense that he had been robbed in his bout with the world champion in Boston, Ernie Dusek persuaded the young Celt to take him on here in his home town.

Danno did, and how!

M'Cracken Through As Lafayette Coach

Soleau, Colgate Grad, To Be Named to Post

Big Success With Freshmen

By Walter Kiley

Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., definitely in the football doldrums, will have a new coach when another season rolls around.

Its stock has dropped to a new all-time low this fall, a 7-0 victory over Muhlenberg being its only solace for three whitewash defeats, Moravian 0-6, Albright 0-38, and Colgate 0-52.

The appointment of Henry W. "Esky" Clark, Bill Bingham's assistant at Harvard, as athletic director, is one change for the better.

And unless unforeseen circumstances arise, Bill Soleau, described by Andy Kerr as the greatest blocking back he ever coached, will succeed G. Herbert McCracken as head football coach.

McCracken has already tendered his resignation after 15 years of service. Announcement to this effect will be made at the close of the current campaign.

COLGATE, H. C.

Talking about Colgate brings to mind its game with Holy Cross at Fitton Field, Worcester, on Saturday.

A capacity crowd is assured. Reserved seats are gone. Little more than 5000 unreserved remain, and they are being gobbled up so fast that by tomorrow night, there shouldn't be a thing left.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, Holy Cross coach, recalling the fate of his Purple team in its unexpected 13-13 tie with Manhattan in New York and the 19-0 defeat of Boston College by Fordham at the Polo Grounds, suggests a novel plan.

"Both teams play so badly in New York that we should arrange our annual closing day game over there. The affair might then resolve itself down as to which was the worse team, rather than which the better."

Acute appendicitis is feared. Yet his blood tests are all normal. His family physician has ordered two weeks of rest which is a distinct blow at a critical time in the Purple football schedule.

Bob Curley of Wakefield, Purple end, is also out of the Colgate game. An injured ankle is the cause. John O'Donnell, 170-pounder, who played all of the Providence game and more than 10 minutes of the Harvard game, will start in his place.

Anderson states that O'Donnell made the most sensational tackle of the Manhattan game. A whole wave of green jerseys was running ahead of the ball carrier on a weak side play. O'Donnell dumped them, got through them and threw the carrier, thereby saving an almost certain touchdown run of 80 yards or more.

Needs Watching

New York (AP) — Although they're not expecting trouble, the Fordham Rams will be watching an end named Roy Sponaugle when they play Lebanon Valley Saturday. Roy is a brother of Coda Sponaugle of Franklin and Marshall, who blocked a Fordham punt and ran for a touchdown a couple of weeks ago.

Negro Groom 'On Spot' In Dope Case

Police Magistrate Joseph Armstrong ordered Brown held under $1000 bond after State's Attorney Roscoe C. Rowe subjected the Negro to a 45-minute grilling last night.

Brown asserted he was from Los Angeles and was employed as a groom at Laurel by Fred Kraft, of Brooklyn.

Rowe said the Negro was identified by a watchman at the track yesterday afternoon as a man seen running from the stalls the day two horses were tampered with.

"I haven't had anything to do with the horses," he said.

SOPHS BIG HELP TO BELMONT

ANOTHER Ford-Ecker ERA ON

TEAM DOING WELL

By Will Connell

Three sophs have first team rank, a couple of more may be in the top eleven before season has passed, and some 15 others will be first team caliber next fall.

Because of this Head Coach Tom Newell and Lewis "Polly" Harris, who assists, are smiling. Even though the team has lost twice while winning two games.

Belmont edged Weymouth, then bowed to Stoneham and Winchester, then won over Concord. Saturday Lexington, then Maynard, Arlington, Framingham and Watertown fill out the card. The two defeats, the last win and next two are Middlesex League, and while the team won't win the title this year, next two seasons may see a return to the golden age of George Ford, Leo Ecker, Tony Di Natale and other recent Belmont winners.

Joe Arico, only 123 pounds, and Don Scorgie, 140, battle for quarterback, with Arico a shade in front now; Ed Brassill, 140, and Ed Burke, 145, halfbacks, and veteran Alvin Aldrich, a standout, 170, fullback.

Other subs include Charles Burrows, end; Billy Keefe, rapidly improving guard; Roger Shapiro and John Howarth, also guards; Peter Flynn and Ernest Clark, tackles; Fred Sliney, Bill Burke (varsity Ed's brother) and John Fitzgerald, backs. Charley McKeon is manager, Leon Hakimian and Stuart Stockwell, assistants.

As long as this team plays a creditable game Belmont folk won't complain. They see too much silver lining in the '36 and '37 clouds when those sophs grow to stars' estate.

Always Kicking, These Kids

MAX BAER Classes Self AS WHITE HOPE

By Associated Press

Livermore, Cal., Oct. 23 — The people of Livermore, who lost $3.50 per capita on Max Baer's last fight, sunk $1 each (plus tax) last night in a testimonial dinner for the one-time butcher boy and heard him describe himself as a "white hope" if Joe Louis wins the heavyweight boxing crown.

Livermore was pretty badly hit financially when the home-town boy failed to come up in the fourth round against Louis, but all was forgiven last night. The banqueters, after listening to his speech, presented the former champion with a miniature chinabull.

"I am through with the fight game unless Joe Louis wins the title, in which case I might attempt a comeback as a 'white hope,'" said Max.

"When I was down in the fourth I saw all of Harlem in the ring with me, not just Joe Louis. I stayed down, and as a result I still can speak English."

Max said he hoped he could "do something else beside raise pigs and win championships," and pointed to the fact that in the Louis battle he made enough money "to make all my managers comfortable, pay off all my lawsuits and pay my income tax."

Cormier's Rally Fails to Halt Champion

By Jack Conway

Miller won 12 of the 15 rounds. He carried every session but the fifth, tenth and fourteenth which were Cormier's.

Miller is the classiest little boxer to step into a Boston ring since Johnny Dundee was outscoring the opposition. The featherweight champion is a masterful boxer, a perfect ring general and scores with hard, jarring blows.

It is well for Miller that he is blessed with so much ring class as Cormier put up a remarkably good fight. The Worcester featherweight was the aggressor in every round.

He persisted in carrying the battle to Miller even when the latter was riddling him with sharp right jabs and jolts and bruising left hand shots.

REILLY SMART

Cormier was tireless and from the tenth through the fourteenth rounds he looked particularly effective. In the final chapter, Miller through all caution to the winds and beat Cormier in a punching duel. Miller was a bit faster than Cormier when it came to delivering heavy blows.

The bout was witnessed by 5000 fans. The fact Miller had never shown here before caused many persons to question his ability, but after his brilliant showing against Cormier he is established here as an attraction.

Pete Reilly, Miller's manager, gave a unique exhibition of handling a boxer. He placed ice bags on each side of Miller's head between rounds to prevent any possible swellings from the effects of blows. Reilly also had a complete medical outfit in the champion's corner. He was prepared for any emergency.

It was one of the fastest bouts between featherweights ever staged in this city, and made a decided hit with the fans. The crowded applauded the boxers at the end of each round.

The Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser received 12½ per cent of the receipts.

Honey Mellody of Charlestown won the unanimous decision over Tommy Rawson of East Boston in a six-round bout. Rawson punched it out on even terms with Mellody in the early rounds, but tired after the third session.

Mellody kept forcing the issue and throwing plenty of leather. He did particularly well in the fifth and sixth rounds when he showered Rawson with hard punches.

Louis Barisano of Newton outscored Andy Martin of the South End in a six-round bout. Judges McMenimen and Carrick voted for Barisano, while Referee Moore cast his ballot for Martin.

Joe Little of Ireland proved he is a first-lass puncher as well as a courageous youth when he knocked out Tommy Medes of Taunton in two rounds. One of Medes' right-hand punches opened a deep wound on Little's nose in the opening session.

This didn't upset Little, who kept right on throwing heavy blows. After 1m. 20s. of warfare in the second heat, Little shot a left to the jaw and then a right hand cross to the same spot. Medes hit the canvas and was counted out by Referee Jerry Moore as he inhaled resin.

The Commission's doctor examined Gates' injury at the end of the first round and wouldn't permit him to go out for the second.

Redskins Keep Heads Up

By Murray Kramer

Instead of bogging down after dropping three league games in a row, they are just charging it off to experience and are now preparing for a trip which starts with Pittsburgh and closes in Detroit.

The pros leave Boston Friday for a Sunday game in the Smoky City, and then continue on to the Flivver metropolis for a Wednesday night clash with "Potsy" Clark's hostile Lions.

Playing the surprising Pirates, who handed the Chicago Cardinals their first defeat of the season last Sunday, and then clashing with the Lions after a three day rest is no cinch for any club.

But the Caseymen feel quite optimistic about the outcome. Jim Musick will be able to play against the Lions and that makes quite a difference. The loss of the California sheriff to date has hurt greatly.

McPhail and Baltzell were found wanting. Hokuf was shifted there but did not fill the bill, and last Sunday Shepherd was given a whirl at the job but it was too new for him.

Before the season even opened, it was predicted that the Redskins hopes rested in Musick's bad knee, and it seems to have turned out just that way. With Jim playing all season, the chances are better than even that the Boston outfit would not have lost three games in a row.

BULL HEFNER STANDOUT AT REVERE

FUTURITY MADE TO ORDER

By Sam Cohen

Chief contention will come from Roughneck Pete and Vagabond Breeze, both of which are favorably placed in the starting boxes.

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY—CLADDER RIVER—UNCONQUERED—DANIEL WEBSTER

5	Unconquered	5-2	47	Ed Camp	Fast schoolings.
3	Daniel Webster	3-1	64	Geo. S. West	May take it all.
8	Speed Wings	8-1	53	Swan Kennels	Needs racing.
2	Double Mark	10-1	46	Bill Donovan	Has shown little.
7	Cactus Flower	12-1	50	Mrs. Tom Griffin	Last three poor.

CLADDER RIVER carries the edge here, though almost any of the first three can come in for all of it. UNCONQUERED will furnish the chief contention, and DANIEL WEBSTER should be right up there.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY—ANDROSAY—MARGIE ANDREW—TARRAS RUNNER

7	Androsay	2-1	54	J. D. Hall	Likes this spot.
3	Margie Andrew	5-2	53	N. G. Allen	Well up in last.
6	Tarras Runner	3-1	63	W. B. J. Kennels	Last not true.
1	Ugly Mug	5-1	67	Miss Freda Koontz	Should do well here.
8	Call Down	8-1	55	Ray Courtney	Is about due.
4	Mary Glide	12-1	54	Clint Blair	Disappointed in last.

THIRD RACE—5-16THS MILE—ANOTHER CHORD—SMARTY—JACKIE CONCERN

8	Another Chord	2-1	69	Clyde Boyd	Likes this spot.
6	Smarty	5-2	63	Copper City Ken.	May be the one.
1	Jackie Concern	3-1	55	Addis Kennels	Can take it all.
4	Meadow Roy	5-1	59	Jess Williams	Second last out.
3	Muddy Traffic	8-1	69	Oscar Dahlberg	Outside chance.
2	Contract Lad	10-1	62	Sunnyside Kennels	Won last; moved up.
7	Officer Duce	12-1	62	William Baker	Last not so good.
5	Shadow Brook	15-1	53	Freeman Kennels	Improving rapidly.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY— ANOTHER BISON—FOSTER—BE A STAR

8	Another Bison	2-1	55	Hollywood Hts. Ken.	Favorably placed.
3	Foster	5-2	64	Sid Manor	Has been threatening.
4	Be a Star	3-1	65	Mrs. Opal Warden	Last not true.
2	Border Patrol	5-1	60	H. E. Alderson	May surprise.
6	Officer Lightning	8-1	62	Oswald Bros. Ken.	Last was poor.
1	Dusky Trail	10-1	63	Southern Kennels	Has shown little.
7	Murlough Wild	12-1	49	Joseph Lyttle	New; fast schoolings.

ANOTHER BISON can do better than his last indicates. He is well placed in this and should come home in front. If he does not, FOSTER which has threatened many times, may come through. BE A STAR may upset the dope altogether, with MURLOUGH WILD, a new dog, as a possibility.

FIFTH RACE—FUTURITY—YOUNG PORTHOS—ANDY'S LADY—LADY FLIER

2	Young Porthos	2-1	61	M. J. Gavan	A comer; dangerous.
1	Andy's Lady	5-2	57	Southern Kennels	Won the other night.
6	Lady Flier	3-1	42	A. N. Chinn	Consistently good.
4	Pilot's Call	5-1	61	Patrick Conway	Won last; moved up.
7	Uncle Chris	8-1	62	Frank Athanasaw	May take it all.
3	Flying Princess	10-1	63	Floyd White	Last two poor.
8	Escort Officer	12-1	63	Swan Kennels	Doesn't like position.
5	Clarvoe	15-1	60	Miss Freda Koontz	Has shown nothing.

YOUNG PORTHOS turned in a fine effort last time out and is well placed here. ANDY'S LADY likes an inside position and may be the one. LADY FLIER has been ni the money in the last six races and can take it all.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY—RED RUN—CHIEF'S DARLING—BERNICE GLEN

8	Chief's Darling	5-2	50	Mrs. M. Failing	Consistently in money.
6	Bernice Glen	3-1	44	Frank Lane	In good box.
5	Captain Salt	5-1	70	J. D. Hall	Won last; a sprinter.
2	Irish Pick	8-1	64	Charles Holmes	Last two not so good.
4	Susy Lee	10-1	53	H. E. Alderson	May surprise.
1	Benalla	15-1	63	H. A. Weigant	A sweet long shot.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16THS MILE—KASHMIR HAWKE—PEPPER ROLL—GANGSTER'S BOY

1	Pepper Roll	5-2	63	W. E. Forbes	Improving rapidly.
5	Gangster's Boy	3-1	68	A. Haberman	Consistently good.
4	Lady Cutlet	5-1	52	S. B. Cox	Last not true.
6	Wasteful Life	8-1	57	R. K. Japue	Might surprise.
3	Almighty Dollar	10-1	67	Arch DeGeer	Last two poor.
8	Golden Vixen	12-1	52	J. A. Austin	Fast; dangerous.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY—BUL HEFNER—ROUGHNECK PETE—HAZARD LADDIE

3	Roughneck Pete	5-2	71	John Pesek	The one to beat.
2	Hazard Laddie	3-1	67	J. E. Miles	Won last; can repeat.
7	Vagabond Breeze	5-1	74	Geo. Lippold, Jr.	Won ninth Saturday.
1	The Motorman	8-1	61	Bud Sunday	Right back in form.
6	Country Doctor	10-1	66	D. Callaghan	Can do it.
4	Speedy Event	15-1	63	Gus Males	Not in form.

BULL HEFNER has the call here, though the contention is going to be keen with such dogs as ROUGHNECK PETE and HAZARD LADDIE as the rivals. VAGABOND BREEZE is not to be overlooked.

NINTH RACE—FUTURITY—MY PLAYER—WOLF LARSON—STONY'S FAVORITE

1	My Player	2-1	49	Jess Bingham	Won last; can repeat.
5	Wolf Larson	5-2	74	W. R. Burnett	The one to beat.
8	Stony's Favorite	3-1	61	L. W. Randall	Won last; moved up.
6	Speedy Lad	5-1	67	Whitehead Kennels	Last two poor.
4	Anna Glen	8-1	45	L. E. Thompson	Threatening; may do it.
2	Just Dear	15-1	53	Roy Rutland	New; fast schoolings.

MY PLAYER took them all by surprise Monday night and can repeat tonight from the same box. WOLF LARSON should furnish the contention with STONY'S FAVORITE ready to step in and take it all if the favorites falter.

6	Mike J	2-1	62	B. E. Randle	Should click here.
4	Mae Win	5-2	57	W. K. Pease	Fast; dangerous.
8	Son Roll	5-1	57	J. A. Austin	Improving rapidly.
3	Miss Traffic Court	8-1	53	Oswald Bros. Ken.	Can take it all.
2	Clara Andrew	10-1	53	Roy Rutland	Good long shot.
5	Never Late	15-1	65	Roamer Kennels	Won one in last five.

MIKE J. has the call here with MAE WIN and NIGGER HAFT as the chief contenders. MISS TRAFFIC COURT could surprise.

SEE AMERICA Cubs Motto

The Cubs spring baseball activities as announced today, begin against the White Sox in Los Angeles, March 13, and will take them to San Antonio and Houston, New Orleans, into Alabama for a series with the Giants, through Florida, back to Alabama, to Nashville and finally home to Chicago for the City Series against the White Sox April 10, 11 and 12. Twenty-six games will be played against 13 teams in 18 cities.

Game Wanted

The newly organized Stetson Club of South Boston desires a football game with any 140 lb. team for Sunday, Oct. 27, away from home. Call George Donahue, S. B. 3809.

GEORGIA TECH Frosh Belt Varsity

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (AP) — The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets aren't waiting until Saturday to stage the form reversal that has stung nearly every important winner in the South this season.

They felt the reaction from their surprise victory over Duke yesterday and let the freshman push them around as they staged their first scrimmage in preparation for the North Carolina game.

CONN. STATE Drills Offense

Storrs, Ct., Oct. 23 (INS)—Hard scrimmages against the reserves was ordered today for Connecticut State College's first string eleven as Coach Christian strove to develop a scoring attack for use Saturday against Trinity.

FORBES SAYS

Many EXECUTIVES Cautious

By B. C. Forbes

The up-rush in stocks, which carried quotations to a four-year peak, encountered more opposition yesterday. Closing prices were about a stand-off, with the more highly speculative issues lower.

It is possible for one to be bullish on the security and national trend without being confident that a boom is immediately to blossom and flourish.

In the highest financial and business circles exuberance is not running wild. Industrialists are tempering aggressiveness with caution. They hope for the best, but they want to be prepared for something less than the best.

They cannot shut their eyes to the alarmingly unsatisfactory state of our national finances; they cannot shut their eyes to our ugly tax prospects; they cannot shut their eyes to further possible political knouting of business.

This communication, inspired by a statement made recently in this column that President Roosevelt is again promising cooperation with industry, is rather typical of the attitude of many men of affairs:

"There seems to be no doubt that President Roosevelt wants to conciliate his opponents now as he did a year ago; but have we any more assurance now than we had a year ago, or dozens of other times, that he means to keep his promise, or is he just continuing to kid us now as in the past?

* * *

"I wish we could have faith and confidence in the Presidential assurances; but when we look at the record have we any solid ground for such confidence? If not, should we not continue to oppose vigorously that with which we disagree and place our confidence in ourselves and in public opinion?

"What business has never learned, except in a few instances like the automotive industry and one or two others, is that the greatest power in the land, the greatest court of all, is the court of public opinion; and furthermore, that ours is a government in which we delegate limited powers to the government.

JAPAN'S Cotton Trade GAINS

CLOTH SALES TO U. S. UP

By Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 23—Japan was shown today in Commerce Department reports to be crowding other nations aside for a bigger share of the American cotton cloth market by offering lower priced goods.

Imports from all countries for the first nine months of 1935 were valued at $5,252,000, of which Japan supplied $1,323,000, or about one-fourth. During the same period of 1934, the total value of cotton cloth imports was $5,207,000 of which Japan supplied only $188,000.

An even more startling gain was shown in the quantity of cloth coming from Japan. Total imports in the nine months of 1935 were 47,715,000 square yards, of which Japan supplied 27,228,000. In the same period of 1934 total imports were 31,071,000 yards, of which Japan supplied 3,582,000.

September imports from Japan amounted to 2,265,000 yards valued at $105,000, against 683,000 yards valued at $33,000 in September, 1934.

Bar Gold Declines

NEW HAVEN

N. E. Road DOES Expected

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The big news in the market today was the filing of the New Haven under section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act.

Denied a loan from the R. F. C. by the I. C. C. the New England carrier could do little else. Private bankers, it is safe to assume, were no more willing to advance new money than the federal agencies. After all the road itself had admitted lack of collateral to secure a loan and had even gone so far as to emphasize the burdens of recently enacted legislation. Reorganization may prove a blessing in disguise in the long run.

* * *

Notebook: While the New Haven news may prove temporarily upsetting, we see no reason for a major spill because the suspected happened . . . Rail bonds in general have been acting better lately . . . After zigzagging downward for a period of weeks they give promise of working higher . . . The lows set during the week of October 19 mark a nearby danger point . . . We would not be afraid to buy rail lines during general weakness . . . With stop loss orders under the levels noted.

* * *

Industrial shares seem to have spent themselves on the upside and utilities and rails are now depended on by the bull forces to keep their cause alive. Rails, of course, face a temporary psychological hazard. Utilities, barring the unforeseen, should do quite a bit better. If, after selling waves, activity tends to decrease, we could count on these two groups to furnish the incentive for higher price levels. As far as individuals are concerned, specialties alone catch our eye.

* * *

Shorts: Number among attractive industrials Steel, American Rolling Mill, Douglas, Dresser "A" and General Electric . . . Plus those given here last week . . . Consolidated Gas seems "right" for the first time in weeks . . . It should do much better . . . Sears Roebuck persists in following a middle-of the road price trend . . . Most of August, all of September and so far in October it has held within its limits of 53 and 61 . . . A topside breakout is promised . . .

Take advantage of the present gift tax rates

January 1, 1936 is the deadline

A new Federal Gift Tax law goes into effect on January 1, 1936. It establishes substantially higher rates. Therefore, if you contemplate the making of gifts you will save money by doing so now. The Government has allowed this period of grace during which you may act under the present tax schedules.

We shall be glad to discuss with you and your attorney the tax and administrative advantages that may result by making a partial division of your estate now through the creation of a Living or Voluntary Trust.

Oil Shares LEAD GOOD Upturn

New York, Oct. 23—Strength of the oil and farm implement issues helped to offset heaviness of scattered issues in other groups.

Most of the carriers were slightly higher despite the slump of New Haven issues coincident with the road's financial crisis. New Haven common fell 1⅜ points to 2⅞ and the preferred was off 2½ at 6⅛.

Case got up around 4 and Deere and Amerada about 2 each. Other gainers of fractions to a point or so included Standards of New Jersey and California, Phillips Petroleum, Pure Oil, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Chrysler, Bethlehem and U. S. Steel.

American Tobacco "B" and Liggett & Myers "B" dropped a point each, and Western Union, Consolidated Gas, Woolworth, Packard and Studebaker were moderately lower.

The late tone was a trifle irregular.

Steel Output Up

While the failure of the New Haven to tap the RFC till for a much-needed loan was a fly in the generally bullish ointment, optimistic traders continued their search for buying opportunities.

In studying the industrial situation it was noted that the Iron Age weekly survey estimated that steel operations had risen ½ point to 52½ per cent of capacity. It was stated that mill activity has been on a plateau for the past seven weeks, at no time dropping more than a point below the present level.

"Expansion of automotive demand for steel," the review pointed out, "is much slower than had been looked for and added support from the construction industry is still prospective rather than a present reality."

While steel orders from makers of farm equipment and road machinery are showing seasonal curtailment, moderate improvement was found in the demand from makers of toys and household appliances and from the furniture trade. St. Louis stove manufacturers were said to be operating at the highest rate in years. A spurt in spot orders for general line can manufacture, it was added, had halted the seasonal decline in tin plate.

Exceptionally warm weather was thought to have been the cause of a drop of .4 of a percentage point last week in the Associated Press index of power production. While slipping from the record high of the previous week, the total of kilowatt hours was still far ahead of the corresponding 1934 period.

Sterling opened up ⅛ of a cent at $4.92 and the French franc was unchanged at 6.59⅜ cents. The lira rallied .01¼ of a cent to 8.13½ cents.

Hull's Poor Policies

SECRETARY HULL'S trade treaties, which he defended so eloquently the other day, seem to be the best scheme yet devised for putting other countries on their feet and knocking the American farmer off his pins.

After reading the astonishing figures released by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States through the Associated Press, it becomes glaringly apparent WHY the farmer in some sections has to be paid hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies to prevail on him to stay in business.

Corn IMPORTS went up 11,462 PER CENT.

Cattle IMPORTS rose 356 PER CENT.

"MEATS, BUTTER, VEGETABLE OIL AND OIL SEEDS FLOWED INTO THE UNITED STATES IN THE HEAVIEST IMPORTATION IN MANY YEARS," says the report.

IN EVERY election in this country in which the tariff has been an issue, free trade has been beaten decisively.

But Secretary Hull has found a roundabout way through his "most favored nation" policy of letting the bars down to OUR OWN RUINATION.

Aided and abetted by the insane minimum farm production program of Secretary Wallace, with his ruthless hog slaughtering and ploughing under, this Administration might well be named the FOREIGN AID ADMINISTRATION.

Although Russia is doing everything in her power to undermine American institutions, we concluded a first-aid treaty with her in which she agreed to buy $30,000,000 worth of our goods each year.

The Department of Commerce has just issued a report which shows that exports to Stalin's Utopia FELL FROM $5,520,000 IN JULY TO $826,000 IN AUGUST.

Is the United States a going business concern or just a WORLD DUMPING-GROUND?

Threat to Nation

Connery Gives Warning

These are the people who would REDUCE America's Army and Navy.

"If the police were to be sent away for 24 hours," declared the Congressman, "our lives would not be safe. The disorder which resulted from the Boston police strike emphasized this.

"It is just what would happen to our entire country if our Army and Navy were eliminated. We cannot have peace without preparedness."

This is so plain to all thinking patriots that it does not seem necessary to repeat it—but it is.

There was also sound sense in Congressman Connery's comment on how we stand with some debtor nations.

"Foreign countries are not worried over their war debts, which they owe this country," he stated. "In fact, they are building ships with this money.

"They would not object either to getting a slice of this country or its possessions if they thought it could be done."

The H. C. O. L.

Everybody Is Under It

One alphabetical agency that every man, woman and child in America takes orders from is the H. C. O. L.

The initials may not be familiar. But they stand for the greatest Raw Deal project to date—the HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The Raw Deal has made a success of THIS project, even its severest critics admit.

And it has done so by the simplest of means—DESTROYING food or LIMITING the production of foodstuffs.

This has raised prices effectively, as any housewife can tell you. AND WILL.

Bread, the staff of life, is soon going to cost more—largely because of this same policy of limiting or burning crops.

And Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture blames the BAKERS.

They should not increase the price per loaf, says Mr. Wallace.

What they should do, he is quoted as declaring, is to MAKE SMALLER LOAVES.

Then the public would not have to worry about the H. C. O. L.

Right of Way Is Yours

But Don't Run a Risk

If you are a pedestrian, walking on October's leaf-strewn country roads, you have the right of way.

But don't run a risk by insisting on it.

The oncoming motorist may be unable to avoid hitting you.

Lewis E. McBrayne, general manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council, points out that of seventy-two pedestrians killed by cars in October, 1934, eleven lost their lives walking on the roadsides.

So he suggests you walk—especially if out at night—on the left side of the highway, and step off the highway when an automobile comes along.

We pass the advice along—it may save lives.

State Forests

"Worthless Lands"

Secretary Harris A. Reynolds of the Massachusetts Forest and Park Association is planning an initiative petition to add half a million acres to forests controlled by the Commonwealth.

Proponents of the plan say the addition of "worthless forest lands" would employ 20,000 men producing wood, reduce the fire menace and form a haven for wild life.

But, if the lands in question are "worthless" now, they should cost the Commonwealth little, even in loss of taxes.

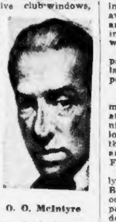
New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre



O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—The Tories of the exclusive club windows, the cold and calcareous grumps Peter Arno so delightfully caricatures in those yearly books, do much to give the metropolis its reputation for disdain. In stiff starchiness they sit hour after hour, gazing and apparently seeing nothing. They are the last round-up of pious believers, deep rooted in a conviction the horn of plenty never forgets favorites. Their aloofness and rigidity are not confined to the passersby. In years of observing I have never beheld an exchange of chair-to-chair conversation.

When they arrive in their limousines they do not indulge the slightest nod to the door openers. Or thank those who adjust their deep-seated chair and light their cigar. Yet I am told they make up for their gruffness in gratuities. They are clubdom's most liberal tippers.

The old order acquiring the vulgarities of the new is to them unthinkable. In their world these days everything has gone wrong. The ideals for which they stood and their forefathers stood have been scrapped. All is at sixes and sevens. So they sit, sulk and stare.

Julian Eltinge, after several sabbatical years of California ranching, has returned to the makeup box. But no longer in the frilly frocks of female impersonator.

He has always wanted to play he-man roles and has his chance as a rough old miner in a Mae West film. There are notable precedents presaging success. After all, Wallace Beery and James Cagney were female impersonators.

Harry Richman is one of the few performers who knows the vagaries of Broadway's mass mind. His success is, of course, largely due to his expertness in putting over a song, but many so talented go stale and jobless. Richman has learned not to let New York tire of him—an old trick of Paul Whiteman's, too.

At the peak of some engagement Richman will vanish, showing up in Florida, California or where not for several months or a year. Chaplin expresses this technique. Always in demand, he permits several years to elapse between pictures.

They were talking of audacious rogues who have sky-rocketed across the Tenderloin horizon. The brothers Locke and Gondorf, George Graham Rice, Dapper Dan Collins, Bill Fallo and others of brilliant if perverse minds. Most agreed Nickey Arnstein was the most picturesque.

His consummate nerve in riding by a police parade on the avenue in an open car, bowing and waving, when crack criminal hunters were on his trail was an example of his bravado.

New York's most exclusive movie audiences are often found at the Trans Lux news reel niched on upper Madison. The location in the 50's draws from the Sutton and Beekman places and the aristocratic areas of Fifth and Park avenues.

From 10 to 11 p. m. it frequently floriates with what Lucius Beebe calls "the mink and monocle crowd." The reason: Dinner parties killing an hour before descending upon night clubs.

In driving through the Bowery I generally look to see if Fred Bunz's lunchroom is still there. It is the gastronomic lily in a surrounding bog of sawdust-carpeted hash-houses whose windows are scrawled with indigestible horrors.

Bunz's is epic and span with modern glitter and white-tiled gloss. A sort of half-way house, one imagines, for those who have left the depths on the long road back.

Vincent Astor has deserted his hobby, long yacht cruises, for a quixotic experiment in New York hotel keeping. In acquiring control of the old established St. Regis he is reputedly expressing the enthusiasm of a child for a new toy.

He sponsored the idea of digging the Maxfield Parrish painting, "Old King Cole," out of the Astor warehouse as the cornerstone of the hotel's new "King Cole Room."

He likes to fuss around in the various departments to see what makes them tick. Especially in the kitchens.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Old Home Town"

Elsie Robinson

Remember the rainwater barrel that stood beneath the kitchen eaves, with the wrigglers in it in summer—and the lilac bush beside it, heavy with heart-shaped leaves?

And the sound of the rain drumming on the attic roof—and the wail of the wind through the old pine—and you snuggling deep and deeper under the patchwork quilts?

Playing, perhaps, that you were in a pirate den . . . or imagining you were Amy or Joe in "The Little Women."

Remember? How can you forget! It's part of you, if you're over thirty, isn't it? Woven so tight into the set of your bones tangled so deeply in the throb of your blood, that nothing in life can ever pull it apart.

OLD TOWN NO MORE

Even yet, the prickly warmth of an April day will set you scratching at the winter flannels you haven't worn—for how many years?—or the quiet dusk will sting your eyes with tears at the thought of your mother's voice, calling you in from play, with the lamp light hanging in a golden square behind her dear, blurred face!

Old Home Town—what wouldn't you give to go back to it again, if only for an hour! And some day, you promise yourself you will.

But, of course, you won't. For Old Home Town doesn't exist any more. The chain stores and the gas stations, mail order catalogues and automobiles have wiped it off the map. And left an ache, for thousands of us, which nothing can ever heal.

THIS IS LIFE

Because she, too, knows that ache, Rose Wilder Lane has gathered it all together—all the old sounds, sights and smells, the simple things we said and did so casually, which now seem so strange and significant—she has gathered them all together, as once we gathered rose petals and spice for our jars, and made them into a book called "Old Home Town."

And—laugh if you will—here's betting you read it as I did . . . nibble by nibble, as we used to eat our cherished scraps of wedding cake, taking a crumb, then putting the rest hastily away lest it all be finished too soon.

For these aren't just words. This is Life—American Life in its amazing making, as we actually lived it. And something more—something we couldn't get as we lived it—THE MEANING OF IT ALL.

For we never dreamed we were watching history—did we?—as we ran Up Town on our errands. ("DON'T YOU DARE GO HANGING AROUND MILLER'S, ERNESTINE, NOR LET ME HEAR OF YOU PEEKING INTO THE BARBER SHOP AGAIN!")

Never realized we were seeing the passing of the Old Order—watching the advent of a new and incredible era.

An era when a woman could actually go Into Business for herself . . . where A Lady might take an Overnight Journey ALONE, and EVEN STAY IN THE SAME HOTEL WITH THE MAN SHE KNEW, without being branded as a Fallen Woman—as they did poor Mrs. Sims!

IN PRIM PARADE

Lamplit streets shaded by spreading elms . . . smells of frying doughnuts . . . sound of the lawn mower . . . Easter leghorn hats, floppy with wreaths of pink cotton roses . . . hay rides and corn huskings . . . groups of straw-chewing men, guffawing in front of the livery stable as the wind swirls petticoats about embarrassed ankles—there it all is, in its prim parade.

And through it all—the growing restlessness, the rising consciousness that maybe a woman didn't need to be a hopeless Old Maid at twenty-six, a doddering dowager at thirty-eight, the helpless victim of male desire or male disdain all the days of her life.

"Old Home Town"—your youth and America's—it's back again. And they've done a great job between them, Rose Wilder Lane and Longmans, Green & Co., publishers, in bringing it back. Perhaps you think that you know what you and your world were all about at seventeen?

But you never will—until you've read that book.

Isn't It So?

Among other things that women need are wrist watches that run and silk hose that don't.

The man who accepts a favor may have to give a mortgage on his peace of mind.

The more comfortable people are the more they complain.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

Eight months ago you couldn't have spotted the head of an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination even if the great 100-inch telescope of Mt. Wilson had been at your disposal.

No such wave of modesty had swept over the leadership of the G. O. P. in the memory of man. Not one navigator yearned for the wave-swept quarter-deck.

Despite groans of anguish from North and East over the weird performances of the Brain Trusters, the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt was as much taken for granted by the rank and file of the Republican Party as by the mass of the Democrats.

But a remarkable change has come over the face of the political picture. The nominating convention of the G. O. P. is only seven months away, and we have no less than nine booms and boomlets. It is interesting to take these nine gentlemen, one by one, and make a guess regarding their potential strength. Here they are:

LANDON SAVES STATE

Alfred M. Landon—Mr. Landon is the governor of Kansas, a State which has never landed a son in the White House, but which has provided some of the most interesting personalities in American political annals.

Governor Landon is a Liberal, but with his feet seemingly on the solid ground. His is the unique record of lifting his State out of debt. Kansas has no public debt. The fact is so remarkable in these days that journalists and economists have tripped to Topeka to find out how the miracle was accomplished.

In addition, Governor Landon is the only Republican who could win his state either in 1932 or in 1934. On the record, that entitles him to the rank of No. 1 vote-getter of the party.

He is young, only 48, and very strong with the farmers. Quite recently he received enthusiastic endorsement from W. R. Hearst, who expressed confidence that Landon could defeat Roosevelt.

Col. Frank Knox—It may be that the publisher of the Chicago Daily News leads even Landon in national Republican repute. In widespread Republican straw votes taken last summer Knox was No. 2 on the list of favored possibilities. No. 1 was Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Knox has been active in Republican affairs for a quarter of a century. He backed Theodore Roosevelt in the Bull Moose Convention of 1912, and stood behind him as long as it was possible to stand behind him in 1916.

TWO-MAN RACE?

About a year ago he returned to politics and in the past three months has pursued what appears to be an active candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

His platform might be expressed in two phrases: Rigid economy in government and the salvation of the federal Constitution.

William E. Borah—Twenty-five years in the United States Senate, Borah has been the lone wolf. He has displayed peculiar reluctance to identify himself with the Republican machine at all times, except election time.

Herbert Hoover: The ex-President is now generally regarded as a cautious but earnest seeker for the renomination.

Arthur Vandenberg—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, whose record in the upper House has been excellent on the whole, has been mentioned innumerable times as a likely opponent for Mr. Roosevelt.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt—Young Teddy has made no pronouncement of his presidential ambitions, if any, but his assumption of the leadership of the young Republican element and denunciation of the extravagance of the administration give rise to more than a suspicion he will be a candidate.

Frank O. Lowden—Preservation of the Constitution will certainly be one of the chief issues of the next national campaign, if not the leading issue. For that reason alone, ex-Governor Lowden must not be utterly excluded from the possibilities. C. Bascom Slemp, who was secretary to President Coolidge, takes the lead in urging Lowden's nomination.

So, there is the list up to date. You pays your money and takes your choice.

Work for National Defense

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

IF it is to be protected against the sapping expedition which the political reds, pinks and yellows have launched against it, both political parties must unite in support of the Common Defense.

Under the American system of government every Senator and representative in Congress takes an oath to provide for the Common Defense.

The Constitution, which is the cornerstone of the American system of government, charges every citizen with the duty of supporting the Common Defense.

The Common Defense protects the American people regardless of their political affiliations. And the American people, regardless of their political affiliation, owe it to themselves to keep the Common Defense from becoming a partisan issue in any political campaign.

The best way to defeat the intrigue against the Common Defense in which radical sappers are now engaged is for Republicans and Democrats to unite in the assurance that they will not permit the building up of the Common Defense to become an issue in the national campaign of 1936.

The votes by which urgently needed legislation to build up the Common Defense afield and afloat was enacted by the last two Congresses have been cast by both Democrats and Republicans.

The votes against this legislation have been cast by a small minority made up of so-called Republicans and so-called Democrats.

The large majority of both Democrats and Republicans in both houses of Congress have supported the Common Defense. They ought not to find it difficult to unite in a declaration against permitting this vital issue to be beclouded in the next national campaign by the bigotry of partisanship.

The expert studies in the light of which recommendations for the building up of the Common Defense are submitted to Congress by the two defense departments are conducted by officers of the armed forces who come from all walks of life, from every state in the Union, from every county in every state and from families representing both political parties. There is no partisanship in the consideration of this legislation. There will be none if the leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties will unite now in a declaration of high purpose.

This declaration would set forth the determination of the party founded by Thomas Jefferson and the party founded by Abraham Lincoln to follow the wise policy enunciated by George Washington in the warning that: "One of the most effectual means of preserving peace is to be prepared for war"—that is to say, prepared to punish any aggression against the United States by an enemy daring to attack this country.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

When a woman takes a vacation, she vacates everything and just lolls around and emulates the sloth or the sand-lizard. But a man, whose faculty for making play of his work every woman envies, always insists on making work of his play.

For eleven months of the year, he lives by the clock and crawls through the routine of the day in leisurely fashion.

His activities, as far as physical exercise is concerned, consist in occasionally flexing his muscles by running his hands through his hair when some particularly obtuse business problem confronts him. Or in shuffling the cards at the bi-weekly neighborhood bridge game.

Then comes the call of spring and June and playtime—the call of the fishing season, the golf course and the open road! The wanderlust stirs within him, and he begins to make plans to Get-Away-From-It-All. He's TIRED.

He's going somewhere, far, far away and forget everything! Just a whole month or a whole fortnight of the Simple Life, loafing around the live-long day. A Nirvana of REST and relaxation—and let everything go hang!

But he has not reckoned with The Golf Gang, the angling enthusiasts or with his passion for PLAYING.

Into those few short weeks, he tries to crowd all the exercise and athletic diversion that he will need for another twelve months.

It's the most strenuous period of his year! He's up at early a. m. for a dash into the pool or the ocean or the shower. Into his clothes like a shot, and just two minutes to gulp down some breakfast—so as to be out on the course before it gets cluttered up.
